In addition, temporary bypass dirt roads were established on the north and south sides of the damaged route. The Mun Myint Hein Company was entrusted with laying rough and smooth stones, covering a 200-foot-long, 30-foot-wide area for rough stone paving, and a 300-foot-long section for smooth stone paving, also 30 feet wide. The Kawkareik highways Department confirmed the completion of the one-footthick stone paving.

The temporary bailey bridge, measuring 70 feet in length and 13 feet in width, has been developed from the Myawady side. By 22 August, the installation of the bridge frame and the placement of iron floor slabs had reached the 70 per cent milestone.

New online registration system for sellers, details to be unveiled in Sept

ONLINE sellers can soon register and receive certificates through the Internet. Registration details will be disclosed in September, as stated by the Ministry of Commerce's Consumer Affairs Department.

If your business involves local products needing FDA approval (like cosmetics, food, consumer goods, and medicine), the Small-Scale Industries Department's registration certificate must be submitted during the FDA application.

All individuals, organizations, or companies aiming to sell online must register. Individuals enjoy a reduced fee and speedy registration confirmation. The online registration process is underway and will launch in September, shared an official from the Consumer Affairs Department.

Due to growing issues on platforms like Facebook and TikTok, where online businesses often face quality problems, scams, and copyright violations, the online registration system was introduced. This trend is observed globally.

The Ministry of Commerce has mandated that online merchants secure a registration certificate within six months, and unregistered operations will face consequences. — ASH/CT

Compensation provided to 4 families of Myanmar sailors killed in oil tanker explosion

Families of Myanmar seamen are seen receiving compensation.

ACCORDING to the labour attache's office, compensation has been granted to four out of the seven families of Myanmar seamen affected by the oil tanker explosion during maintenance in a Mekong River tributary in Samut Sakhon Province, Thailand.

On 22 August, the Samut Sakhon Province social security office disbursed compensation to four families who possessed complete personal details among the seven Myanmar workers who tragically lost their lives in the explosion.

The incident occurred on 17 January around 10 am, involving an explosion caused by residual oil in a pipeline while nearly 30 workers were welding oil pipelines of the maintenance-docked tanker named Smoosh Sea C22.

To facilitate compensation for the deceased's families, the labour attache's office, in conjunction with the Samut Sakhon Province Social Security Office, established contact with family members in both Myanmar and Thailand. This effort included verifying necessary documents at the Samut Sakhon Province Social Security Office on 9 February and 27 March, as well as the Mae Sot Social Security Office on 6 June. Arrangements are in progress to expedite the compensation process for the remaining three victims' families. — TWA/CT

MoL to condense duration of regional orientation course

Myanmar migrant workers are seen going for work abroad at the airport.

THE Ministry of Labour plans to reduce the duration of a course on regional knowledge of a certain country being provided to locals who are about to work abroad, according to the ministry.

The two-day training is provided to the workers at Skill Training School in North Dagon township, Yangon Region. Under the new scheme to be started in September this year, the training will last only two hours, an official from the training school said.

"The training is to share the knowledge of the country where they are going to work. The rules and regulations of the country including do's and don'ts while living and working there are shared in the twoday training.

The newly arranged training programme will take two hours instead of two days. The workers will have more time to prepare other necessary things," he said. — ASH/TH

Fluctuations surge within real estate market, signalling high volatility

ALONG with the automobile market booming in the third week of August, some apartment prices in Yangon's immovable property market hit new highs yet the property transaction volume has risen unexpectedly, realtors pointed out.

The 12x50 feet apartment on the top floor of a high-rise building near Chinatown in Latha Township was valued at only K35 million in late 2022. The apartment on the fourth floor was worth K70 million per unit and the one on the fifth floor with some partitions was valued at K65 million per unit then.

That 12x50 feet apartment was put up for sale over the past six months. The buyer nearly reached an agreement with the seller at approximately K55 million. Yet, the seller raised the price to K66 million again, U Aye Thein, a grandson of the land owner, told the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM).

"First, the opening price was K55 million. Then, the price jumped to 60 million. The owner of the apartment seems to determine the price depending on the forex market", U Aye Thein highlighted.

Additionally, housing prices are rapidly fluctuating, Ma Wah Wah Swe, a realtor from South Okkalapa Township, told the GNLM.

"The value of the 30x60 feet house worth below K300 million moved up to K400 million because of the Kyat depreciation in the forex market. Then, the notification about the issuance of the K20,000 note caused the price to go higher to K500 million. The property price fluctuates as they are closely tied to the currency value and gold price. We realtors are also surprised by the high volatility in the real estate market", Ma Wah Wah Swe stressed.

As the car prices have been soaring, the housing prices also hit fresh new peaks in recent months. The property market sees an upward trend in prices.

The volatile foreign exchange rate and unofficial market rate of pure gold dealt a blow to the movable and immovable property market as well as the commodity market.

"The price of the vacant plot of land in East Dagon Township was not that high previously. Now, the price is up by K10 million per plot of land. The township has not developed and there are only vacant plots of land with permits there. However, the price is skyrocketing", the GNLM quoted Ko Aung Than Oo from East Dagon Township, as saying.

Nonetheless, the authorities concerned observed and met with those stakeholders in the industry on 19 August.

Along with the Kyat devaluation in the forex market, a crackdown on the illegal money transfer hundi businesses is underway.

Following the price dips of pure gold and the exchange rate, there is speculation about the possible price decline to a small extent in the real estate market. — TWA/EM

MoPF aims for 4.1% economic growth in current Financial Year

ANTICIPATED economic growth is forecasted to reach 4.1 per cent during the 2023-2024 financial year, as highlighted by the deputy minister

For the 2019-2020 financial year, initial projections placed the budget deficit and GDP at 5.65 per cent, yet yearend calculations indicated a higher figure of 6.27 per cent. Targeting 5.29 per cent in the 2020-2021 financial year, the outcome surged to 7.56 per cent, predominantly due to the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The pandemic caused a reduction in Myanmar's revenue, leading to a decline in economic growth to 3.2 per cent for the fiscal year 2019-2020 and a further decrease to -5.9 per cent in the 2020-2021 financial year.

The deputy minister highlighted a growth of 2.4 per cent during the six-month minibudget period, with an additional increase of 3.4 per cent observed in the 2022-2023 financial year. — TWA/

CBM to adjust interest rate on macroeconomics

THE Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM) will adjust the interest rates to manage the macro economy, Dr Lin Aung, Deputy Governor 2 of the CBM addressed at the 22nd SAC's press conference.

"The developed and developing countries have been controlling the interest rates to reduce the inflation from May 2022. Inflation is rising in the country. The consumer prices went up not because of the minimum wage increase and high demand, but because of Kyat depreciation in the forex market, high import value, widening trade deficit, foreign currency demand and increasing consumer price index. Higher interest rates tend to negatively affect the economic growth of the State," Deputy Governor 2 Dr Lin Aung emphasized.

The banking operations recovered in late October 2022. With a view to controlling inflation indirectly, the CBM raised the minimum reserve requirement ratio of local currency from 3 to 3.5 per cent in May 2023.

Furthermore, the banks also pay interest on excess reserve balances in October 2022 to facilitate banking operations. — TWA/EM

Corn prices rebound as deadline nears last week of Thailand's Form D benefits

WITH only one week remaining to export Myanmar's corn to Thailand under Form D customs tariff benefit, the corn price has rebounded, traders explained.

Thailand gives the goahead to corn imports under zero tariff (with Form-D), between 1 February and 31 August. However, Thailand imposed a maximum tax rate of 73 per cent on corn imports to protect the rights of their growers if the corn is imported during the corn season of Thailand. There is only one week remaining to enjoy that customs benefit.

Additionally, torrential rain on 7 August destroyed some road sections to Myawady, a major border point between Myanmar and Thailand. Therefore, landslides blocked the corn's trade route and repair works are being undertaken. As a result of this, the market was sluggish.

The prevailing prices of corn stand at K1,210-1,230 per viss in the domestic market while the FOB corn prices were US$290-310 per tonne, according to Yangon Region Chambers of Commerce and Industry (Bayintnaung Commodity Depot).

Myanmar conveys corn to China and Thailand through the border and also sends corn to China, India, Viet Nam and the Philippines by maritime shipMyanmar exported more than two million tonnes of corn to foreign trade in the 2022 corn season. The majority of them were sent to Thailand and the remaining went to China, India, the Philippines and Viet Nam.

More than two million tonnes of corn are expected

More than two million tonnes of corn are expected to be shipped to foreign trade partners in the 2023 corn season, said U Min Khaing, chair of the Myanmar Corn Industrial Association. Presently, corn is cultivated in Shan, Kachin, Kayah and Kayin states and Mandalay, Sagaing and Magway regions. Myanmar has three corn seasons- winter, summer and monsoon. ### Promote MSME growth through the "One Region-One Product" initiative

HE "One Region-One Product" scheme has emerged as a catalyst for multiple positive impacts including poverty alleviation, rural advancement, and the promotion of specialized production based on local resources. Focused on bolstering the Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs), this initiative seeks to invigorate production processes centred around indigenous raw materials, particularly those sourced from agriculture and livestock.

Key to the success of this strategy is the emphasis on small-scale industries equipped with manageable machinery. Bamboo products, rattan wares, earthenware, traditional textiles, weaving, iron and bronze crafts, and beverage production are exemplars of this approach, carving a niche within the domestic market. Despite their potential, these enterprises face challenges, struggling to contend with imported goods due to issues of quality, pricing, modernity, and production scale.

The socioeconomic transformation of rural communities is intricately linked to the proliferation of MSMEs. The "One Region-One Product" paradigm not only generates employment opportunities but also acts as a mechanism for curbing poverty. The growth of MSMEs in specific regions serves as a catalyst for improved livelihoods, simultaneously enhancing productivity and living standards.

Empowering these industries is essential. If adequately supported, their production capacities can surge, yielding high-quality goods and increased revenues. To meet this objective, it is envisaged that MSMEs should operate in every district across the country, each contributing at least one product within the framework of the scheme. This ambitious goal, considering the country's 120 districts, aims to cultivate a diverse array of over 120 qualified products for both local and international markets, with the potential to attract tourists and consumers is crucial. MSMEs, even those engaged in traditional fares like jaggery, tofu, and ethnic cuisine, can captivate consumers and travellers alike by maintaining exceptional quality standards. Business owners must adopt an innovative mindset to devise novel products that resonate effectively within the domestic market.

A persistent challenge for many MSMEs is the cost of raw materials and transportation. Sustaining these businesses necessitates collaborative efforts between local authorities and the Union government to facilitate access to loans, thereby galvanizing these enterprises. Concurrently, business owners must uphold their end of the bargain by diligently repaying debts to financial institutions, ensuring a continuous flow of funds for future ventures.

The socioeconomic transformation of rural communities is intricately linked to the proliferation of MSMEs. The "One Region-One Product" paradigm not only generates employment opportunities but also acts as a mechanism for curbing poverty. The growth of MSMEs in specific regions serves as a catalyst for improved livelihoods, simultaneously enhancing productivity and living standards.

In conclusion, the "One Region-One Product" initiative holds immense potential for fortifying the MSME sector. By channelling efforts toward harnessing local resources and cultivating distinctive products, this scheme becomes a pivotal driver of holistic socioeconomic progress. The dynamic interplay between MSMEs, regional products, and tourism presents an avenue through which both economic growth and community well-being can flourish.

Knowledge is power and in our modernized world, we increasingly count on globally and locally for memorizing. Knowledge is power suggests that having knowledge or information about something empowers an individual or gives them an advantage. It implies that acquiring knowledge can lead to greater opportunities, success, and the ability to make informed decisions. Knowledge provides individuals with the tools and understanding necessary to navigate various situations, solve problems, and make informed choices. It allows people to have a deeper understanding of the world, different perspectives, and the ability to critically analyze and evaluate information.

In many aspects of life, knowledge can really be empowering. For example, in education, gaining knowledge and skills can open doors to better career opportunities. In personal relationships, understanding and knowledge about oneself and others can lead to healthier and more fulfilling connections. In scientific research and innovation, knowledge enables progress and the development of new technologies and discoveries. However, it is important to note that knowledge alone may not be sufficient without the application of that knowledge or the development of other skills and qualities. It is the combination of knowledge, skills, and action that truly empowers individuals to make a difference and create positive change. Consequently, Knowledge Augmentation for Legal Affairs is the key important issue for us and supports organizational effectiveness. ### Bariatric surgery has long-term benefits in cancer prevention of females: Study

While prior population studies have established a correlation between body mass index (BMI) and cancer occurrence, the question of whether deliberate weight loss translates to diminished cancer risk remains less clear. This uncertainty stems from the challenges of achieving substantial, lasting weight loss across large populations.

NEW research after adding A NEW research after adding follow-up years, increased sample sizes and examining multiple surgical procedures has found that bariatric surgery is associated with lower all-cancer and obesity-related cancer incidence among females.

According to a new study published in Obesity, the flagship publication of The Obesity Society (TOS), female surgery patients had a considerably lower cancer mortality rate than non-surgical participants

Although population studies have established a positive association between body mass index and cancer incidence, less clear is whether the voluntary reduction in body weight leads to reduced cancer risk because significant and sustained weight loss in large populations is diffi-

However, because of the substantial and maintained weight loss following bariatric surgery, studies have reported reduced cancer incidence and lower cancer mortality in bariatric surgical patients compared with matched non-surgical subjects, according to the study's authors.

India's historic cut-price Moon mission set for touchdown

INDIA readied Wednesday to become the first nation to land a spacecraft on the Moon's south pole, days after a Russian probe crashed in the same region.

The latest attempted Moon landing is a historic moment for the world's most populous nation, as it rapidly closes in on milestones set by global space powers.

Chandrayaan-3, which means "Mooncraft" in Sanskrit, is scheduled to touch down shortly after 6:00 pm India time (1230 GMT) near the little-explored lunar south pole.

"India reaches for the Moon", The Times of India frontpage headline read Wednesday, with the hoped-for lunar landing dominating local news. "It's D-Day for Moon Mission", The Hindustan Times said.

A previous Indian effort failed in 2019, and the latest attempt comes just days after Russia's first Moon mission in almost 50 years, destined for the same region, crashed on the lunar surface.

But former Indian space chief K. Sivan said the latest photos transmitted back home by the lander gave every indication the final leg of the voyage would succeed.

"It is giving some encouragement that we will be able to achieve the landing mission without any problem," he told AFP on Monday.—AFP

NASA picks geology team for first crewed lunar landing mission

AMID the frenzied anticipation in India around its third lunar mission - Chandrayaan-3, American space agency NASA has chosen a geology team that will develop the surface science strategy for the first crewed lunar landing mission in more than 50 years, the agency informed through an official release.

For advancing scientific research and opening the door for extensive lunar exploration, NASA's Artemis III mission will send humans, including the first woman to set foot on the Moon, close to the lunar South Pole.

Dr Nicky Fox, NASA's Science Associate administrator, was quoted as saying in the release, "Science is one of the pillars of Artemis," adding, "This team will be responsible for leading the geology planning for humanity's first return to the lunar surface in more than 50 years, ensuring that we maximise the science return of Artemis and grow in our understanding of our nearest celestial neighbour." — ANI

"Our goal is that by the end of the summer season, the livestock are still alive... and the wolves too," OPPAL director Jeremie Moulin told AFP.

He co-founded the organization three years ago in a bid to help promote and improve cohabitation between wildlife and human activities, at a time when swelling wolf populations had emotions running high.

"I think this project helps enable dialogue," Moulin said.

Footballer Honda sets up tourney to help children play independently

FORMER Japan attacker Keisuke Honda has founded a new type of national football tournament for children aged 10 or under aimed at helping them think for themselves and play without direction from a coach on the bench.

The move by Honda, who is also active as an angel investor, comes as elementary school-level national tournaments in sports such as judo have been halted amid criticism of a win-at-all-costs mentality that has been a long-term problem in Japanese

junior sports

In the format promoted by Honda, children play four-onfour football on a futsal court to guarantee each child playing time. They also come up with their own strategies and substitutions

There have been no previous under-10 national football championships in Japan.

"The results aren't the most important thing for that age group," the 37-year-old Honda said. "But it means a lot if children play with their own strong desire to win."

More than 200 regional "4v4" tournaments have been scheduled around the country through end of November.

A total of 48 teams — 16 winners of the top-tier regionals and the top 32 teams based on points from matches — will qualify for the national championship in December.

As Honda aims to "support challengers," losing teams get to enter other tournaments as many times as they want.

'Losing Old Sanaa': historic city reels from Yemen war

DOAA al-Waseai spent many happy years working as a tour guide in the Old City of Yemen's capital Sanaa, showing foreigners its hidden hammams and markets teeming with silver and spices.

After nearly a decade of war, that life feels like a distant memory. The Old City itself — Waseai's childhood home — feels cut off from the world, its warrens of thousand-year-old rammed-earth buildings falling into disrepair.

"Tourism opened my eyes to my own culture," Waseai, 40, told AFP, reflecting on how she had gained a deeper appreciation for Yemeni clothing and food by explaining them to outsiders.

She once comfortably spoke English and German, but now her foreign language skills are wasting away, though she reckons it's just as well.

"There are no words to express our catastrophe — in English or German or even French."

A UNESCO World Heritage site for nearly four decades, the Old City has been classified as "in danger" since 2015, shortly after Saudi Arabia spearheaded a military intervention to prevent the complete collapse of Yemen's beleaguered government.

Inhabited without interruption for more than 2,500 years, the area's iconic mosques and burnt-brick tower-houses have faced both direct threats from air strikes and indirect threats associated with lack of upkeep.

As she waits impatiently for the war to end, Waseai has kept painstaking records of the Old City's decline, her spreadsheets listing collapsed homes and battered hotels. — AFP

Meta fights back over behavioural marketing ban in Norway

US tech giant Meta on Tuesday asked a Norwegian court to defer a ban on behavioural marketing based on users' personal information, which has landed it a heavy fine in the country.

Since 14 August, Meta has been incurring a fine of one million kroner ($97,000) per day of non-compliance under an order issued by the Norwegian data protection agency Datatilsynet.

The watchdog said Meta had not complied with a 14 July ban on sending Facebook and Instagram users targeted advertisements based on their personal data which the social media platform collects without their explicit consent.

"This is an unreasonable decision, which was not possible to conform to in the given timeframe," Meta's lawyer Christian Reusch told the court, quoted by Norwegian news agency NTB.

The group wants the ban suspended and pointed to a similar legal case in Ireland, where its European headquarters is based. In January, the Irish regulator — acting on behalf of the EU — slapped Meta with heavy fines totalling 390 million euros for breaching EU personal data laws on Facebook and Instagram.

On 1 August, the social media giant said it would ask users in the European Union, Norway, Iceland, Liechtenstein and Switzerland to give their consent before allowing targeted advertising on its networks. — AFP

Eurozone economic downturn deepens in August

THE eurozone economy is contracting at its fastest rate in three years as a steep decline in manufacturing begins to spread to services, a key survey said Wednesday.

Data from the HCOB Flash Eurozone purchasing managers' index (PMI) survey published by S&P Global fell to 47 in August from 48.6 in July. A figure below 50 indicates contraction.

The figure is the lowest since November 2020, when the world was thrust into an economically crippling shutdown because of the covid pandemic.

"Considering the PMI figures in our GDP nowcast leads us to the conclusion that the eurozone will shrink by 0.2 per cent in the third quarter," said Cyrus de la Rubia, chief economist at Hamburg Commercial Bank.

The data showed the eurozone service sector fell into decline in August, recording the first contraction in activity since last December.

The eurozone's woes have been inflamed by downturns in the European Union's biggest economies, France and Germany.

"In the manufacturing sector, Germany's firms are reducing their output at a much faster pace than the French ones. This will only fuel the discussion of Germany being the sick man of Europe," de la Rubia said.

Germany's "lacklustre" economy will likely stagnate again in the third quarter, the Bundesbank central bank said Monday, as the International Monetary Fund predicts it will be the only major advanced economy to shrink in 2023.

The dire PMI data comes as the European Central Bank (ECB) will decide next month whether to continue raising interest rates in the race to tame red-hot inflation. — AFP

US home sales cool as mortgage rates remain high

SALES of homes in the United States ticked down in July, according to industry data released Tuesday, as elevated mortgage rates and limited housing supply held buyers back.

The housing market in the world's biggest economy has been reeling as interest rates climbed, making home owners reluctant to put their properties up for sale — having earlier locked in lower rates on their mortgages.

Existing home sales edged down 2.2 per cent last month to an annual rate of 4.1 million, seasonally adjusted, said the National Association of Realtors (NAR).

The figure, which was below expectations, remains the lowest rate since January. Sales have fallen 16.6 per cent from a year ago, said the association.

"Two factors are driving current sales activity — inventory availability and mortgage rates," said NAR chief economist Lawrence Yun in a statement.

"Both have been unfavorable to buyers," he added.

Some grape pickers have suffered health problems as a result of the heat. PHOTO: AFP

GRAPE-PICKERS were out in French vineyards Tuesday bringing in this year's harvest in "torrid" conditions as temperatures shot past 40C in some areas of the country during a "heat dome" weather pattern that has brought misery to millions.

In Saint-Quentin-de-Baron in the Bordeaux region of southwest France, local winemakers have adapted the picking routines to take into account some of the hottest temperatures on record for this time of year.

Sebastien Jacquey, director of the Chateau de Sours, told AFP that shifts had been reduced to six hours a day, instead of eight, and that teams were starting at 7 am to avoid the suffocating heat and humidity of the wind-free afternoons.

Teams armed with secateurs and boxes were reminded of safety routines as they headed out Tuesday to the neat rows of vines, which are owned by Chinese billionaire Jack Ma.

"Remember to take a break at the end of a line, keep yourself hydrated, protect yourself with hats and sun cream, but also let someone know if you don't feel well," Jacquey said. — AFP

Ex-Opec president faces UK corruption charges

FORMER OPEC president Diezani Alison-Madueke has been charged with bribery offences relating to her time as Nigeria's oil minister, the UK National Crime Agency said on Tuesday.

Alison-Madueke has been on bail since first being arrested in London in October 2015. She will appear in court in the British capital on 2 October, the NCA said.

Soon after her arrest, her family's lawyer told AFP she would strongly contest corruption allegations that have dogged her during and after her time in former president Goodluck Jonathan's government.

She has been linked to a string of money laundering, bribery and asset recovery cases in Nigeria, as well as in Italy and  $the\ United\ States.$

In an interview with a Nigerian newspaper in November 2015, she was quoted as saying: "I challenge anyone to come forward with facts showing that I stole government or public money.

"I've never stolen Nigeria's money." Alison-Madueke, who was in office from 2010 to 2015, was the first woman to be oil minister in Nigeria and the first female president of the global oil cartel OPEC.

The head of the NCA's international corruption unit, Andy Kelly, said: "We suspect Diezani Alison-Madueke abused her power in Nigeria and accepted financial rewards for awarding multi-million-pound contracts."

Getir cuts over tenth of global workforce

TURKISH rapid grocery delivery firm Getir said Tuesday it was slashing over a tenth of its global workforce in a bid to stem losses and keep its foothold in parts of Europe and the United States.

The announcement follows Getir's retreat from France and decision to wind down operations in Italy, Spain and Portugal.

Getir said it was laving off 2,500 additional "couriers, warehouse and office workers", representing 11 percent of its remaining staff.

"We have decided to restructure our global organization in order to significantly increase our operational efficiency," the company said in a statement released

"We will implement this difficult decision... in full compliance with the laws of the countries in which we operate."

Founded in Istanbul in 2015, Getir won substantial financial backing from investors such as the California-based investment funds Sequoia Capital and Silver Lake as well as the Emirati sovereign wealth fund Mubadala.

Getir reached its zenith during the coronavirus pandemic, when restaurant and grocery deliveries boomed.

A self-proclaimed pioneer in ultra-fast grocery delivery model, it expanded to nine countries on three continents, entering the Spanish market towards the end of 2021.

But its rapid expansion never resulted in profits, and Getir has been downsizing for much of the past year.

Brazilian president calls for replacement of US dollar hegemony

Lula da Silva highlighted the need for an alternative to the US dollar in the international market. He proposed the development of a common currency specifically for cross-border trade within BRICS nations, while maintaining the integrity of national currencies.

BRAZILIAN President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on Tuesday called for creating a common trading currency for BRICS countries to counter US dollar hegemony.

Advocating the creation of a common currency for cross-border trade between BRICS nations without affecting national currencies, Lula da Silva said at the BRICS Business Forum Leaders' Dialogue that an alternative to the US dollar needs to be found in the international market.

The common currency would be used to facilitate trade between the emerging nations, he said. "We want BRICS to be a multilateral institution, not an exclusive club," Lula da Silva said. "We just want to organize ourselves."

In April, he proposed possibly creating a common regional

Also on Tuesday, the Brazilian president announced that his government is considering the possibility of using the Chinese yuan in trade with Argentina.

Zimbabweans vote in tense poll as president seeks new term

ZIMBABWEANS on Wednesday voted in closely-watched presidential and legislative elections after a campaign tainted by a crackdown on the opposition, fears of vote rigging and public anger at the economic crisis.

His main challenger is Nelson Chamisa, 45, who leads the yellow-coloured Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) party.

Casting his ballot in his home town of Kwekwe, central Zimbabwe, a confident Mnangagwa told journalists: "If I think I'm not going to take it, then I will be foolish."

"Everyone who contests should go into the race to win", he added, sporting his trademark multicoloured scard.

Seeking to resolve a political impasse, King Felipe VI received PP prime ministerial hopeful Alberto Nunez Feijoo at the Zarzuela Palace in Madrid. PHOTO: POOL/AFP impasse, Spain's King Felipe VI on Tuesday called on Alberto Nunez Feijoo to seek to form a new government, despite his conservative Popular Party not having a majority.

The PP garnered the most votes in an inconclusive election last month and the king called on Feijoo to try to form a government with the PP at the head of a coalition.

The Socialist president of parliament, Francina Armengol, told a news conference that

SEEKING to break a political the king had communicated "his decision to propose Alberto Nunez Feijoo as candidate to head the government."

> But the outcome remains uncertain as the early elections on 23 July left neither Feijoo's conservatives nor outgoing Socialist Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez with a clear path to a Armengol said nonetheless she would be contacting Feijoo in the coming hours to set a date for a parliamentary investiture debate. Both Sanchez and Feijoo had indicated after meeting earlier with the king that they would submit themselves to an investiture vote should the monarch designate them.

Earlier, Felipe, seeking to ascertain which party leader has the best chance of eventually putting together a coalition, also met Santiago Abascal, leader of the far-right Vox party.

The PP won the most votes in the poll but it is not clear if it can secure the 176 votes in parliament required to obtain an absolute majority in the 350seat chamber.

Should Feijoo fail, that would trigger a two-month countdown to determine if another majority can come together. Failing that the country will go back to the polls to try to break the political deadlock.

On the face of it, Feijoo will fall short as his PP has 137 parliamentary seats while potential allies Vox and two small regional parties only have 33 between them which, if pooled, would give a PP-led coalition only 172 votes, four short of the required majority. — AFP

Spain PM says football boss apology over kiss 'insufficient'

SPANISH Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez on Tuesday blasted as "insufficient" the apology given by Spain's football federation chief for kissing star player Jennifer Hermoso on the lips after Spain won the Women's World Cup.

Spanish Football Federation (RFEF) chief Luis Rubiales, 45, kissed Hermoso as he handed the Spanish team their gold medals after they beat England 1-0 in the final on Sunday in Sydney, provoking outrage in Spain.

He kissed other players on the cheek or embraced them.

"What we saw was an unacceptable gesture," Sanchez told a news conference when asked about the outcry over the unsolicited kiss.

"I also think the apologies given by Mr Rubiales are insufficient. And I even think that they are inappropriate, and that he must go further," added Sanchez, a Socialist politician whose government has pushed through tougher laws on sexual consent and harassment.

The RFEF announced later Tuesday that it would call an extraordinary general assembly on Friday "as a matter of urgency" to address the incident.

As the controversy over the kiss grew, Rubiales apologized on Monday in a video posted on social media.

"It was done without any ill intention in a moment of the highest exuberance. Here we saw it as natural and normal but outside it has caused a commotion. — AFP

PGA Tour chief confident of Saudi deal by December deadline

The PGA Tour generated shockwaves within the golfing world in June by announcing an unexpected collaboration with the Saudi backers of LIV Golf. This partnership aimed to bring an end to the sport's two-year internal conflict. PHOTO: AFP

PGA Tour chief executive Jay Monahan said Tuesday he is confident of meeting a 31 December deadline to hammer out details of the tour's merger with Saudi-backed LIV Golf.

Speaking ahead of this week's Tour Championship playoff finale in Atlanta, Monahan said he expected a deal for the new circuit to be in place by 1 January. The PGA Tour stunned world golf in June after announcing a shock agreement with the Saudi backers of LIV Golf aimed at ending the sport's two-year civil war.

However firm details of how the "new collectively owned, for-profit entity" that will see the PGA Tour, Europe's DP World Tour and LIV Golf merge have yet to be divulged.

Under the agreement signed by all sides in June, a 31 December deadline was set to finalize the details for the new circuit. Despite ongoing scepticism, Monahan told reporters on Tuesday there was no reason to believe the deadline would not be met.

"As I sit here today, I'm confident we will reach an agreement that achieves a positive outcome for the PGA Tour and our fans - I see it and I'm certain of it," Monahan said.

"We have put an end to the divisive and distracting litigation, we have safeguards that are in place to put the PGA Tour in a position to control our future." Asked if he believed a deal would be in place by January 1, Monahan replied: "We're confident that we're going to reach a positive outcome for the PGA Tour...I don't have any reason to think that we won't be successful." Monahan refused to be drawn on whether he believed the rebel LIV Golf circuit had a viable long-term future. — AFP

PSM Makassar defeat Yangon United in Play-off stage of AFC Cup Qualifier

THE 2023-2024 season AFC Cup ASEAN Zone Qualifier Play-off matches continued on 23 August, and the Yangon team lost an away match against PSM Makassar and failed to qualify.

In the play-off stage, Indonesian club PSM Makassar crushed Myanmar club Yangon United by four goals to nil, while Cambodian club Phnom Penh Crown beat Singaporean club Tampanis Rovers by 3:2.

Team Yangon failed to qualify for the final round due to the big loss. As core players could not join Yangon United, some changes were made to the starting line-up.

The Makassar team pressed Yangon United from the start, and Edison scored the opening goal in the sixth minute. After conceding a goal, the Yangon team tried to equalize, but only the Makassar team scored another goal. In the 35 minute, Emerton added a second goal and led by two goals at the end of the first half.

At the beginning of the second half, the Makassar team led the game and Yakot in the 51 minute and Addison scored more goals in the 61 minute to win by four goals.

The Yangon team previously qualified for the play-off stage by defeating Brunei club DPMM at home by 2-1, but lost to the Makassar team and failed to advance to the final round of the tournament. — Ko Nyi Lay/KZL defence exercise in six years.

The 20-minute drill, which began at 2:00 pm (0500 GMT), was aimed at "preparing for a quick evacuation in the event of an air raid attack such as North Korea's missile provocations", Seoul's interior ministry said.

As sirens went off across South Korea, pedestrians were instructed to move to nearby shelters or underground facilities. There are around 17,000 designated shelters across the country.

In regions closer to nuclear-armed North Korea, the government prepared a more intense drill, with chemical, biological and radiological training, including instructions for putting on a gas mask and using emergency food rations.

Participation in the drill was not mandatory, but those who took part said the training was important for raising awareness about the security situation on the Korean peninsula. — AFP

Helicopters, ziplining commandos rescue eight from Pakistan cable car

MILITARY helicopters and ziplining commandos rescued eight people, including six schoolboys, who were trapped for hours on Tuesday in a stricken cable car high above a remote Pakistani valley.

The daring rescue began with a helicopter plucking a child to safety after almost 12 hours, but it was forced back to base as bad weather closed in and night fell. Then, commandos from Pakistan's Special Service Group (SSG) — known as the Maroon Berets — used the cable keeping the gondola from plunging into the valley as a zipline to rescue the rest of those stranded. "I thought it was my last day and I will be no more," one of the rescued boys, Attaullah Shah, told AFP.
