Myanmar strongly condemns and rejects statements issued on anniversary of August 2017 incidents in Rakhine State

THE Ministry of Foreign Affairs has learnt the issuance of statements by certain countries and organizations including the spokesperson of the United Nations Secretary-General on the anniversary of the incident that took place in Rakhine State on 25 August 2017. The contents and facts contained in their statements not only lack authenticity and are of unverifiable sources but are also found to be one-sided and interfering in the internal affairs of Myanmar.

The incidents that started on 25 August 2017 in Rakhine State were triggered by the coordinated and simultaneous attacks of the ARSA (Arakan Rohingya Salvation Army) terrorist group on 30 police outposts and a Regiment Headquarters. Those terrorist attacks resulted in casualties of both security personnel and innocent civilians. In this regard, with a view to ensuring prevalence of security, peace and stability of the locality and the people, the security personnel had to take necessary measures in accordance with the existing rules and regulations.

Myanmar strongly condemns and rejects statements issued on anniversary of August 2017 incidents in Rakhine State

The ARSA terrorist group had deliberately orchestrated such incidents to make the people in Rakhine State flee to the other side of the border. They also inflated the numbers of the people who fled due to the terror-threat of ARSA. The Myanmar Government is systematically carrying out verification process to repatriate those who fled the country in accord with the bilateral agreements. The Government and people of Myanmar do not recognize and accept the use of the term "Rohingya". Such term is not included in the historical evidence and lacks legal basis. Those using the term are found to be doing so for political purposes. The Myanmar Government is granting appropriate status of citizenship to those eligible after systematic verification in accordance with the 1982 Myanmar Citizenship Law, irrespective of race or religion.

The statements issued were found to be not only concealing the ARSA's terrorist acts with regard to the incident of 25 August 2017 and ignoring to objectively observe the situation of ethnic people in Rakhine State but also disregarding constructive measures taken by the Myanmar Government. The contents contained in the statements were based on unverifiable sources merely to exert pressure on Myanmar and tantamount to the interference in the internal affairs of Myanmar. As such, Myanmar strongly condemns and rejects those statements. — MNA

Passenger details required for highway bus tickets

THE Ministry of Transport and Communications has issued an instruction to highway bus terminals to record the exact personal data of passengers before selling the tickets.

The bus lines must take the record of passengers' names, CSC numbers, addresses and contact phone numbers, place the passengers as per the seating plan after checking the data again and check the CSC cards and passengers.

"We cannot buy the tickets as we want. It needs a recommendation letter and a copy of the CSC card. We cannot buy for others. Although we can purchase tickets online previously, we have to give our personal information at the bus stations now," said Ko Khin Tun from Lanmadaw Township.

A total of 564 express buses of 211 highway bus lines were operating from Yangon to other regions/states in early August and transported 8,400 passengers. According to data on 23 August, 525 express buses of 206 highway bus lines transported 7,053 passengers. Figures showed a decline of over 1,300 passengers compared to the numbers of early August.

"We, gate officials fill the name of passenger and CSC no in the seating plan sheet and show it to officials along the trip. Now, we have to sell tickets after recording the personal data," said an in charge of the bus station. — TWA/GNLM

Prices of palm oil, onion, potato, chilli pepper, pigeon peas slip

SOME commodities prices declined on 25 August although the kitchen budgets continued rising in recent days, the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM) quoted U Kyaw Lwin, a grocery retailer from Nyaungpinlay Market, as saying.

The wholesale reference price of palm oil in Yangon is set at K4,860 per viss (a viss equals 1.6 kilogrammes) for a week ended 28 August, showing a sharp rise of K720 per viss compared to the rate of the previous week. Meanwhile, the wholesale price hit K9,700 in the markets. Yet, the price slipped to K9,200 per viss on 24 and 25 August.

The price gap between the current market price and the reference price narrowed from K5,500 to K4,300 per viss on 24 August, Ko

Kyaw Lwin pointed out.

On 23 August, onion prices jumped to K3,000 per viss at the Bayintnaung Wholesale Market. However, the prices were down by K100-150 per viss on 25 August depending on the sizes, said Ko Chit, a trader who delivers the goods to the regions outside Yangon.

On 24 August 2022, the prices of onions were just K2,300-2,900 for onions from Seikphyu Township and K2,450 -3,000 for Monywa township. This being so, the prices were down by K100 per viss on 25 August 2022.

As locally produced onions are fetching a high price, onions from foreign markets enter the market, onion traders report. Shan potatoes were priced at K1,400-2,200 per viss and the price showed a small decrease of K50-150 per viss, Ko Thein from the potato warehouse on Yetama Street told the GNLM.

In the first week of August, the wholesale price of chilli pepper processed in cold storage touched a high of K19,000-19,500.

On 25 August, the selling price was only K16,000 per viss yet the offering price was just K14,000 per viss.

Meanwhile, the price of black gram (FAQ/RC) was K1,856,000 per tonne, while the black gram (SQ/RC) was worth K2,156,000 per tonne and pigeon peas (red gram) were offered K1,930,000 per tonne on 25 August.

The daily pulses prices data indicated a sharp decline of K35,000-40,000 per tonne in two days. — TWA/GNLM

Soaring fuel prices batter taxi drivers

ON 25 August 2022, the retail price of fuel stood at K2,490 per litre of Octane 92, K2,570 for Octane 95 and K3,055 for diesel.

The prices soared from K1,615 per litre of Octane 92 and K1,970 per litre of diesel recorded on 7 August. The figures showed an increase of K875 per litre and K3,972 per litre of Octane 92.

A taxi uses three gallons per day. The drivers face an additional cost of K12,000 per day, Ko Oo, a taxi driver from North Okkalapa Township told the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM).

Taxi drivers are struggling with the soaring fuel prices. They have to pay the bill to the owners to keep the taxi. When the price is up by K875 per litre in 20 days, their daily income declines by around K10,000, he added.

It is hard for the taxi driver to raise the fare for the passengers as some of the drivers use gas. Meanwhile, other Octane-fueled taxi drivers cannot push the price up, the GNLM quoted U Kyaw Win, a taxi driver from Hlaing Township, as saying.

Gas-fuelled taxi drivers have to pay K16,000 to the owners per day while Octane-fuelled taxi drivers have to pay only K8,000. Although the taxi drivers who use Octane can save K8,000, the fuel price hike causes an extra cost of K25,000 per day, U Kyaw Win, an Octane-fuelled taxi driver continued.

Those who own the taxi need not worry about that bill and they can run the taxi to cover the fuel price.

Therefore, the taxi service hour is quite lower than those of the taxi drivers who do not own the vehicles, said Ko Than Win, an owner of vehicles near Sanpya Cinema.

The Octane taxi drivers are expecting the price not to spike again. — TWA/GNLM

Trade value of China-Myanmar Wang Ding route reaches US$560 million

ACCORDING to Chinese news on the border, during the first half of 2022, the export and import trade value of the China-Myanmar border region reached 560 million US dollars.

From January to June 2022, China-Myanmar exports and imports amounted to 6,228,000 tonnes with a trade value of 3.798 billion Chinese yuan (US$560 million), according to the news agency of China's Dehong Dai.

In June 2022, 90,000 trucks were entering and exiting the country through the Manman route of the China-Myanmar Wang Ding border crossing, and 304 trucks were entering and leaving the country every day.

It is reported that the value of transportation trade during the month reached 1.3 billion Chinese Yuan (nearly $192 million).

Compared to 2019 before the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic, the daily volume of goods transported through the Wang Ding border on the Manman route has recovered 55.5 per cent, and the daily trade volume has increased.

Through the Wang Ding border post, agricultural produce including sugarcane, mango, watermelon, fish and crabs are reported to be exported.

According to the report of the Ministry of Commerce of Myanmar, from 1 January to 1 July 2022, the value of China-Myanmar border trade has reached more than $1.036 billion, and the trade value of Muse border trade has reached more than $819 million.

Soaring fuel price hits K3,000 per litre of diesel

SOARING fuel prices reached a record high of K3,000 per litre of diesel, according to market research on the petrol and fuel industry.

On 23 August 2022, the prices of domestic fuel prices stood at K2,390 per litre for Octane 92, K2,480 for Octane 95, K2,940 for premium diesel and K2,865 for diesel. The prices increased to K2,440 for Octane 92, K2,525 for Octane 95, K3,080 for premium diesel and K3,000 for diesel on 24 August, showing a small increase of K50 per litre of Octane 92 and 95 and K140 per litre of diesel and premium diesel within one day.

"Fuel prices are volatile. The market sees a small decline yet a big jump in fuel prices. We are struggling with the rising price," a taxi driver told the Global New Light of Myanmar.

The Supervisory Committee on Oil Import, Storage and Distribution of Fuel Oil stated that the domestic fuel price follows the price index set by Mean of Platts Singapore (MOPS), the pricing basis for many refined products in southeast Asia.

The Central Bank of Myanmar raised the reference exchange rate for a dollar from K1,850 to K2,100, whereas the exchange rate against the US dollar hit K2,900 in the grey market.

The fuel price experienced an upward spiral shortly after Kyat devalued at K3,000 against the dollar in early August. Consequently, some fuel stations in regions and states allegedly faced a shortage of supply.

Nonetheless, some petrol stations are allegedly suspending fuel sales and setting limited sales on the possible shortage of fuel oil, sparking consumers' concerns and raising fuel prices. They are taking advantage of the consumers' concerns for their benefits, according to the statement released by the Central Committee on Ensuring Smooth Flow of Trade and Goods on 16 August.

The committee has assured adequate fuel supply until this month. It is also working together with Myanmar Petroleum Trade Association to ensure a steady fuel supply in order for the energy consumers to mitigate concerns.

Therefore, the consumers can complain about the halt in fuel sales and limited sales through the contact numbers of the respective regions and states if they find those stations that violate the rules, the committee stated.

The committee is governing the fuel oil storage and distribution sector effectively not to have a shortage of oil in the domestic market and ensuring price stability for energy consumers.

The Petroleum Products Inspection and Supervision Department, under the guidance of the committee, is issuing the daily reference rate for oil to offer a reasonable price to energy consumers. The reference rate in Yangon Region is set on the MOPS' price assessment, shipping cost, premium insurance, tax, other general costs and health profit percentage.

The rates for regions and states other than Yangon are evaluated after adding the transportation cost and the retail reference rates daily cover on the state-run newspapers and are posted on the media and official website and Facebook page of the department on a daily basis starting from 4 May.

As per the statement, 90 per cent of fuel oil in Myanmar is imported, while the remaining 10 per cent is produced locally. The domestic fuel price is highly correlated with international prices. The State is steering the market to mitigate the loss between the importers, sellers and energy consumers. Consequently, the government is trying to distribute the oil at a reasonable price compared to those of regional countries.

Some countries levied higher tax rates and hiked oil prices than Myanmar. However, Malaysia's oil sector receives government subsidies and the prices are about 60 per cent cheaper than in Myanmar. Every country lays down different patterns of policy to fix the oil prices. Myanmar also poses only a lower tax rate on fuel oil and strives for energy consumers to buy the oil at a cheaper rate. — NN/GNLM

Prepare to raise the Myanmar-Russia trade volume

THE good news in recent months came out that a plan is underway to promote the Myanmar-Russian trade in which both countries set an aim each to reach a trading volume worth US$1 billion this financial year.

As a reference, a meeting on Myanmar and Russia trade promotion was held through videoconferencing meeting at the annexe of the Ministry of Commerce on 11 July this year. On this occasion, the permanent secretary of the Ministry of Commerce unveiled that it was necessary to find the proper ways to strategically penetrate the Russian market for Myanmar exporters.

It is because both countries handled the trade volume worth US$60 million only in the 2019-2020 financial year. Hence, the ministry set a vision to earn $1 billion in trade. On the other hand, it is necessary to build friendly relations in order to implement bilateral cooperation in both countries and private sectors.

The plan of raising the bilateral trade between the private and public sectors of Myanmar and Russia is the potential for having a good result. If so, a larger trade volume between the two countries will surely benefit the governments and the peoples. Especially, a large trade volume between Myanmar and Russia will contribute much to increasing the GDP of the nation as well as alleviating the poverty of the people.

Currently, relevant ministries and private sectors of both countries are jointly drawing the Strategy for the Development of Russian Myanmar Economic Cooperation into the final stage. In fact, the strategy comprises seven prioritized arenas: information technology, banking and monetary affairs, healthcare service and pharmaceutical production, infrastructure, geology, energy and industrial sectors with potential for cooperation between the two countries.

Relevant government departments, UMFCCL, the export associations and companies sending products to Russia need to study the possible challenges in trading and export process of agricultural produce and further export items and seek the best way to penetrate the Russian market.

To have greater success, the government of Myanmar and the private sector need to rely on each other to extend further items of export goods for the Russian market and ease trade restrictions for businesspersons. Meanwhile, businesspersons need to support the plan of the government to improve trade management.

The plan of raising the bilateral trade between the private and public sectors of Myanmar and Russia is the potential for having a good result. If so, a larger trade volume between the two countries will surely benefit the governments and the peoples. The Art Department

The Art Department was responsible for designing and illustrating Sarpay Beikman publications in consultation with the editorial department. A Pictorial Reference File or picture, and a trained photographer and Institute Photo Laboratory, completed the services of the Art Department to the Institute.

The Marketing Division

The Marketing Division was responsible for the sale and distribution of the books and magazines its printing presses turned out. When the Institute was first founded in 1947, there was no Marketing Division, which was a major department in any publishing house. After the Institute's reorganization in May 1957, it was determined that to be able to stand on its own legs firmly, the Institute must concentrate on sales as its main source of income. Thus, the Sales Department came into existence as a separate entity. A Sales Manager was appointed, with direct responsibility to the Director.

The General Administration

The Director, with his assistants, directed and coordinated the programme of the Institute without the policy laid down by the Council. In addition, the various administrative divisions provided the services necessary to the management of the organization of (over 450) employees.

The Accounts Division

The Accounts Division scrutinized and recorded all financial transactions. The accounting procedures of the Institute were based on commercial practices. In addition, some government accounting rules and regulations (e.g. Fundamental Rules) were observed. Annual consolidated income and expenditure accounts and balance sheets were audited by a certified external auditor.

The Motor Transport Section

As transportation was a major undertaking at the Institute, no less than 25 vehicles of all types then were in daily use. An officer was in charge of the Motor Transport Section which had to handle an increasing volume of

The Public Relations Division

When this division was first formed in 1955, it was called the Publicity and Distribution Department. However, by 1957, it was determined that both public relations and distribution were major areas in themselves. Therefore, with the creation of a Marketing Division, this division was given responsibility for handling the Institute's public relations. The division aims to promote good public relations between the Sarpay Beikman and the public.

Another function of this division was to see that visitors were cordially received. One other important function of the Public Relations Division was working with the membership of the Institute itself.

The Sarpay Beikman Public Library

In March 1956, the Managing Council of the Institute established the Sarpay Beikman Public Library, one of the few free public libraries in Myanmar. The primary purpose of this library was to make books published by the Institute, as well as other educational Myanmar and English books freely available to the public with a view to promoting mass education. The Librarian, who acted as Secretary to the Library Advisory Committee, was in charge of Library Administration under the direction and review of the Director and Chief Executive Manager.

An integral part of the Library was a Children's Branch, situated on the ground floor of the Institute building at Merchant Street. Children's Library programmes were presented every Saturday and included film shows, easy competitions, debates, magic painting competitions, indoor games, story-telling and other activities that many children came to enjoy. (At that time) There were 3,000 volumes of children's books, story books and comics.

The Extra-Mural Activities Division

This Division was founded in March 1954, originally with a view to releasing some of the extra duties of the Administration Department. The main functions of the division were (i) to give yearly literary awards; (ii) to hold cultural talks and to exhibit cultural shows regularly during the non-raining period of the year; (iii) to hold public classes on different subjects not usually taught in ordinary schools.

There were BTS Evening Classes providing public lectures on such useful subjects as Public Speaking, Fundamentals of Myanmar Prose Writing, Principles of Economics, Domestic Science, World Affairs, World History, and the World We Live In, and Printing Classes were held on composing, machine minding, bookbinding, and photo-engraving. They were aimed at improving the knowledge of printing for both Institute staff and outsiders. It was noteworthy that a yearly Journalism School, administered jointly with the Burma Journalists Association, helped to improve journalistic writing.

Honestly, I got these facts and figures from the booklet 'SARPAY BEIKMAN' (Palace of Literature), September 1958. These excerpts will reveal the Golden Age of Sarpay Beikman in the past. I am not dwelling too much upon the past of the institute. I am not making up but it is a true story.

Sarpay Beikman ... Today

As Sarpay Beikman is under the management of the Printing and Publishing Department (PPD), we should have known the brief history of the latter.

The Printing and Publishing Department stemmed from the central Press which carried out the printing jobs for the secretariat of the Government of Myanmar in 1880 and it was administered by the Superintendent of Printing. It existed as Printing and Stationery Department in 1928.

After the advent of the Revolutionary Council Government, it was transformed into Central Press.

In 1963, the Burma Translation Society (BTS) was abolished and the Governing Body of Sarpay Beikman was formed in accordance with the law promulgated.

Soon after the private-owned printing presses had been nationalized in order to establish the socialist economy, the Supervisory Board for Nationalized Printing Presses and Their printing Jobs was formed.

In 1971, the Central Press, the Sarpay Beikman and the nationalized private-owned presses were reorganized as 'Printing and Publishing Corporation' which was placed under the control of the Ministry of Information (MOI). Then again after the Tatmadaw Government took the responsibilities of the State in 1988, 'The Printing and Publishing Corporation' was renamed 'Printing and Publishing Enterprise' (PPE) and the Managing Director took the charge as the departmental head.

From 1 April 2016 onwards, the 'Printing and Publishing Enterprise' was reorganized, as the 'Printing and Publishing Department' (PPD) and the Director-General took the charge of the Department. The PPD was made up of five divisions - Administration, Printing, Production, Accounts, and Sarpay Beikman.

In this way, Sarpay Beikman which is now made up of seven sections is now placed under the management of the PPD. According to the new constitution, the editorial programme is under the direction of a Chief Editor and a Deputy Chief Editor under them are Executive Editors and Editors and the staff are performing the tasks of rendering services for the development of Myanmar literature and enhancement of knowledge for the reading public.

The literary activities that the Sarpay Beikman has to implement are:

Selecting and presenting the 'National Literary Awards' for 18 genres of the books published in a calendar year;

Selecting and Presenting the 'Sarpay Beikman Manuscript Awards' for 13 genres, inviting the manuscripts once a year;

Presenting the Pakokku Literary Awards Founded by Pakokku U Ohn Pe;

Holding occasional paper reading sessions, books fairs, Literary talks, literary exhibitions, etc.

The routine literary works are being carried out by seven Sections - Myanmar Encyclopaedia Year Book, People's Handbook Series, Thuta Padetha or Magazine of General Knowledge, Shwe Thway or Children Journal, Translation Section, Sarpay Beikman Public Library and Sales Branch.

Myanmar Encyclopaedia Year Book

This section has been carrying out the annual publication of the Myanmar Encyclopaedia of Year Book since 1978 to supplement the 15 volumes of Myanmar Encyclopaedia.

People's Handbook Series

This section publishes the manuscripts that win the 'Sarpay Beikman Manuscript Award' and the 'Pakokku Literary Award' Founded by Pakokku U Ohn Pe' and other reading materials.

Thuta Padetha

This section emerged in 1973 as a quarterly magazine, presenting the translated works. Today, it has become a monthly magazine that carries both translated and original works.

Shwe Thway Journal

This journal is a weekly children's Journal which came out on 4 January 1969. It became a bilingual (Myanmar and English) Journal in October 1979.

Translation Section

In order to carry out its primary objectives more successfully and to make sure that it performs translation effectively as has been envisaged since it was founded, this section was established in 2013. The section carries out its routine works of translation (from English to Myanmar and from Myanmar to English).

Sarpay Beikman Public Library

The Sarpay Beikman Public Library emerged on 5 March 1956. It became an e-library on 1 October 2001 and the Children's Library could be opened on the same day. Similarly, another public library was opened in Mandalay on 21 March 2001.

Sales Branch

Although the Sales Branch is one of the sections under the Production Division, it is placed under the management of the Chief Editor. It has opened book shops (book centres) in Yangon, Nay Pyi Taw and Mandalay to sell all kinds of books published by private sectors besides the books published by the PPD.

Sarpay Beikman ... Tomorrow

'Sarpay Beikman' has been bequeathed to us by our predecessors who paved the way for literary development in Myanmar.

Our predecessors spared no effort to make the Sarpay Beikman stand tall in the literary world of the nation. They gave birth to the motto 'Light, where darkness was'. In its early days, the Institute became truly a publishing house with an excellent reputation. No one can deny that.

To be able to maintain such a reputation is a gigantic task for the successors of today.

"The goal of our Institute is clear... to produce interesting and enlightening books in Burmese, and to market these books so vigorously that each home in the Union will be, in truth, a small 'Palace of Literature'."

The literary pioneers said so in the conclusion of the booklet 'SARPAY BEIKMAN' (Printed in September 1958).

It is incumbent upon those who are now working together under the roof of the Sarpay Beikman to achieve this goal.

May 'Sarpay Beikman' stand tall till doomsday!

Half of China hit by drought in worst heatwave on record

A crippling drought exacerbated by a record heat wave has spread out across half of China and reached the normally frigid Tibetan Plateau, according to official data released ahead of more searing temperatures on Thursday.

The world's second-largest economy has been hit by heatwaves, flash floods and droughts — phenomena that scientists say are becoming more frequent and intense due to climate change.

Southern China has recorded its longest continuous period of high temperatures since records began more than 60 years ago, the agriculture ministry said this week.

Experts have said the intensity, scope and duration of the heatwave could make it one of the worst recorded in global history.

A chart from the National Climate Centre showed Wednesday that swathes of southern China — including the Tibetan Plateau — were experiencing “severe” to “extraordinary” drought conditions.

The worst-affected area — the Yangtze river basin, stretching from coastal Shanghai to Sichuan province in China's southwest — is home to over 370 million people and contains several manufacturing hubs including the megacity of Chongqing. — AFP

California set to ban fossil fuel cars by 2035

ALL new cars sold in California by 2035 will have to be zero emission under plans set to be adopted by the state this week, as the biggest economy in the United States drives a nationwide fossil fuel evolution.

Proposals to be debated by the California Air Resources Board (CARB) this week will formalize targets set by Governor Gavin Newsom — and will likely prod other US states in the same direction.

The plans, which board member Daniel Sperling recently told CNN he was “99.9 per cent” confident would be adopted, also include incremental steps mandating more than a third of 2026 car sales in the state be zero emission, and over two-thirds by 2030.

“This is monumental,” Sperling told CNN. “This is the most important thing that CARB has done in the last 30 years. It's important not just for California, but it's important for the country and the world.”

California's environmental policies, including ones around car emissions, can, in effect, set national standards as the state's 40 million people make up the United States' largest market. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

California's more-than 40 million consumers make it the biggest market in the United States.

As such, rules imposed there impact manufacturers' production plans across the country, as well as further afield, because they cannot afford to miss out.

This means California can, in effect, set national standards.

The likely ruling Thursday comes on the heels of a climate law signed last week by US President Joe Biden, which sets aside hundreds of millions of dollars in incentives for clean energy programmes. —AFP

Global warming may cause greater wheat yields, steeper price spikes: study

WHAT will a hotter Earth bring to wheat consumers and farmers? A new study predicts that global prices for the grain will exhibit steeper spikes at 2 degrees Celsius warming despite a slight increase in production.

Wheat is the world's major grain crop, providing 20 per cent of the protein and calories for more than 3.5 billion people worldwide.

The Paris climate agreement aims to keep the global average rise in temperature below 2 degrees Celsius. Scientists believe that even if the target is fulfilled, global warming will alter wheat yields and prices in the coming years. —Xinhua

Israel unveils 1,200 year-old desert mansion

ISRAELI archaeologists unveiled a 1,200 year-old mansion on Tuesday, broadening knowledge of the southern desert region where a mosque was recently discovered.

Described as a “luxurious rural estate” by the Israel Antiquities Authority, the home boasted a marble-paved hallway and walls decorated with frescoes.

The first building of its kind to be found in the southern Negev desert, according to the IAA, it contained vaulted rooms around a central courtyard. The remains of oil lamps were unearthed in storage rooms underground, along with a cistern. —AFP

Sweltering Saudis escape to mountainous ‘City of Fog’

AS Saudi Arabia swelters in sizzling desert temperatures, some are escaping to the “City of Fog” — a mountainous oasis of cool where warm clothing is needed even in summer.

Sitting with friends on a picnic blanket, under light rain and a thick, swirling mist in Al-Namas, Abdullah Al-Enizi wears a body-warmer over his traditional white robes to guard against the chill. The retreat, 2,800 metres (9,200 feet) above sea level in Saudi Arabia's rugged south, is in stark contrast to other parts of the vast, largely desert country where summer heat of up to 50 degrees Celsius (122 degrees Fahrenheit) is an annual challenge. At Al-Namas, humid monsoon weather keeps temperatures below 30 degrees Celsius (86 degrees Fahrenheit), dropping as low as 15 degrees Celsius (59 degrees Fahrenheit) at night, as fog blocks out the sun over verdant hills. “It's 46 degrees in Riyadh and only 20 here, it's 26 degrees lower,” says Al-Enizi at the holiday destination, about 850 kilometres (530 miles) south-west of the Saudi capital. —AFP

COVID-19 SITUATION UPDATE

China to resume visa issuance for Japan students after 2-yr hiatus

CHINA has said it will resume issuance of student visas to Japan-based applicants for the first time since March 2020, when the coronavirus pandemic was in its early stages, according to the Chinese Embassy in Tokyo.

The embassy said Tuesday that applications for student visas could be accepted at its visa service centres and consulates general in Japan as Beijing gradually eases its COVID-19 regulations by shortening the quarantine period for overseas arrivals and resuming some direct flight operations.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin said at a press conference last Friday that Beijing has made “active arrangements” for the resumption of student visa issuance. “We welcome the return of international students to China to resume their studies,” he said.

Covid was ‘a disaster’ for badminton, says federation chief

BADMINTON is finally emerging from a pandemic that was “threatening the sport”, world federation chief Thomas Lund told AFP, but China’s zero-Covid policy means it may face further damaging disruption.

Badminton World Federation secretary general Lund said the coronavirus pandemic made 2020 and 2021 “a disaster” for the game, forcing tournament cancellations worldwide and slashing finances to the bone.

The situation is gradually returning to normal and in June the BWF announced an expanded calendar for the next

But Lund also warned that three events scheduled for the end of this year in China, as well as one each in Hong Kong and Macau, could be moved if Covid restrictions make them unworkable.

Singapore to further ease its anti-COVID indoor mask rule

SINGAPORE is further easing its mask rule imposed to combat the spread of COVID-19, making wearing masks in most indoor settings optional, the Health Ministry said Wednesday.

The change of the safety rule, which takes effect next Monday, comes after the COVID situation has improved in the country, with the number of daily cases falling to just over 3,000 from the recent peak of 15,000 in mid-July.

2022 MONKEYPOX OUTBREAK

Monkeypox vaccine maker and WHO ink Latin America deal

THE Danish maker of the only authorized monkeypox vaccine said Wednesday it had signed a deal with the World Health Organization (WHO) to facilitate distribution in Latin America and the Caribbean. “Deliveries of the vaccines are expected to begin in September,” Bavarian Nordic said in a statement, as the company seeks to boost production to meet high global demand for the vaccine. The agreement with the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO) — the WHO’s regional office for the Americas — will “facilitate equitable access to the company’s monkeypox vaccine for countries in Latin America and the Caribbean”, Bavarian Nordic said. A surge in monkeypox infections has been reported since early May outside the endemic African countries.

The WHO declared the situation an international public health emergency on 23 July, and some 40,000 cases have now been reported. The Danish company’s smallpox vaccine, marketed as Imvanex in Europe, Jynneos in the United States and Imvamune in Canada, is a third-generation serum (a live vaccine that does not replicate in the human body).—AFP

Swiss to buy monkeypox vaccines after criticism over delay

SWITZERLAND, which until now has had no access to monkeypox vaccines, will buy a total of 100,000 doses, including 40,000 jabs aimed to rein in the current outbreak, Bern said Wednesday.

The procurement decision comes after LGBTQ groups and others have in recent weeks criticized the slow Swiss response after monkeypox in May began spreading rapidly far beyond the West and Central African countries where it is usually found.

So far, more than 400 cases of the disease, which causes fever, muscular aches and large boil-like skin lesions, have been registered in Switzerland.

But while vaccines have been available in a range of European countries, no jabs have until now been available in Switzerland.

Sri Lanka widens import ban as economic crisis persists

SRI Lanka tightened import restrictions Wednesday with a ban on more than 300 additional items, as an economic crisis that has created months of shortages and toppled a president refuses to abate.

President Ranil Wickremesinghe, who replaced Gotabaya Rajapaksa after his ouster in July, slapped a ban on goods including home appliances, tools and sports gear.

The South Asian island nation of 22 million people has been suffering dire shortages of many essentials due to a lack of foreign currency.

The new bans come despite the central bank announcing last week that the foreign exchange shortage was easing thanks to better inflows.

However, Sri Lanka's economy is projected to contract this year by a worse-than-expected 8.0 per cent, according to the bank, with inflation forecast to peak at a record 65 per cent by September.

The lack of foreign currency pushed Sri Lanka into defaulting on some of its $51 billion external debt pile in April.

Germany, Canada partner on transatlantic hydrogen trade

THE leaders of Canada and Germany signed a green hydrogen deal on Tuesday, laying a path for a transatlantic supply chain as Europe seeks to lessen its dependence on Russian energy.

"It's a vote of confidence for Canada as a leader in clean energy," Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said during a joint press conference with visiting German Chancellor Olaf Scholz.

"We cannot as a world continue to rely on authoritarian countries that will weaponize energy policy, as Russia is, that don't concern themselves with environmental outcomes or labour rights or even human rights," Trudeau added.

Moscow has slashed its energy exports to Europe in response to punishing Western sanctions over Moscow's invasion of Ukraine, forcing countries to scramble for alternatives.

Scholz said there was a need to discuss "short-term constraints and LNG (liquefied natural gas) but in the long run, the real potential lies in green hydrogen from the wind-rich, thinly populated Atlantic provinces."

Canada aims to become a major producer and exporter of hydrogen and other related clean technologies to displace climate-warming fossil fuels, with Germany lined up to become a first customer.— AFP

Cyprus says major gas find could boost European supplies

A new gas discovery off Cyprus could speed up exploitation of untapped resources and help secure supplies to Europe, Cypriot Energy Minister Natasa Pilides said Tuesday.

Italian giant Eni and France's TotalEnergies announced on Monday a "significant gas discovery at the Cronos-1 well, in Block 6, offshore Cyprus".

Cyprus's energy ministry said preliminary estimates indicated the reservoir holds about 2.5 trillion cubic feet (70 billion cubic metres) of natural gas.

With Russia threatening to cut off gas supplies to the European Union, Nicosia was in talks with Brussels to become part of the bloc's energy plan to reduce reliance on Moscow, Pilides told state radio.

The minister said she had contacted Eni and TotalEnergies to "find ways to optimally exploit this discovery".

The gas find was located 165 kilometres (about 100 miles) off the southwest coast of Cyprus.

In 2018, Eni discovered the large Calypso-1 gas field in the same block, containing an estimated 4.5 trillion cubic feet of gas.

The Cypriot energy ministry said Monday more drilling had begun in a new well called Zeus-1 in Block 6, where additional quantities of gas could be discovered.

Nicosia has granted drilling licences for seven blocks to the Eni-Total consortium.— AFP

South African inflation hits new 13-year high

INFLATION in South Africa accelerated to its highest level in 13 years in July, pushed mainly by surging prices for food, transport and electricity, official data showed on Wednesday.

Consumer prices rose to 7.8 per cent in July after reaching 7.4 per cent in June, the national statistics agency StatsSA said in a statement.

Mitsui, Mitsubishi to keep stakes in Russia Sakhalin 2 energy project

JAPANESE trading houses Mitsui & Co. and Mitsubishi Corp. plan to retain their interests in the Sakhalin 2 oil and gas project and will notify Russia by the end of the month, Mitsubishi and sources familiar with the matter said Thursday.

The companies' decision to invest in the new operator, set up by Moscow to take control of the natural resources project in the Russian Far East, was made in light of Japan's aim to secure a stable supply of liquefied natural gas amid market disruptions following Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

Mitsubishi said its board approved the plan on Thursday "from a comprehensive perspective after careful consideration," while Mitsui said it is cooperating with the Japanese government and its partners.

The new operator, established on 5 August under a decree by Russian President Vladimir Putin, has offered the same contractual terms to energy companies. An affiliate of Russian energy company Gazprom has a controlling stake in the new operator.

Shareholders in the previous operator of the project need to apply for stakes in the new entity by 4 September, with applications to be reviewed within three days of receipt. Mitsui and Mitsubishi held 12.5 per cent and 10 per cent stakes in the previous operator, respectively.—Kyodo

Russian tech giant Yandex sells media assets

RUSSIAN IT giant Yandex announced Tuesday the sale of its media assets to state-affiliated rival VK, the owner of Russia's largest social network.

The transaction is the latest sign of increasing government control over internet platforms available to a Russian audience, as Moscow continues the military intervention in Ukraine.

Yandex "has entered into a binding agreement with VK, one of Russia's largest social media businesses, to sell Yandex's news aggregation platform and Zen information service," the company — often dubbed "Russia's Google" — said in a statement.

Yandex will also be selling its main page Yan-

The VK group in a statement confirmed the deal, adding it should be finalised by the end of the year. —AFP

Lebanon to investigate recording threatening Saudi embassy

LEBANESE authorities will investigate an audio recording shared online threatening to attack the Saudi Arabian embassy in Beirut, the interior ministry said in a statement Wednesday.

"Following the spread of an audio recording... threatening the Embassy of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in Beirut with an act of terrorism," the interior minister ordered an investigation, the ministry said.

The minister also ordered the arrest of those found responsible for the threats, it added.

The ministry said Ali bin Hashem bin Salman Al-Haji, a Saudi national wanted by Riyadh for "terrorist crimes", was the likely author of the recording.

Al-Haji has been residing in Lebanon for years, a security source told AFP.

He participated in events organized by Saudi opposition groups and attended by high officials from Hezbollah, a group backed by Saudi Arabia's arch-foe Iran, the source said.

He is currently on a visit to Syria, the source added.

Beirut's ties to Riyadh — formerly a major investor in cash-strapped Lebanon — have taken a blow in past years as Hezbollah's influence has grown.

The latest incident comes months after Riyadh announced the return of its ambassador to Beirut, following a diplomatic crisis last year between Lebanon and Gulf Arab states.

Riyadh also suspended fruit and vegetable imports from Lebanon in April last year, saying shipments were being used for drug smuggling and accusing Beirut of inaction.

The police identified the man only by his initials, but a security source told AFP it was dissident Maneh al-Yami.—AFP

RUSSIA-UKRAINE CONFLICT

US says Ukraine grain exports near pre-war levels

UKRAINE is on course to ship nearly as much grain this month as it did before the Russian invasion, in a triumph for international efforts to ease food shortages, a US official said Tuesday.

Ukraine is one of the world's largest exporters of wheat, corn, barley and sunflower oil, shipping around five million metric tons of grain each month before the war. Its exports ground to a trickle after the 24 February invasion, contributing to a spike in global food prices that has hit poor nations especially hard.

"Thanks to intensive international cooperation, Ukraine is on track to export as much as four million metric tons of agricultural products in August,"

Six months on, shelling becomes new normal in Mykolaiv

SIX months since the start of Russia's invasion, residents of Mykolaiv feel dread and resignation as the daily shelling of their city in southern Ukraine becomes the new routine.

In the city's Sukhii Fontan (Dry Fountain) district, a dozen people holding empty canisters chat as they stand in line for drinking water.

Fighting in April put a water pipeline out of service.

The water has started running again but it is salty and the only way to get drinking water now is to go to distribution points set up in each district.

But water is far from the main concern.—AFP

Kyiv accuses Moscow of illegal adoptions of Ukrainian children

KYIV accused Moscow on Tuesday of having organized illegal mass adoptions of Ukrainian children after transferring them from occupied territories to Russia.

Since the beginning of the war, Kyiv has been accusing Moscow of "deporting" Ukrainians, saying Ukrainians from occupied territories have been forced to go to Russia rather than other regions of Ukraine.

"The Russian Federation continues to abduct children from the territory of Ukraine and arrange their illegal adoption by Russian citizens," Ukraine's foreign ministry said in a statement.

"Over 1,000 children from Mariupol," a southern Ukrainian city occupied by Russian troops, "were illegally transferred to outsiders in Tyumen, Irkutsk, Kemerovo, and Altai Krai" (in Siberia), the statement read, referring to different areas of Russia.

The foreign ministry said it had based its findings on information from local authorities in Krasnodar, a southern Russian city near Ukraine.—AFP

Lithuania eyes possible regional ban on Russian visas

LITHUANIA could seek a "regional solution" for banning Russian tourists if EU member states fail to agree on a bloc-wide sanction, Lithuania's foreign minister said Tuesday.

Gabrielius Landsbergis said he expected talks with Latvia, Estonia, Finland and Poland on the issue in Prague next week on the sidelines of an EU foreign ministers' meeting.

"We seek a European solution in the first place, because it is the most sustainable and legally correct," Landsbergis told reporters in the Lithuanian capital Vilnius.

"If we don't reach one, we do not rule out the possibility of looking for a regional solution that would include the Baltic states, Poland and potentially Finland," he added.

The minister said there should be no Russian tourists in the EU "as if nothing happened".

Eastern EU countries stopped issuing new tourist visas to Russians shortly after Moscow began its invasion of Ukraine on 24 February.

Japan police chief to step down over ex-PM Abe's assassination

THE top bureaucrat of the Japanese police said Thursday he will step down to take responsibility for the assassination of former Prime Minister Shinzo Abe.

Itaru Nakamura, commissioner-general of the National Police Agency, expressed his intention at a press conference where the agency announced the results of its investigation into the police's failure to protect Abe when he was fatally shot while delivering a street speech during an election campaign.

"As we advance new security arrangements, it is a matter of course to go at it with a new lineup of people," Nakamura said.

The agency said Tomoaki Onizuka, head of the Nara prefectural police, was punished the same day with a 10 per cent pay cut for three months, adding that he has also offered to step down.

agency said a sudden change in the placement of police officers just before Abe's speech created "space" in the area behind him that was left unguarded, enabling the attacker to fire two shots from behind.

When Abe gave a stump speech in the western city of Nara on 8 July, ahead of an upper house election, one officer dispatched from the Tokyo metropolitan police force and several local police officers were in his immediate vicinity. However, none were able to stop the assailant before he fired two shots at the former prime minister from behind, according to the agency.—Kyodo

'I cannot accept it': Bali bomb survivors fume after attacker's term cut

ALMOST two decades after the Bali bombings left Thiolina Ferawati Marpaung with permanent eye injuries, news that one of the masterminds could be released early has caused fresh trauma.

Indonesia's latest reduction to Umar Patek's prison sentence — revealed last week by Australian Prime Minister Anthony Albanese and confirmed by AFP — means the bomber could be released on parole before the island marks the 20th anniversary of the attacks in October.

That is a galling prospect for survivors of the attack, which killed 202 people, including 88 Australians.

"It is not that I don't respect other people's rights, but he has hurt the survivors and families with his evil and inhumane acts," Marpaung told AFP by phone from Denpasar, the resort island's biggest city.

The smell of smoke triggers vivid memories of the blasts that sent shards of broken glass tearing into her eyes, Marpaung said.

Patek — a member of an Al Qaeda-affiliated group who was captured in the same Pakistani town where Osama bin Laden was killed — should be kept locked up, she said.

"Please let him serve what he deserves as a terror convict, not like a chicken thief whom we can easily forgive," the 47-year-old said.—AFP

China, S. Korea mark 30th anniv. of ties amid delicate power balance

LEADERS of China and South Korea called Wednesday for a boost in relations on the 30th anniversary of the normalization of diplomatic ties, as Seoul faces a delicate balancing act between its security ally, the United States, and its largest trading partner.

South Korean President Yoon Suk Yeol and Chinese President Xi Jinping exchanged congratulatory letters, with Yoon expressing hope that "new ways of cooperation" can be found over the next 30 years and Xi calling for "a substantive friendship" with the anniversary as the new starting point, the South Korean presidential office said.

Xi pointed out the need for the two sides to heed "each other's core interests and major concerns" and "eliminate interference" so as to create a better future for bilateral relations, apparently keeping the United States in mind, according to Chinese state-run media.

Yoon also asked China to play a constructive role in solving issues concerning North Korea's nuclear development and deepen cooperation in such areas as economic security, including measures to strengthen supply chains, and climate change.

The South Korean leader voiced hope to meet with Xi to have discussions in person so they can improve bilateral ties for the next 30 years.—Kyodo

Former Pakistan PM Khan granted bail by anti-terror court: party

PAKISTAN'S former prime minister Imran Khan was granted bail Thursday on charges brought under the country's anti-terrorism act, a party official said, leaving him free to continue his nationwide rallies calling for early elections.

Khan's court appearance is the latest twist in months of political wrangling that began when he was ousted by a vote of no confidence in the national assembly in April.

But the former cricket star retains widespread support, staging mass rallies railing against the establishment and Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif's government, which he says was imposed on Pakistan by a "conspiracy" involving the United States.—AFP

Murdoch sues small Australian news outlet for defamation

FOX News boss Lachlan Murdoch has sued a small Australian media outlet for defamation over an opinion piece that linked his media empire to the US Capitol riots.

The scion of the Murdoch media empire is seeking damages, accusing Crikey staff of tarnishing his reputation and "covertly using another media organisation to harass" him.

Murdoch — whose Fox News Channel regularly rails at threats to free speech — also asked the court to permanently ban the site from publishing anything suggesting he "illegally conspired with Donald Trump" around the events of 6 January.—AFP
