Implementation of agreements during goodwill visit of Vice-President of India coordinated

YANGON, 29 Nov— A coordination meeting on implementation of agreements during the goodwill visit of the Vice-President of the Republic of India to Myanmar was held at Zeyathiri Beikman meeting hall on Konmyinthar this evening, with an address by Prime Minister General Khin Nyunt.

Also present were Secretary-1 of the State Peace and Development Council Lt-Gen Soe Win, Secretary-2

Lt-Gen Thein Sein, the ministers, the deputy ministers, officials of the State Peace and Development Council Office, departmental heads and officials.

Prime Minister General Khin Nyunt delivered an address. He said the meeting was to coordinate the discussions and matters to be implemented under the bilateral agreements during the goodwill visit of Vice-President of the Republic of India Mr Bhairon Singh Shekhawat to Myanmar.

He said that at the invitation of Vice-Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Vice-Senior General Maung Aye, Vice-President of the Republic of India Mr Bhairon Singh Shekhawat paid a goodwill visit to Myanmar from 2 to 5 November 2003. Myanmar borders India and they are neighbouring countries maintaining existing friendly relations. Border trade between the two countries has developed and both countries have good traditions of mutual cooperation, he said.

He said there were ministerial level visits between the two countries. The goodwill visit of the Vice-President of the Republic of India was the first one under present government and it was a significant development, he added.

He said the visit was very successful and better foundations were laid down for promotion of bilateral cooperation in economic, trade, education, health, science and technology and cultural exchange sectors. In 2003 seven bilateral agreements were signed and they were important efforts for bilateral cooperation.

Now Myanmar and India are implementing major projects such as Kaladan River communication project through land and water, Myanmar-India-Thailand communication road construction project, Reed-Tiddim, Reed-Falam Road upgrading project and offshore natural gas production project, he said.

Moreover, Myanmar and India are working together in education, science and technology and human resources development sectors and the visit of the Vice-President of the Republic of India paved the way for better prospects in bilateral cooperation, he added.

He urged all the ministries concerned to hold discussions at the meeting for successful implementation of the agreements reached during the goodwill visit of the Vice-President of the Republic of India and to reveal future prospects in bilateral cooperation.

Next, Minister for Foreign Affairs U Win Aung reported on future tasks to be implemented such as development of infrastructures, trade, financial and investment matters, immigration, bilateral economic, trade, education, culture and technical cooperation, bilateral relations, regional cooperation, international relations and exchange of visits between the two countries.

The ministers and the deputy ministers also reported on the tasks to be undertaken by the respective ministries.

The Prime Minister took part in the discussions and then the meeting came to a close.

Myanmar stands ready to cooperate with all international community that wish her well

The Government of the Union of Myanmar has been taking systematic measures in raising, maintaining and using the public finance after laying down firm financial policies and monetary policies for successful realization of political, social and economic objectives of the State.

This being the case, significant progress has been made in political, social and economic sectors. The national economic life is meeting with success owing to the united efforts of the Government and the people.

At such a time, some Western powers, opposed the wishes of 52 million Myanmar people, made an unjust accusation on Myanmar in order to get Myanmar people into trouble. Recently, the United States Department of Treasury issued the announcement dated on 19 November 2003 designating Myanmar and two Myanmar private banks to be of "primary money laundering concern" and proposing counter-measures be taken under section 133 of the USA PATRIOT ACT.

As regards the matter, the Ministry of Finance and Revenue of the Union of Myanmar issued a press release on the announcement of the United States Department of the Treasury concerning Myanmar on 28 November 2003.

The announcement of the United States Department of Treasury was an act done without considering the real situations properly. Far from helping Myanmar in its anti-money laundering drive, making a subjective assessment of Myanmar anti-money laundering efforts is an ill-considered move.

Myanmar enacted an anti-money laundering law in June 2002. Even the United States Department of the Treasury has acknowledged this important step. Following the promulgation of the law, the Myanmar Government has been taking steps for its implementation. Myanmar has been cooperating and holding discussions with international bodies including the United Nations.

Turning a blind eye to constructive activities of Myanmar, calling on its members to impose additional countermeasures against Myanmar and for the US to take follow up action based on the subjective assessment are acts that do not serve anyone's interest.

Myanmar, notwithstanding the economic sanctions and undue pressure imposed by the United States and its partners, has already initiated firm measures to overcome the twin problems of narcotic drugs and money-laundering. Myanmar remains committed to taking follow up measures to implement the anti-money laundering law. Myanmar stands ready to cooperate with all the international community that wish us well and are willing to lend a hand.

Grimmest month of war for coalition forces in Iraq

WASHINGTON, 29 Nov—November is already the bloodiest month of the war for coalition forces since the invasion of Iraq last March.

Some 95 coalition troops died this month—76 Americans, 17 Italians, a British and a Spaniard. The worst previous full month of the war was April, when 73 US and six British troops were killed.

The grim war tally surfaced as retired Lt Gen Jay Garner, who first headed the occupation effort, admitted that the biggest US mistake in Iraq was putting too few troops in Baghdad. He also chided his successor for firing the Iraqi Army instead of hiring it to rebuild the country.

"If we did it over again, we probably would have put more dismounted infantrymen in Baghdad and maybe more troops there," said Garner, who lasted as Iraq's civilian administrator only from April 21 to May 12, when Paul Bremer took over.

Garner blamed Bremer for hurting Iraq's reconstruction by disbanding the Iraqi Army in a move that increased the ranks of unemployed Iraqis, making them easy prey for Baathists loyal to Saddam Hussein to recruit them as insurgents.

"I think, yeah, it was a mistake. We planned on, at the end of the war, bringing the Iraqi Army back and using them in reconstruction," Garner said in a BBC Radio interview yesterday. "We're talking about around a million or more people among 2 million people that are suffering because the head of the household's out of work."

Garner wanted to keep as many as 400,000 Iraqi soldiers on board for work details.

"We had budgeted to pay the Iraqi Army, but part of our plan said, you know, they will surrender like they did in the first Gulf War, but hell, they didn't surrender, they just evaporated," he said.

An aide to Bremer shot back, Jay Garner has not been here since June, and doesn't really know all that's been done."

Garner blamed himself for not communicating better with the Iraqis, and said, in hindsight, he would have been armed with giant power transformers to get the lights back on quicker. On the ground yesterday, frustrated US troops, meanwhile, opted to use Iraqi tactics, arresting the wife and daughter of top Saddam deputy Izzat Ibrahim al-Douri to try to coax the suspected mastermind of anti-US attacks to give up.—Internet

Two Iraqi sisters found dead

BAGDAD, 29 Nov—The murder occurred in Baquba, about 60km northeast of Baghdad.

Bodies of two young Iraqi sisters have been discovered by US troops near Baquba, some 60km (35 miles) north of Baghdad, according to the occupation force.

A US military source said on Friday that they informed Iraqi police and handed over the bodies. The source said both deaths appear to be civil murder cases.

However, the brother of the girls had earlier said that US troops at Ibn Firas airport, 7km (4 miles) from Baquba, shot Fatima and Azra, 15 and 12, on Thursday at midday as they were collecting wood from a fieldsome 30m away.

"Azra died on the spot and my other sister later died from her wounds," said 18-year-old Qusay.

Policeman Hussein Ali said US forces handed one of the girls' bodies over to the police "arguing that she had a gun in her possession."

Police searched the girls' home, "without finding anything illegal," Ali added.—Internet

World luxury cars launch "Made in China" competition

BEIJING, 29 Nov — The new BMW 5 series of sedans, China's most luxurious domestically-made autos so far, debuted here Thursday, marking the heated competition among world-level luxury car manufacturers in a "Made in China" campaign.

"The new 5 series means that we have brought the most advanced product to Chinese customers," said Helmut Panke, chairman of the board of management of the Germany-based BMW Group.

The joint venture between BMW and its Chinese partner Brilliance Auto plans to gradually realize a 40 per cent localization rate.

Experts say that, as the buying power of Chinese people rises, luxury cars have begun to enter China. And their "made in China" campaign indicates fiercer competition.

Earlier this month, General Motors announced it will introduce its luxury Cadillac to China, with some produced in Shanghai. This will be the first time that Cadillacs have been produced outside the United States.—MNA/Xinhua

Nepal to provide free treatment to HIV-infected mothers

KATHMANDU, 29 Nov—The Nepali Government is going to provide free treatment to HIV-infected pregnant women and newborn babies from next month, according to a government official.

The treatment programme, called Prevention of Mother to Child Treatment, will begin from the Maternity Hospital in Kathmandu on December 1, coinciding with the World AIDS Day. The Kathmandu Post newspaper reported here quoting R. P. Shrestha, director of the state-run National Centre for AIDS and Sexually-transmitted Diseases Control.

"The free treatment programme is the priority of the government, and any pregnant woman infected with HIV will be given the essential drugs without charge," Shrestha said.

The treatment will be provided to the infected mothers and later to their newborn babies for six months, he noted, adding, "Even if a treated mother give birth to a HIV positive child, the syrup medicine can effectively control the disease."

The programme will be gradually expanded to the regional and zonal hospitals with maternity facilities and trained staff, he said. More than 60,000 people in Nepal have contracted HIV and nearly 3,000 have full-blown AIDS. Experts warned that if the fast-spreading epidemic is not controlled, the disease will affect 10 per cent of Nepal's most economically active population by 2010.—MNA/Xinhua

Former Iraqi military commander dies when questioned by US forces

BAGHDAD, 29 Nov—A former Iraqi military commander died when he was questioned by an American soldier, the US military said in a statement Thursday.

The statement, issued from the western town of al-Qaim, said Major-General Abed Hamed Mowhoush appeared to die of natural causes Wednesday.

It said the former general suddenly felt uncomfortable and lost consciousness when he was under interrogation, and the soldier questioning him conducted a rescue operation. Five minutes later, a surgeon came and continued advanced cardiac life support techniques which proved ineffective.

The on-site surgeon said Mowhoush "died of natural causes".

Coalition forces were cooperating with local tribal and religious leaders to properly treat and transfer the body while the cause of his death was under investigation, added the statement. Mowhoush, a member of the Sunni tribe of Mahalawi, used to be a commander in the former Iraqi air defence force which was among the units dissolved by the US military in May.—MNA/Xinhua

Lula wants pacifists and eco tourists in Brazil

BRASILIA (Brazil), 29 Nov — President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva said on Thursday he wanted pacifists and environmentalists to visit Brazil to preserve its rain forests.

During the opening of the World Tourism Forum for Peace and Sustainable Development being held in Brazilia, Lula urged responsible travellers to visit Brazil.

"There is nothing better than knowing that the person taking the plane is a pacifist and an environmentalist and, combining the two, he becomes more than a tourist, he becomes a good tourist," Lula said in an opening speech.

Tourism in Brazil is paltry considering the vast size of the country — about the same as continental United States — and the fact that it is home to the world's largest tropical forest, the Amazon, which attracts relatively few tourists. Lula wants to sharply boost so-called 'eco-tourism' to Brazil.

Most foreigners visit Brazil to enjoy the revelry of its yearly Carnival in the streets of Rio de Janeiro and sit on sandy beaches in the northeast.—MNA/Reuters

US, Iraq occupation criticised in army report

BAGHDAD, 29 Nov — American military commanders did not impose curfews, halt looting or order Iraqis back to work after Saddam Hussein's regime fell because US policymakers were reluctant to declare American troops an occupying force, according to an internal Army review.

As a result, the Bush administration's first steps at reconstruction in Iraq were severely hampered, creating a power vacuum that others quickly moved to fill, and a growing mistrust on the part of ordinary Iraqis, the report said.

Since those first days, the US effort in Iraq has been hampered by a growing insurgency with persistent and deadly attacks against American forces.

The review, a postwar self-evaluation by the 3rd Infantry Division (Mechanized), said the political decision to call the US forces that arrived in Baghdad "liberators" instead of "occupying forces" left the division's officers uncertain about their legal authority in postwar Baghdad and other cities.

Under international law, the report says, the troops were an occupation force and had both rights and responsibilities.

"Because of the refusal to acknowledge occupier status, commanders did not initially take measures available to occupying powers, such as imposing curfews, directing civilians to return to work, and controlling the local governments and populace.

"The failure to act after we displaced the regime created a power vacuum, which others immediately tried to fill," said the report.

A spokesman for the 3rd Infantry Division, Major Darryl Wright, described the report, marked "For Official Use Only", as a candid effort to find ways to improve the division the next time it is called to fight.

It reflects multiple, sometimes disparate, points of view from officers and troops who took part in the fighting, he said.

It mirrors recent criticisms by Jay Garner, the retired American general who briefly headed the first occupation government in Iraq.

He said in a BBC interview that the military did not act quickly enough to restore law and order and key services in Baghdad, and should have tried harder to win support from the Iraqi people.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 3rd Infantry Division troops fought in Iraq, and 44 were killed in action, Maj Wright said. The division, along with the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force, comprised the bulk of the ground advance north from Kuwait to Baghdad during late March and early April.

In the section regarding legal matters facing the division, the report said unidentified "higher officials" constrained the occupation effort and did not prepare for the fall of Saddam's government.

"Despite the virtual certainty that the military would accomplish the regime change, there was no plan for oversight and reconstruction, even after the division arrived in Baghdad," the report said.

"State, Defence, and other relevant agencies must do a better and timelier job planning occupation governance and standing up a new Iraqi government."

US funds Iraqi TV network in battle against 'hostile' Arab news stations

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) One of the chief US weapons in the battle to win Iraqi hearts and minds is Al-Iraqiya, a Pentagon-funded TV station with an optimistic, pro-American slant.

Announcers on Al-Iraqiya, decry the guerrillas attacking US military and Iraqi civilian targets as "terrorists."

Problem is, those Iraqis fortunate enough to have satellite dishes consider Al-Iraqiya stodgy and slow on breaking news. They prefer Al-Jazeera and Al-Arabiya, the flashy Gulf-based stations where anti-American fighters are branded "resisters."

Recently, condemnation has focused on the Qatar- and Dubai-based networks. The US-appointed Iraqi Governing Council shut down Saudi-owned Al-Arabiya for "inciting murder" by broadcasting a voice said to belong to Saddam Hussein. The State Department approved of the temporary closure but groups advocating press freedom were enraged by it.

Americans and their allies also show little love for Al-Jazeera.

Defence Secretary Donald H Rumsfeld has branded both networks "violently anti-coalition." He said a separate, US-owned satellite station would begin broadcasting next month, aiming to capture Arab viewers from the Gulf stations.

But Al-Iraqiya has critics, too. Many see it as a pawn of the US-led occupation authorities.

"The whole country is under the control of the Americans, not just Al-Iraqiya," complained one man, a Baghdad candy vendor who declined to give his name. An editor at the station, Kareem Hammadi, said he accentuates positive news "for the good of the Iraqi people."

Iraq's oil pipelines under attack

Resistance forces repeatedly hitting vulnerable spots; cost to rebuild rises

KIRKUK, 29 Nov — Three successive explosions rattled the windows at the Northern Oil Co on a recent afternoon. Within minutes, several US contractors and Iraqi executives rushed out to start assessing the damage from yet another attack on Iraq's oil pipelines.

Insurgents have been striking almost weekly against a labyrinth of pumping stations and hundreds of miles of pipeline that snakes through the desolate plains and rugged hills of northern Iraq, bearing crude oil exports to the Turkish port city of Ceyhan. The attacks have all but shut down the flow of 850,000 barrels of exported crude that coursed through Kirkuk's hub of pipelines each day before the war, US and Iraqi officials said.

Describing the vulnerability of the pipeline, one insurgent, Ali, a 32-year-old former Iraqi army sergeant turned resistance fighter, recently put it this way: "The truth is, there is very little they can do to stop us. We can hit them every day if we want to."

The sabotage also has robbed the US-led occupation of revenues that it hoped would defray the vast cost of rebuilding postwar Iraq. As if to highlight the campaign against the petroleum industry, insurgents fired rockets at the Oil Ministry in Baghdad last week from a donkey cart.

Washington's reconstruction strategy counts on an expected $50 billion in oil export revenue for Iraq over the next three years, but the sabotage, combined with extensive damage to infrastructure from neglect and looting, means the earnings are likely to fall far short of US predictions.

The pipelines are the focal point of a dangerous cops-and-robbers drama involving anti-US insurgents and the US and Iraqi forces trying to hunt them down. — Internet

Mexico sees lowest foreign direct investment in seven years

MEXICO CITY, 29 Nov — Foreign direct investment (FDI) in Mexico totalled about 8 billion US dollars during the first nine months of 2003, the lowest in seven years, the Central Bank said on Thursday.

The amount was lower than the 9.62 billion dollars for the same period in 2002. Nearly half of the investment this year went to the manufacturing sector 49.8 per cent, followed by financial services 26.3 per cent, trade (10.6 per cent) and transportation and communications 5.3 per cent.

The investment mainly came from the United States 63.8 per cent, Britain 12.2 per cent, the Netherlands 5 per cent, Germany 3.7 per cent and France 3.7 per cent.

In the January-September period, portfolio foreign investment reached 209 million dollars as 778 million dollars was drawn from the stock market and 987 million dollars entered it.

The third quarter of the year also saw a reduction of 121 million dollars in deficit in the balance of payments, thanks to a cut in the public-sector debt and the inflow of FDI.

MSF calls for adaptation of "AIDS" treatment to poor countries

NAIROBI, 29 Nov — Medicines Sans Frontiers (MSF or doctors without borders), an international medical humanitarian organization, has called for adaptation of AIDS treatment to poor countries.

Speaking at a new conference here on Thursday, Morten Rostrup, president of the international council of the MSF, said that millions of people with AIDS could benefit from life-saving antiretroviral medicines, but it will only happen if treatment models become much better adapted to the real-life situation of developing countries.

"Unless the world changes its approach to treating AIDS, the millions of people who need treatment are unlikely to gain access to it," he warned.

Rostrup said five to six million people infected with HIV in the developing countries need access to antiretroviral therapy to survive. However, he said only 400,000 are receiving this life-saving treatment.

"Adaptation means fewer pills per day, fewer lab tests and free treatment, dispensed in the communities where people live, that is at district facilities and at community health posts," Rostrup said.

The MSF has estimated that a target price of 50-70 US dollars for annual treatment per person is achievable if there is strong political commitment by governments.

"Treatment must be adapted and simplified and it must be free if we are going to combat the epidemic. There has been dramatic reduction in antiretroviral drugs due to generic competition," Rostrup emphasized.

US soldier killed in attack on Iraq base

BAGHDAD, 29 Nov — An American soldier died when guerrillas shelled a military base in the northern city of Mosul on Friday.

On Friday, Sen Hillary Rodham Clinton and Sen Jack Reed of Rhode Island arrived in Baghdad.

The former first lady and Reed, both Democrats, have been critical of the Bush administration's handling of postwar operations in both countries.

In Baghdad, an explosion slightly damaged a highway overpass, and the military said that two US soldiers died in separate incidents in central and northern Iraq.

One soldier died on Thanksgiving from a gunshot wound inside the heavily fortified base in Ramadi, 60 miles west of Baghdad. It was not immediately clear how the shooting occurred, a military statement said.

Another soldier died Friday when four mortar shells slammed a 101st Airborne Division base in Mosul. Attacks by Iraqi insurgents on US troops in Mosul have increased in recent weeks.

More than 60 US troops were killed in hostile action in November, more than any other month since the end of major combat in Iraq on 1 May.

Since operations began, nearly 300 US service members have died from hostile action. Another 136 have died from accidents and other causes.

A total of 75 soldiers from allied nations also have died, bringing total coalition deaths to more than 500. Several civilians working for the US military have also been killed. — Internet

Austria wants talks with EU on truck traffic

BERLIN, 29 Nov — Austria said on Thursday it was unhappy with a draft European Union decision that could open up its Alpine roads to more heavy truck traffic and wanted further talks on how to solve the environmentally sensitive issue.

Speaking in Berlin, Chancellor Wolfgang Schuessel said Austria was "deeply disappointed" by a decision this week by EU Government and European Parliament representatives that could ease curbs on traffic Austria has had since joining the bloc.

"This is as important to us as those issues that have been important to Germany in recent days," Schuessel said, referring to Berlin's effort to block the European Union from taking disciplinary action over a soaring budget deficit.

Austria is the only EU country to have the legal right to limit truck traffic in a bloc founded on the principles of free movement of goods and people. It negotiated the privilege, in a bid to curb pollution, when joining the club in 1995.

But in talks late on Tuesday, representatives of EU governments and the European Parliament curbed that right by saying newer, cleaner lorries would no longer need to apply for "ecopoints" — the special truck transit permit.

"I request, and I hope to have received a positive echo from (German Chancellor) Gerhard Schroeder, that we find a way to price Alpine transit routes in comparable ways," Schuessel said.

"It does not make any sense that non-EU member Switzerland is able to charge much higher tariffs, which displace traffic.

We want equality and are ready to invest a lot ourselves from our revenues so that the railway link through the Brenner (pass) can be finished as quickly as possible," he said.

The Brenner Pass railway link is one of a number of transport projects that EU leaders are due to discuss funding at a summit in Brussels in two weeks as part of plans to boost the bloc's economy.

To take effect, this week's decision must be ratified by both Parliament and by a formal meeting of the EU's Council of Ministers.

Governments, including US, Russia and China, approve treaty to remove battlefield explosives

GENEVA, 29 Nov — World governments approved a treaty Friday that would require countries to clean up unexploded mines and other munitions in territories they control after a war.

Ambassadors from 92 nations, including the United States, Russia and China, agreed to the language in the accord. It is the first disarmament treaty accepted by the Bush administration.

Under the treaty, which still has to be ratified by each individual government, nations promise to remove or destroy all unexploded munitions, including unexploded enemy ordnance, in territory they control after a conflict.

Governments also have agreed "without delay after the cessation of hostilities" to give the United Nations and aid groups information to help locate and clear explosives.

"The treaty is an important recognition that states are responsible for eliminating this serious threat to civilians in the aftermath of war," said Jacques Forster, vice president of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Until now, nations have been under no obligation to clear munitions, leaving ordinary people to face the daily risk of being killed or maimed in former war zones, Forster said.

Some delegations to the negotiations have expressed concern that the agreement lacks the authority to be enforced. "Some fundamental articles have too many qualifiers," said Swedish representative Anneli Lindahl Kenny.

There are no precise figures about the amount of unexploded weapons around the world, but in Iraq alone US officials have said there are up to 1 million tons of that will take years to remove. The new treaty was negotiated in less than a year and is the first agreement produced under the conventional weapons accord since 1996.

The treaty will be sent to UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan and then be open for signing and ratification by governments.

It will come into force and become legally binding once 20 governments have ratified it.

French Senate halves contested tobacco tax hike

PARIS, 29 Nov — The French Senate approved a measure late on Wednesday halving a planned increase in cigarette prices, in an attempt to appease tobaccoists fuming over the second sharp price hike in three months.

The amendment to the draft 2004 budget, submitted by Budget Minister Alain Lambert and adopted by France's Upper House of Parliament, reduces the price rise due in January to 8-10 per cent from 20 per cent. The law will now go back to the Lower House, where Lambert's conservative government has a large majority, for a fresh vote scheduled in mid-December.

Thousands of angry French tobacco shop owners demonstrated in Paris on Monday against the planned 20 per cent increase, which they say could force them out of business. About a third of adults smoke in France.

But Prime Minister Jean-Pierre Raffarin insisted as recently as Sunday the rise would go ahead — pushing the price of a pack of cigarettes above the five euro (6 US dollars) mark. A tax hike in October raised the cost of a top brand to 4.60 euros from 3.90.

Government officials had argued higher prices would help an anti-cancer campaign as well as plugging a deficit in public healthcare finances.

The budget amendment substitutes a rise in one tobacco tax with a rise in another, keeping state revenues intact but lessening the rise in retail prices.

Opposition politicians accused the government of caving in to pressure from France's 34,000 tobacco shop owners, who gained sympathy and wide media attention after the last price hike was followed by a wave of burglaries.

Thieves even resorted to ram-raiding — smashing cars into shop fronts, a technique usually reserved for jewellery stores.

In a radio interview, junior Commerce Minister Renaud Dutreil said confused interpretations of the amendment had created the impression the government had backtracked.

"The government," he said, "does not bow to pressure from the street."

- * Oppose those relying on external elements, acting as stooges, holding negative views
- * Oppose those trying to jeopardize stability of the State and progress of the nation
- * Oppose foreign nations interfering in internal affairs of the State
- * Crush all internal and external destructive elements as the common enemy

Efficient use of electricity

- * Use daylight as the main source of light
- * Use the least possible amount of electricity only if there is not enough natural light
- * Use the least possible amount of electricity required in production and service enterprises
- * Preventing waste of electricity benefits the user and others

There are about 500,000 households using electricity in Yangon. Thus, saving a four-foot fluorescent lamp every day by each household amounts to saving power that is equal to the capacity a 20-megawatt power station can supply.

Efficient use of fuel

- * Saving one gallon of fuel per car per month will save the nation one US dollar
- * Thus, a total of 455,822 cars in Myanmar can save US$ 5.5 million in a year
- * The amount, US $ 5.5 million, can build a major bridge across Ayeyawady River

All this needs to be known

- * Do not be frightened whenever intimidated
- * Do not be bolstered whenever flattered

WORLD AIDS DAY, 1st DECEMBER, 2003 — “Live and Let Live”

Dr. Min Thwe - Department of Health

December is a transition month between the two adjacent years. It is also a peculiar month for the organizations and agencies around the world that tackle the threat of AIDS, since World AIDS Day falls on the first day of December. Various types and forms of awareness raising activities are conducted not only on that day but also the whole week as World AIDS Campaign.

According to the statistics released by WHO/UNAIDS, at the end of December 2002, it is estimated that there were about 42 million of people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHAs) all over the world. Among them, 19.2 million were women and 3.2 million were children under 15 years of age. The number of newly HIV-infected individuals in the 2002 alone was about 5 million, of which 2 million were women and 0.8 million were children under 15 years. The number of deaths due to AIDS in 2002 was about 3.1 million, of which 1.2 million were women and 0.61 million were children under 15 years. In Myanmar, the Ministry of Health and UNAIDS have jointly estimated the total number of PLWHA in 2002. It was estimated to be about 177,000 PLWHA in Myanmar.

With the initiation of World Health Organization (WHO) in 1988, “World AIDS Day” (WAD) commemorations have been conducted in the countries around the world to raise the HIV/AIDS related awareness among the societal members and thereby to make them to participate more in prevention and control efforts.

The slogan of the World AIDS Day 2003 is “အေဒီအိုင်ဒီအက်စ်ရောဂါကြွေ့လျား၊ ကြည့်ဖြူစာနာလက်တွဲကူ” in Myanmar and “Live and Let Live” in English, with the theme of stigma and discrimination. Since World AIDS Campaign for this year is the second and last year of a two-year campaign, the slogan and the theme are the same as that of last year. The campaigns uses two-phase approach: to raise the broad awareness related to stigma and discrimination that occurred among those who are infected and affected by HIV/AIDS in the first year (2002), and then to undertake the action-driven measures to reduce and eliminate stigma and discrimination against these individuals in the second year (2003).

One may curious to know why stigma and discrimination usually occurred to persons infected and affected by HIV/AIDS. It is because of fear; the fear of getting HIV. Why getting HIV is so much afraid of? Because, people realize that there is no cure for HIV, and no preventive vaccine available. Besides, people believe that a person with HIV infection has to suffer a chronic course of illness before death. Moreover, there is a socio-cultural issue associated with HIV infection. HIV transmits mainly due to behaviors that are not socially acceptable in many countries: sexual promiscuity and drug use. Sexual promiscuity leads to unprotected sexual exposure and drug use leads to exposure with unclean needles and syringes. Thus the perceived idea is “HIV infects only bad people”, in other words, “only bad people got HIV”. No one wants to be considered as bad-people or socially unacceptable person. These factors create fear: the fear that leads to Stigma and Discrimination against those who are infected and affected.

From the infected or affected person's perspectives, there are two kinds of Stigma— internalized stigma. HIV infected person may be ashamed of being infected since many people believe that HIV was the consequence of bad behaviour. HIV infected person may also be afraid of being discriminated against on account of the illness. This kind of feeling or fear is known as “perceived” stigma. Besides, HIV infected person or its family members may have personally experienced from discrimination. This kind of stigma that results from actual experiences of being discriminated against is known as “enacted” stigma.

From the other's perspectives, there is a vicious cycle of prejudice (thought), stigma (attitude), and discrimination (act) that leads to harmful consequences to people infected and affected by HIV/AIDS. People might think that “it is the punishment by the god”, “one is infected because of its own fault”, and “people die anyway, why care so much”. The attitude towards PLWHAs could be that “PLWHA deserve it”, “we have to spend a lot of money in taking care of PLWHAs”, and “at least it could be one way of reducing population growth”. The discriminatory act that could happen against PLWHAs and their family members are such that they could be denied from accessing to care and support services including medical care services. The children could also be refused from enrolling into the school or attending the school or being removed from the school. A worker might be refused to employ or be removed from the job because of their HIV status.

In fact, stigma and discrimination are major barriers in prevention and control of the infection, and also barriers in provision of care and support to those infected and affected. The internalization or internalized stigma can have powerful psychological consequences that may lead to depression, despair and loss of self-esteem among persons infected and affected. This in turn can prevent them from accessing health care information and services or participating in prevention and care initiatives. Prejudice and stigma towards HIV positive persons, AIDS patients and family members can easily lead to discriminatory act against persons infected and affected by HIV. This can further lead to a condition where people afraid to find out their HIV status or refuse to accept their HIV status or ignore the fact that they need to disclose their HIV status if there is risk of HIV transmission exists. An infected person could continue unsafe behaviours because of fear of raising suspicion about their HIV positive status. These facts indicate that stigma and discrimination can undermine the prevention and control efforts and fuel the HIV/AIDS epidemic in many parts of the world.

A notable quote from one of UNAIDS's document for World AIDS Campaign 2002-3 states that, “AIDS attacks the body, prejudice attacks the spirit, one is caused by a virus, one is caused by ignorance, both can kill”. This reflects the relevance of the slogan used for a two-year campaign: Live and let live. By the word “live”, it is meant for the empowerment of PLWHA and their families to believe in better future, to send a positive signal highlighting the importance of living life fully, and to emphasize a powerful will to live, despite HIV infection. By “let live”, it is meant to send a message to ensure access to care for PLWHA, a call to question everybody's daily thinking and behaviour, and a call to society worldwide for greater integration of and compassion for PLWHA.

Countries around the world have been dealing with the stigma and discrimination related to HIV/AIDS in various ways and forms. Some of the activities that can be easily implemented are as follows.

Strengthened efforts should be made so as to reduce myths and misconceptions about HIV/AIDS and fighting the ignorance. There is a continued need to let people know about basic facts of HIV transmission, non-transmission, prevention, care and support.

Involvement of PLWHAs is central to eliminating stigma and discrimination, PLWHAs and their family members should be encouraged to share their experiences, problems, difficulties and solutions in dealing with these issues among themselves and also with other people.

Community-based intervention activities and peer education programme should include and emphasize the issues related to stigma and discrimination as well as ways and means to reduce them. It is also necessary to inform the public that with the availability of antiviral drugs the survivals of AIDS patients have been further prolonged.

In health-care provision practices, medical institutions and centres should have professional code of conduct and practices that address stigma and discrimination. Staff members should also be trained on proper application of guidelines. The activities should also be reinforced with regular and periodic monitoring and supervisions.

Factories and workplaces should have policies that protect PLWHAs from discrimination at workplace. Pre-placement and employee orientation training should include topic on HIV/AIDS including stigma and discrimination.

Professional bodies should develop and adopt code of conduct with respect to HIV/AIDS. These professional bodies include, but not limited to, associations such as doctors, nurses, business coalitions, and chambers of commerce.

In Myanmar, National AIDS Programme has been addressing the stigma and discrimination issues by providing educational messages not only to general population but also to the targeted populations such as youths, out of school youths, mobile population, women, etc.

One of the remarkable events of awareness raising activities is the success of the “First Exhibition on HIV/AIDS Prevention and Control” that was conducted in Tatmadaw Convention Centre in Yangon from 3 to 12 November 2003. The opening ceremony was attended by General Khin Nyunt, Prime Minister and Chairman of the National Health Committee, together with Secretary (1) of the State Peace and Development Council, Lieutenant General Soe Win and Secretary (2) of the State Peace and Development Council, Lieutenant General Thein Sein. It was opened by Dr. Kyaw Myint, Minister, Ministry of Health and a total of nearly eighty thousand individuals from all walks of life had visited during the 10-day period. This success not only reflects the existence of very high level of political commitments in the prevention and control of HIV/AIDS but also illustrates the achievement of high level of understanding and cooperation among the related Ministries, local and international NGOs, UN agencies that are collectively fighting the HIV/AIDS in Myanmar since they all participated in the exhibition.

There are other activities carried out to combat the HIV/AIDS in the country. With the policy guidance laid down by the National Health Committee, National AIDS Committee has been closely monitoring the supervising the activities conducted by National AIDS Control Programme, under the Department of Health, Ministry of Health. The activities include prevention of transmission through sexual mode within which 100% targeted condom promotion was an integral part, prevention of HIV transmission among IDUs, prevention of mother to child transmission of HIV (PMCT), provision of care and support, screening of blood for HIV for the safe blood supply, promotion of multisectoral collaboration and co-operation, special programs activities, surveillance, supervision, monitoring and evaluation. Provision of care and support includes counselling, voluntary confidential counselling and testing, provision of antiretroviral therapy and treatment of opportunistic infections, and home care. These activities are being carried out not only by the Ministry of Health but also in collaboration with other related ministries such as, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Labour and so on and UN Agencies, NGOs and INGOs.

During the World AIDS Day and Campaign this year, there will be central level activities and activities to be carried out at the State/Division and Township levels. At the Central Level, the main event will be conducted at the International Business Center on the first of December 2003. All these activities will be carried in collaboration with related ministries, partner NGOs, and UN organizations.

In addition, while celebrating World AIDS Day, some activities such as sharing sympathy for those who died of AIDS, care support for PLWHAs health talk for awareness raising and so on will be included. In fact, HIV/AIDS prevention and control activities should be carried out not just in a day or in a week but throughout the year. If everyone is taking the responsibility to protect themselves, and their family, the nation will be free from threat and impact of HIV/AIDS. If citizens around the world can protect themselves, the world is not far from freeing the threat and impact of HIV/AIDS.

Iran hails IAEA resolution as victory against US, Israel

TEHERAN, 29 Nov — A top Iranian official has hailed a resolution adopted by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) on Wednesday as "a victory for Teheran and obvious failure for America and Israel," the official IRNA news agency reported here.

The international nuclear watchdog's refusal to refer Iran's atomic programme case to the UN Security Council for possible sanctions is a victory for Teheran, Hassan Rowhani, Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council, was quoted as saying.

The IAEA Board of Governors issued a compromise resolution Wednesday not to take Iran's nuclear issue to the UN Security Council in view of Teheran's "active openness", even though it condemned Teheran of covert nuclear activities in the past two decades.

"This resolution is a clear sign that the United States and Israel have failed to implement their premeditated plan against the Islamic Republic," Rowhani said.

Close contact between Europe and Iran had paid dividends, he added.

The official explained that despite widespread pressures of the United States, Israel and certain countries, the new resolution has not only met many of Iran's demands, but also "have not brought about any positive achievement for Americans and the countries which are opposed to the development of Iran's peaceful nuclear technology."

Meanwhile, Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Hamid-Reza Asefi said the IAEA resolution on Iran's nuclear issue provided further proof for peaceful nature of Iran's nuclear activities.

"The IAEA Board of Governors' resolution on Iran also proved that Iran pursues its nuclear project quite transparently, and is frank in reporting its process to the UN nuclear watchdog," Asefi said.

"Such mutual trust between the Islamic Republic of Iran and the IAEA has been built despite all the hue and cry raised by the oppressor circles on Iran's intentions to produce nuclear weapons," the spokesman said.

He added that "we expect the IAEA to establish a constructive cooperation with the Islamic Republic of Iran frankly, so that Iran, too, would be able to pursue its commitments on the basis of the Teheran Communiqué perseveringly."

Aspirin cost effective in preventing heart disease

LONDON, 29 Nov — Aspirin and cheap blood pressure tablets are the most cost effective treatments to prevent heart disease, one of the world's biggest killers, a study published on Friday showed.

The analysis found that low-dose Aspirin was as effective and much cheaper than statins, which lower cholesterol, or the blood thinning drug Clopidogrel, which is sold under the brand name Plavix by the French drug firm Sanofi-Synthelabo.

"This analysis confirms the poor cost effectiveness of statins and Clopidogrel compared with Aspirin and antihypertensive treatments," Tom Marshall, of the University of Birmingham in England, said in the British Medical Journal.

All the treatments are effective in preventing coronary heart disease, which kills millions of people worldwide each year, but the prices vary greatly.

Marshall estimated the cost of the different treatments for individuals and in combination for patients with various levels of risk for developing heart disease.

He calculated it would cost about 3,500 pounds (5,946 US dollars) a year to prevent a heart problem in a patient with a 10 per cent risk of the disease over five years with Aspirin, compared to 18,300 pounds for drugs that lower blood pressure, 60,000 pounds for Clopidogrel and 61,400 for Simvastatin, the cholesterol fighter marketed by Merck & Co Inc under the name Zocor.

No one from the manufacturers was immediately available to comment on the analysis. Marshall compared the high-priced interventions to giving a patient a Rolls Royce when they would get a similar benefit from using a bicycle.

All the emphasis and advertising is on the latest drugs and the cheaper, older treatments are forgotten, he added.

"There should be greater emphasis on simple treatments. Aspirin, low-cost blood-pressure lowering treatment should be given much greater prominence and less attention should be given to high-cost interventions," Marshall said in an interview.

The risk of developing heart disease increases with age. Smoking, a sedentary lifestyle and raised cholesterol and blood pressure levels are factors which increase the risk of developing heart disease.

UN probes possible Iran-Pakistan nuclear link

VIENNA, 29 Nov — The UN nuclear agency is probing a possible link between Iran and Pakistan after Teheran acknowledged using centrifuge designs that appear identical to ones used in Pakistan's quest for an atom bomb, diplomats say.

Diplomats said the agency was trying to determine whether the drawings had come from someone in Pakistan or elsewhere. Teheran, accused by Washington of seeking to develop nuclear weapons, told the UN nuclear agency it got the blueprints from a "middleman" whose identity the agency had not determined, a Western diplomat told Reuters on condition of anonymity.

It was unclear where the "middleman" got the drawings. The UN's International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has said in a report Iran told the IAEA it got centrifuge drawings "from a foreign intermediary around 1987". Centrifuges are used to purify uranium for use as fuel or in weapons. Experts say the ability to produce such material is crucial for an arms programme and the biggest hurdle any country with ambitions to build a bomb must overcome.

Several diplomats familiar with the IAEA said the blueprints were of a machine by the Dutch enrichment unit of the British-Dutch-

German consortium Urenco — a leader in the field of centrifuges.

Iran's ambassador to the IAEA, Ali Akbar Salehi, told Reuters he had no knowledge a Urenco design had been used by Iran. "This is new information to me," he said. In a statement to Reuters, Urenco said it had not supplied any centrifuge know-how or machinery to Iran. "Urenco would like to strongly affirm that they have never supplied any technology or components to Iran at any time," it said.

ISRO chief says space technology to be made part of everyday life

CHENNAI, 29 Nov — The ambitious series of future Indian space missions, including the proposed unmanned moon mission by 2007-08, is aimed at accomplishing the objective of making space technology a part of everyday life and enrich the data base for fundamental research, Chairman of Indian Space Research Organization G Madhavan Nair said here.

"The mission to moon Chandrayaan-1 would enable us to study many features of the moon, evolution of planetary systems and to map the lunar surface," he said delivering the 24th convocation address at the Anna University, here.

Nair said similarly ASTROSAT, a dedicated satellite to observe the universe and Megha-Tropiques to study the tropical climate, was on the anvil.

"The missions will go a long way in kindling scientific temper besides obtaining data for fundamental research," he said adding that India can take pride in the fact that "we rank within the top four or five space-faring countries in the world, thanks to our self-reliant strides".

Nair said India was also planning to use Remote Sensing Data to periodically bring out Natural Resources Census (NRC). This would be available as part of the National Spatial Data Infrastructure (NSDI) that was proposed to be set up jointly by various government agencies and ministries.

"It will bring transparency in governance as well as empower the public with right to information," he said adding that with high resolution satellite data and aerial photography, ISRO is also identifying large-scale mapping services as an important element of its future activities.

Sochaux thrash 10-man Dortmund 4-0

PARIS, 29 Nov— Borussia Dortmund, who had Salvatore Gambino sent off in the first five minutes, were thrashed 4-0 by Sochaux on Thursday and eliminated from the UEFA Cup.

The French side, who drew the first leg of the second round tie 2-2 in Germany, had the perfect start when Gambino — on his 20th birthday — pulled down striker Santos in the Dortmund area.

He was sent off and Pierre-Alain Frau scored from the penalty spot. Dortmund, European champions in 1997 and UEFA Cup runners-up in 2002, felt they should have had a similar penalty when striker Jan Koller had his shirt pulled in the area. Koller was booked shortly before halftime for protesting.

Sochaux dominated the second half against a tiring German side. Midfielder Jeremy Mathieu hit the Dortmund post before Santos made the most of a breakaway by chipping goalkeeper Roman Weidenfeller for Sochaux's second goal in the 67th minute.

Wilson Oruma scored the third after Weidenfeller blocked Frau in the area and the Nigerian midfielder hit home the rebound from 25 metres. Embarrassment was heaped on Dortmund in the final minutes when defender Stefan Reuter slipped in the area to give the ball to Mathieu six metres out and he netted his side's fourth. — MNA/Reuters

Manchester City crash out of UEFA Cup

LONDON, 29 Nov— Manchester City crashed out of the UEFA Cup on Thursday when they were held to a 0-0 draw in the second leg of their second round tie against Groclin Grodzisk in Poland.

The English club, eighth in the Premier League, drew 1-1 at home earlier this month, a result that proved costly as Groclin edged through on away goals.

Groclin, fifth in the Polish league, dominated the first half but were unable to convert several scoring opportunities, the best of which came in the 28th minute when Andzej Niedzielnahad a shot cleared off the line by Chinese defender Sun Jihai. Nicolas Anelka broke free in the 74th minute for Manchester City but his shot was saved by goalkeeper Mariusz Liberda.

Coach Kevin Keegan substituted strikers Robbie Fowler and Anelka a minute later but City could find no way through.

Italy's Scala to coach Spartak Moscow

Moscow, 29 Nov— Italian Nevio Scala has been appointed as coach of former Russian champions Spartak Moscow.

"We have agreed a one-year contract with Scala and he will officially sign it sometime next week," a Spartak spokesman told Reuters on Thursday.

Scala guided Shakhtar Donetsk to their first Ukrainian league title in his first season at the helm in 2002 but was forced to leave just three months later following a 5-1 thrashing by Austria Vienna in a UEFA Cup match.

The 56-year-old, who also coached in Italy, Germany and Turkey, led Italy's Parma to two European trophies, winning the now-defunct Cup Winner's Cup trophy in 1993 and the UEFA Cup two years later.

He becomes Spartak's fourth coach in less than six months in what has become the club's worst season in almost three decades.

Spartak, who take on Romania's Dinamo Bucharest in a UEFA Cup second round, second leg tie on Thursday, finished in 10th place last season.

But after being knocked out of the domestic cup by First Division Kuban Krasnodar last week, the Muscovites, who have won nine Russian league titles since 1992, will not play in Europe next season for the first time in 24 years.

Scala replaces former Soviet striker Vladimir Fedotov, who was appointed as caretaker coach two months ago after Andrei Chernyshov was sacked.

Scala becomes the fourth foreign manager and the second appointed within a week in Russia's top flight.

On Sunday, Russian champions CSKA Moscow appointed former Portugal manager Artur Jorge to succeed former Russian coach Valery Gazzayev.

Galatasaray against Juventus match to be played in Dortmund

NYON (Switzerland), 29 Nov— Galatasaray's Champions League Group D match against Juventus will be held in the Westfalenstadion in Dortmund, Germany on December 2, UEFA said on Thursday.

The game, initially scheduled to be played on November 25, was switched from Istanbul following last week's attacks on the Turkish capital.

European soccer's ruling body said on Tuesday that the fixture would be one of three moved away from Turkey to neutral venues for safety reasons. It will kick off in Dortmund at 19:45 GMT "We are very happy that following excellent cooperation between UEFA, the Turkish FA and the home club involved, we have found a suitable neutral venue for the re-scheduled match," UEFA chief executive Gerhard Aigner said.

Two suicide bomb attacks on the British Consulate and HSBC Bank Headquarters in Istanbul last week killed 31 people and injured hundreds more.

The attacks followed bombings at two Istanbul synagogues this month that killed 25 people.

Besiktas' home Champions League game against Chelsea on December 9 will be played outside Turkey as will Israeli side Maccabi Haifa's UEFA Cup tie with Valencia, which was due to take place in Izmir. "In due course we will also be able to announce the venues for the other two re-scheduled matches," Aigner added.

"We regret the move to neutral venues is necessary, due to the current security circumstances, however in the interests of the safety and security of players, participants and fans we felt it appropriate. "It goes without saying that UEFA shares in the sorrow and sympathy for the victims of the bomb attacks and for the people of Turkey at this time."

Perry moves clear at Sun City

SUN CITY (South Africa), 29 Nov— American Kenny Perry carded a four-under-par 68 to take the halfway lead and set himself up for the 1.2 million US dollars first prize at the Sun City Golf Challenge on Friday.

The 43-year-old, on 11-under-par 133 overall, withstood the charge of Spain's Sergio Garcia who fired a six-under 66 to move to within a shot at the Gary Player Country Club.

Garcia, Perry's junior by 19 years and who has made significant swing changes this season, hit massive drives and was much more precise with his iron play on his way to five birdies and an eagle.

He birdied the par-five second, but lost a shot next hole after pulling his drive left. He had to take a drop from an unplayable lie and although he hit his six-iron approach to 15-feet, he missed the putt.

Temperatures sizzled into the mid-thirties and Garcia's golf matched it. After a birdie at the par-three seventh, which by his own admission was a result of a lucky bounce, he eagled the par-five 10th. The 550-yard hole was reduced to a par-four as the 2001 champion hit a driver and a six-iron to 16-feet.

American Jerry Kelly joined Garcia on 10-under after a round of 67 with a further four players on seven-under 67, including overnight leader Vijay Singh's 14 shots off the lead. — MNA/Reuters

Britain, Canada, Holland assist Russia in destroying c-weapons

BRUSSEL, 29 Nov— Britain, Canada and the Netherlands have taken concrete actions to assist Russia in destroying its chemical weapons arsenal, said the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) on Thursday.

The Hague-based OPCW said Britain and Canada recently signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) in Moscow on cooperating to support Russia in destroying its chemical weapons stockpiles.

According to the MoU, Canada will provide Russia with 33 million Canadian dollars (25 million US dollars) to be used to finance the construction of an 18-kilometre railway linking a chemical weapons storage depot with the destruction facility in Shchuch'ye of Kurganskaya oblast, and Britain will "manage the funds on Canada's behalf to carry out the work in Russia".

On November 5, the Netherlands and Russia signed an agreement on the contribution of four million euros (4.76 million US dollars) by the former for the modernization of an electricity station supplying power to the chemical weapons destruction facility in Kambarka of the Udmurt Republic, according to the OPCW.—MNA/Xinhua

In our minds, there's freedom

The value of our kin enhanced
Our position undisturbed,
If it remains that way.

Chinese FM spokesman on Sino-U.S. trade disputes

BEIJING, 29 Nov — China is in opposition to US export limitations on Chinese textiles and the ruling that slapped dumping duties on colour television imports from China, said Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Jianchao here Thursday.

Liu said China has expressed its dissatisfaction and objections to the US side.

The Chinese side also noticed that the US Government and its leaders had repeatedly expressed their wish to discuss with China about the trade issue.

He said China considered some trade frictions normal at a time when Sino-US trade ties were developing so rapidly. China hoped that the trade issue could be handled properly through dialogue and consultation on equal footing, Liu said. Any unilateral actions were not constructive and would not help resolve the disputes.

By joint efforts of both sides, Liu acknowledged, very great advances have been made in bilateral trade and economic cooperation, which had become one important component part of Sino-US relations.
