Towards successful implementation of economic plans

The government is putting its energies into the implementation of plans in various sectors and development tasks in various states and divisions for both regional and national development. In the time of the Tatmadaw Government, special emphasis has been placed on parallel development of all the regions across the Union and Taninthayi Division is no exception.

As Taninthayi Division is rich in terrestrial and aquatic resources, regional as well as national development would be a reality if the government, the people and the Tatmadaw pull together.

Strong economy is the name of the game if a democracy is to be established, and to strengthen the national economy, encouragement and assistance of the government and co-operation of the national entrepreneurs with capability and investment are essential. For example, the Pahtaw dam inaugurated in Kyunso Township, Myeik District, Taninthayi Division, on 10 July is the fruit of cooperation of the national entrepreneurs.

The Pahtaw dam is an earthen one with the capacity of storing up to 70 million gallons of water and will be able to supply water to mills and workshops on the Pahtaw island besides 7,000 people. A national company spent 300 million kyats on the dam.

The government has paved the way for the national entrepreneurs in order that they can engage in various kinds of business and contribute to the national economy. Although agriculture and livestock breeding are the main pillar of the national economy, 19 industrial zones, all told, have been set up across the nation.

Made up of more than 800 islands and rich in natural resources, Taninthayi Division is the region that exports marine products more than any other region in Myanmar. Moreover, it has favourable conditions for growing rubber and oil palm and a great deal of potential for production of natural gas, oil and other minerals and for the development of tourism industry. Head of State Senior General Than Shwe has hoped that Taninthayi Division is the region that can be relied on for national economic development.

Therefore, we would like to call on all those responsible, local people and national entrepreneurs not only in Taninthayi Division but also in other regions to work in concert to be able to fully realize the economic plans and meet the economic targets set for their respective regions.

NANCHANG, 21 July— Human fingerprints were found on pottery pieces dating back to more than 3,600 years ago in Wannian County of east China's Jiangxi Province, local museum announced on Wednesday.

The discovery is of great significance to research on anthropology, sociology, and medicine in China, according to the provincial cultural relics administration.

The fingerprints were found on seven pottery pieces, which was unearthed from a cultural relics site of Shang Dynasty (1,600 BC to 1,100 BC), when employees of the county's museum sifting collections early this month, said Wang Binwan, head of the museum.

Gunmen kidnap two Algerian diplomats in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 21 July—Gunmen seized two Algerian diplomats Thursday — including the country's top envoy to Iraq — in the latest attacks aimed at scaring away Muslim diplomats and undermining the US-backed Iraqi government.

The abductions brought to five the number of key diplomats from Islamic countries targeted in Baghdad in less than three weeks. The top Egyptian envoy was reportedly killed after being captured, and two apparent kidnapping attempts against diplomats were foiled.

The chief of Algeria's mission in Iraq, charge d'affaires Ali Belaroussi, and another Algerian diplomat, Azzedine Ben Kadi, were dragged from their car along with their driver in west Baghdad's upscale Mansour district, police and Algerian officials said.

Belaroussi, a career diplomat, has been in Iraq for about two years, and served as financial director at Algeria's embassy in Paris from 1997 to 2002, Algerian officials said.

Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari pledged to increase security for diplomats but warned them to avoid going to dangerous areas. The Mansour district has been the site of a number of kidnappings, including that of Americans Jack Hensley and Eugene Armstrong and Briton Kenneth Bigley. All three were later killed.

Quake jolts Indonesia's Aceh

JAKARTA, 22 July — An earthquake measuring 5.6 on the Richter Scale rocked the western coast of tsunami-hit Aceh Province on Thursday, but there were no reports of damage or casualties, meteorologists said.

The under-sea quake occurred at 08:42 am and its epicentre was 33 kilometres under the floor of the sea, some 17 kilometres southeast of Meulaboh, the main town in the West Aceh District, they said.

The earthquake was strongly felt in Meulaboh, which was devastated by a powerful earthquake and tsunami on 26 December. "There are no reports of damage or injuries so far," said a meteorologist from the National Meteorology and Geophysics Agency here.

Indonesia sits on the so-called Pacific Rim of Fire, where the meeting of continental plates causes high volcanic and seismic activity.

The 9.3-magnitude quake off Indonesia's Sumatra Island triggered the December 26 tsunami disaster which left at least 220,000 people dead around the Indian Ocean. Aceh, especially its coasts, was one of the hardest hit areas.

Sino-Indian trade up in first quarter of current fiscal

NEW DELHI, 21 July — The bilateral trade between China and India has increased 63 per cent in the first quarter of the current fiscal year, Chinese Ambassador to India Sun Yuxi said here on Wednesday.

"The bilateral trade has gained momentum since early 2005, and it is predicted that the two countries would be able to achieve their trade target of 20 billion US dollars by 2008, much ahead of schedule," Sun said at an economic seminar organized by India's PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Sun said, "It is time that we target increasing trade up to 100 billion US dollars in the next five to eight years. This is an achievable target as the two governments are in the process of negotiating for facilitating trade and investment between India and China."

Sun also underlined that China was very keen to get observer status in the South Asian Association of Regional Cooperation (SAARC) regional economic group, just as India was given the observer status in the Shanghai Cooperation Organization. "This would enable China to deepen economic ties with the SAARC countries," he said.

The ambassador also informed that India and China are likely to enter into Free Trade Agreement shortly.

"Given the size of India and China's economies and population, such free trade agreement would be the largest of its kind in the world. Series of consultations at various levels are being between the two countries to give a formal shape to this agreement," Sun said.

He noted that opening up of land route through Shangrila in Tibetan Autonomous Region and Nathula in India's Sikkim state primarily indicates the firm conviction to put the trade relations on fast track.

The ambassador also urged the government of India to ease visa restrictions which are acting as hindrances to free movement of people across border. He said that the figure of 330,000 people travelling between the two countries last year is too small compared to the large population size. The figure should be actually in millions.

ASEAN to promote cultural tourism to stimulate eco development

PHNOM PENH, 22 July — Cambodian National Assembly President Prince Norodom Ranariddh said on Thursday that promoting tourism is crucial for the social and economic development of ASEAN's less-developed member countries.

Prince Norodom Ranariddh made the remarks at the opening of the AIPO (ASEAN Inter-Parliamentary Organization) Ad-Hoc Study Committee Meeting on Cultural and Eco-Tourism held at Siem Reap, the home of Cambodia's world famous Angkor temples.

"We have a precious heritage in Southeast Asia. We are rich in history and cultural diversity, and we possess truly breathtaking natural and cultural wonders," the Prince said.

Some experts expect that, for the decade ending in 2007, 21 million new jobs in tourism will have been created in the ASEAN region alone.

The Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN) groups Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, Singapore, Thailand, the Philippines and Vietnam.

"Tourism is an excellent means for less-developed member countries to generate local employment opportunities and stimulate economic development without destroying their environmental endowments," he said. In order to promote the region's cultural and eco-tourism, Prince Norodom Ranariddh highlighted three important issues.

- ensuring the preservation, conservation and promotion of the natural, cultural and historical heritage;

- encouraging visitors to learn, respect and help preserve the natural, cultural and historical heritage; and

- taking stern measures to prevent tourism-related abuse and exploitation of people, particularly women and children.

Chinese language becomes more important globally

BEIJING, 21 July — "The Chinese language has become more important globally, and China has also played a positive role in promoting its Chinese," said Canadian Ambassador to China Joseph Caron here Wednesday at the opening World Chinese Conference in Beijing.

Speaking highly of the great contribution made by China to maintain the diversity of the world's cultures and languages, Bouchenaki Mounir, assistant director-general of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, said the Chinese language is also an important part of the human heritage, and the human individuality as well.

The two-day conference, with the theme of "the Development of Chinese in a Multi-cultural World", attracted nearly 600 government officials, Sinologists and Chinese learners from 67 countries and regions.

Joel Bellassen, French chief school inspector on Chinese language teaching, said Chinese has been ranked among one of the world's popular languages of high practical value, with the country's opening up since 1980s. More and more school principals, parents and students have realized that the Chinese language had become a "trump card" for job hunting.

Statistics show that more than 30 million people are learning Chinese through various ways, and more than 2,500 universities in 100 countries are giving Chinese courses.

"China, as the Motherland of the Chinese language, will adopt specific measures to boost Chinese teaching overseas, which includes facilitating the construction of Confucius Institutes, promoting HSK, and helping overseas schools to construct Chinese language library," said Ma Jianfei, deputy director of the National Office for Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language —MNA/Xinhua

Iraq's former hotbed simmers again

FALLUJA 21 July — Some guerillas whose bases were flattened by US air strikes are laying mines again. Residents want Iraqi forces out. Jobs are scarce.

Falluja is simmering again eight months after a US Marine offensive that crushed the nerve centre of Iraq's insurgency. There are signs guerrillas are trying to make a comeback.

"We are facing one big prison here. There are military fences and checkpoints all around Falluja. We are cut off from the rest of the world," said Fahd Suleiman, 67.

The Iraqi government was hoping the US assault in November would pacify Iraq's most rebellious town after an estimated 2,000 militants and guerillas were killed or captured.

Muslim militants no longer behead people in the basements of Falluja houses and Saddam Hussein's former agents don't operate freely in the town 50 km (32 miles) west of Baghdad.

Residents said there have only been about 10 car bombs since the offensive ended, a small number compared to the daily blasts that shook the town.

ADB to provide loan for China's urban environment, health

MANILA, 21 July — The Asian Development Bank (ADB) has approved a 100-million-US-dollar loan to help improve the urban environment, the public health and quality of life in China's Jilin Province, said the Bank in a news release on Tuesday.

The project is aimed at increasing wastewater coverage, boosting the supply of potable water, and improving management and utilization of water resources in the upper Songhua River Basin, said ADB.

The project will improve the environment, living conditions, and public health standards in the cities of Changchun, Liaoyuan, and Meihokou by reducing water pollution, protecting water resources, and addressing water shortage through recycling effluent, said ADB.

"About three million urban residents will benefit from the improved water supply and wastewater services in Jilin," says Sangay Penjor, an ADB Principal Financial Specialist.

"The provision of clean water will lessen household spending on buying water from private sources, and reduce the incidence of waterborne diseases, such as diarrhoea and Hepatitis A, resulting in greater productivity," he said.

Aside from the direct benefits to urban households, the project will help control pollution in the rivers flowing into the Songhua River Basin.

The Yitong and Yongchun rivers in Changchun, which flow into the Songhua River Basin, are highly polluted due to inadequate wastewater treatment in Changchun, said ADB.

"This project would be the first major ADB intervention in directly addressing pollution control in the Songhua River Basin," said Penjor.

ADB said it is developing an integrated plan and an immediate action plan for pollution control in the Songhua River basin through an ongoing technical assistance project.

China untroubled by deflation or inflation in 2005

BEIJING, 21 July — China will not be troubled either by inflation or deflation during the later half of this year as it was in the first half year, a spokesman for China's National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) said on Wednesday.

NBS Spokesman Zheng Jingping said China's macro-economic performance and its monetary supplies in the first six months of 2005 were harmonious without any major problems.

Addressing a Press conference, he said that the outstanding M2 — the broad measure of money supply — grew year-on-year by 15.7 per cent during the first half of this year.

Loans released during the period totalling 1.45 trillion yuan (about 174.7 billion US dollars), up 13.3 per cent, or 24 billion yuan (some 2.9 billion US dollars) more than the same period of last year.

"Therefore, it is hard for me to say there is such a problem as deflation, and economic trends show no signs of such problems" in the coming months of this year. The People's Bank of China, or the central bank, said last week that the outstanding M1, or the narrow measure of money supply, rose 11.3 per cent in the first half of this year. Money in circulation went up 9.6 per cent.

China has set a 15-per-cent target for money supply growth in 2005 to fuel its rising economy on one hand and rein in the growth of some overheated sectors on the other.

The spokesman described the CPI growth rate for the past six month as relatively moderate with structural imbalance. — MNA/Xinhua

UN projects to help southern Thailand recover from tsunami

BANGKOK, 21 July — Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations on Wednesday initiated two projects to help southern Thailand recover from last year's tsunami hit in a sustainable way.

"It is now time to move forward with medium and longer term actions to promote sustainable livelihoods of the coastal communities, integrated and participatory coastal resource management and ecosystem development," Hiroyuki Konuma, FAO's deputy regional representative for Asia and the Pacific, said at a ceremony launching the projects.

The two projects, with one million US dollars granted by the Greek Government, are aimed at recovering fishery and farming communities in the next six months in southern Thailand's coastal areas.

The fishery project will explore opportunities for the supply of boat engines and other equipment to groups of small-scale fisher folk, said a statement issued here by FAO.

The project will also conduct in-depth technical assessments, stakeholder analysis and fishing resource capacity surveys in the areas affected by last year's tsunami.

The studies are expected to identify the level of available fishing resources and ensure the limited natural resources will not be over-exploited.

Indonesia confirms first bird flu deaths

JAKARTA, 21 July — Indonesia on Wednesday confirmed its first deaths from bird flu, saying tests on a father and his two young daughters who died recently showed they had the virus, a minister said on Wednesday.

"Test results from a Hong Kong laboratory which I received this morning confirmed they were positive for the H5N1 virus," Health Minister Siti Fadillah Supari told reporters. Asked if the three died from bird flu, Supari said: "Yes." "It is not yet known how they got infected, but we continue to conduct an investigation on the ground," she said.

"The results show (the virus is) a conventional one, and not a new virus. Therefore, there is no need to worry about human-to-human transmission." Authorities have taken samples of more than 300 people who had contact with the family on the outskirts of Jakarta.

Thai anti-alcoholic campaign gaining momentum

BANGKOK, 22 July— Thailand's anti-alcohol movement is gaining momentum with more than 10,000 people rallied against the listing of a liquor company.

About 10,000 Buddhist monks, nuns, students, and social activists took part in a mass protest on Wednesday, asking the government not to allow listing of Thai Beverage Plc on the Stock Exchange of Thailand (SET).

The company had planned to list on the SET earlier this year, but was forced to postpone its plans in March following strong public opposition.

It applied again on last Thursday to raise fund from the public, a move incurred strong criticism of worsening the country's drinking problem and ignited the mass demonstration. "It's a total disaster. By listing..., the company can earn 100 billion baht (2.5 billion US dollars)," leader of the rally Major-General Chamlong Srimuang was quoted by Bangkok Post as saying.

"That money would be spent on all sorts of marketing campaigns to try and get the public to consume even more alcohol," he said. The company, owned by beverage tycoon Charoen Sirivadhanabhakdi of three-billion-dollar assets, hopes to raise as much as 40 billion baht (about one billion dollars) through the offering.

Having received petitions from the demonstrators, SET's vice-president Patareeya Benjapolchai said the final decision on the listing has yet to be made. The rally, organized by some 128 religious and social groups, has pushed the kingdom's anti-alcohol campaign to a peak.

In a recent official bid to discourage drinking, the Public Health Ministry declared last week to continue a ban on broadcast advertising of liquor and cigarettes. Media outlets are required to stop advertising goods of the two category during the restricted hours between 5 a.m. and 10 p.m., a regulation taking effect in 2003.

The regulation also prohibits cigarette and alcohol producers from sponsoring sports event or setting up advertisements for both products in public areas within 500 metres of schools and educational institutions.

The Thai Government has been serious to cut down smoking and drinking population, while various survey showing the country now faced with tough challenge in this prospect.

Thai people's consumption of alcoholic drinks had increased over the past decade, according to a report by the World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization. Consumption of alcoholic drinks per head in 2000 was 13.59 litres, which made Thailand the world's fifth-largest alcohol consuming country.

"The Public Health Ministry has made it a policy to keep people away from alcohol," said Deputy Health Minister Anuthin Charnveerakul, stressing the situation calls for a policy and measures to prevent Thai youth from alcohol abuse.

The one who initiated the plan to give free treatments to patients with eye ailments or complaints in Yenangyoung was eye specialist Dr Nilar Thein. She was a native of the town where she completed her high school education. In co-operation with other eye specialists, she went to Rakhine and Mon States and Ayeyawady Division to give free treatments and operations to local people who had complaints with their eyes.

She got such a noble idea and made up her mind to stand for all the costs of the programme and to give free medical treatments to 100 people with eye problems in Yenangyoung during Thingyan holidays. Then, she discussed with Patron of Yenangyoung Township Association (Yangon) writer Dr Ma Tin Win, Director-General of the Settlement and Land Records Department U Win Kyi, members Major Htay Lwin and U Maung Maung Myat about all the necessary arrangements for the programme. Yenangyoung Township Association decided to provide whatever was required.

Learning the programme, her teachers including Professor Dr Kan Nyunt offered that they would participate in the programme to gain merits. Dr Kan Nyunt gave an advice to her saying that Thingyan days were public holidays but it would not be suitable for the patients because of the intense heat in Yenangyoung by then. He suggested that the programme should be launched in June when the rainy season started.

had to be increased to 150, and the Sayadaw had to close the accounts when it was enough for 150 patients.

Yenangyoung Township Association (Yangon) donated K 1 million for transportation that produces medicine and medical equipment also donated a biometry machine that can tell the degree of an eye lens. Therefore, the specialists could find out the degrees of the eye lens of the patients precisely and they would regain their sights cent per cent.

It was the golden opportunity for those with eye problems in Yenangyoung especially those who did not have enough money for medical treatments.

When supplicated on Ashin Chandadhika's donations for water supply and the operations of the eye specialists, Chairman of the State Sangha Maha Nayaka Committee Magway Sayadaw said that he would give a serjoying sufficient water on 25 May 2005. They were also pleased for those who regained their sights, and there was the delight of the eye specialists and those who made cash donations.

Yenangyoung Township Association (Yangon), and Magway Division and Yenangyoung Township Peace and Development Councils took part in the programme by carrying out administrative and general matters. The Ministry of Health gave permission for the operations.

The performing of free operations under the patronage of the Sayadaw was put on record.

Whenever Sayadaw U Jotika gives a sermon, he always reminds lay per-

It can be found that the people who are doing well in their businesses are contributing towards the development of their native regions, and that reflects their love for the native areas, an important spirit, from which national people can cultivate a good attitude of loving and cherishing their motherland and people.

It is learnt that a nation puts into record the background histories of its villages such as establishment of a village, area, civilization, and famous villagers and so on so that the posterity would envy the successes of their ancestors.

Sumedha Hermit, would-be-Buddha, made an ultimate resolution and fulfilled his perfections to become an unrivalled one who could make supreme sacrifices and serve the interest of others more than any other person in the world.

According to the discourses of the Buddha, everybody has two bounden duties — making sacrifices and serving interests of others. The free operations performed in Yenangyoung conformed to the teachings of the Buddha.

Sayadaw Ashin Chandadhika and Dr Nilar Thein were old school friends who used to attend their classes in Basic Education High School No 1 in Yenangyoung, so they reached an agreement on the operation programme.

The Sayadaw made a donation of K 300,000 to buy medicine and medical equipment. The Sayadaw's lay disciples such as U Shein Win, U Htay Myint and Amei Hse also made cash donations. So, the donations were more than enough for medical treatments. The specialists simultaneously performed operations on eye patients on three beds in the operation theatre of Yenangyoung Hospital from 25 to 27 June.

Those who contributed voluntary services were Professor Dr Kan Nyunt, Dr Ye Naing, Dr Chit Ko Ko, Dr Aye Aye Khaing, Dr Nilar Thein, Dr Wah Wah Khin, Dr Nyo Nyo Min, Dr Saw Thwin Mon Thein, Dr Tin Zaw Oo, and Dr Than Tun Aung.

Dr Nilar Thein originally planned to stand for all the costs of treatments for 100 patients but wellwishers were so many that she gave them a chance to donate cash. So, she had to donate the costs for only 20 patients. And the number of the patients

Their operations were to remove the cataracts of the eyes of the patients. A person suffers cataract when his eye's lens behind the pupil is out of order and gradually loses sight.

Then, the damaged original lens had to be replaced with an intra ocular lens so that the patient can regain his sight fully. Before undergoing operations, the patients had to take antibiotics, and after the operations they had to wear sunglasses for a certain period in order not to suffer the glare of the light.

US hands over three Saudis from Guantanamo

Riyadh, 21 July — Three Saudi nationals held by the United States in Guantanamo Bay have been handed over to Saudi authorities, Saudi Arabia's state television said on Wednesday.

It gave no details of the three detainees but said their families had been informed of their return to the kingdom.

Saudi nationals make up more than 100 of the 540 detainees at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Five of them were sent home in 2003 but supporters say they were jailed on their return.

Nearly all of the prisoners at Guantanamo are being without charges and some have been held there for more than three years.

The United States has designated them "enemy combatants" and denied them prisoner of war status, which brings certain rights under international law.

Iran plans to launch first communication satellite

TEHERAN, 21 July — Iran's first communication satellite is expected to be launched before March 2006, the official IRNA news agency reported on Wednesday.

"The communication satellite is expected to be launched within the current Iranian calendar year (which is to end on March 20, 2006)," Hassan Shafiti, Deputy Minister of Communication and Information Technology, was quoted as saying.

During the first session of Iran's High Space Council, Shafiti told IRNA that the satellite, dubbed Mesbah, was designed and being constructed in cooperation with Italian experts. Shafiti said Iran had planned to construct five satellites, three of which would be launched to the space over the next three years.

The second one, which is multi-mission and larger than Mesbah, would be launched next year, and the third one, coded Zohreh, in three years, Shafiti said.

The official added that Zohreh, designed and constructed by Russia under the supervision of Iran, would be the greatest communication satellite of Iran.

The first session of the High Space Council was kicked off on Tuesday.

The council was chaired by President Mohammad Khatami and attended by ministers of communication and information technology. — MNA/Xinhua

EU, Latin America likely to talk bananas all summer

BRUSSELS, 21 July — EU negotiators look set for a tough summer dealing with Latin America over bananas if they want to stop the simmering fruit row from spoiling world trade talks at the end of the year, diplomats said on Wednesday.

Bananas are a prime export for many Latin American countries and the world's second-largest fruit market after citrus. In Europe, they have a long history as a highly sensitive area.

After losing the bitter "banana wars" of the 1990s at the World Trade Organization, the EU pledged to scrap its complex system of quotas and import duties for a tariff-only system to run from January 2006. The problem is how high to set the duty.

The EU wants 230 euros/ton as its tariff, with no quotas. For Latin American suppliers, who now pay 75 euros/ton in a set quota to get their fruit into Europe, this is far too high.

After months of wrangling, six Latin countries led by the world's largest exporter Ecuador asked the WTO to rule whether a 230-euro duty would keep their existing access to EU markets.

A verdict is due by 1 August and is widely expected to recommend that the EU propose a lower duty. It could come as early as 29 July, since 30 and 31 July fall on a weekend and 1 August is a holiday in Switzerland, where the WTO is based. If this happens, the European Commission — which negotiates foreign trade on behalf of EU states — would have 10 days to adjust its figures and "rectify the matter", in WTO-speak.

While the WTO would not suggest a new number, it should at least indicate how far the suggested duty is out of line.

But that is unlikely to be the end of the matter, diplomats say, since if the Latins were still unhappy, they would probably request a second round of arbitration, probably in September.

"There could be another arbitration round of 40-45 days, so this will probably rumble through August," one EU diplomat said.

"I would imagine it will go to a second round of arbitration as this is just too contentious. If it was so easy to sort out, it would have been solved years ago," she said. — MNA/Reuters

Zimbabwe seeks credit lines from S Africa, Asia

JOHANNESBURG, 21 July — Zimbabwe President Robert Mugabe's government is seeking credit lines from South Africa and Asian allies to revive a sickly economy as Western donors withhold aid, a senior Zimbabwe Government official said.

The cash-strapped country — with a foreign debt of 4.5 billion US dollars as of 2003 — looked to help from neighbouring South Africa to service its international debt and breath life into its key agriculture sector, Mugabe's spokesman George Charamba told South African public radio SABC on Wednesday.

South Africa declined on Monday to comment on reports that Zimbabwe had asked for a one-billion-US-dollar loan, but the central bank said Governor Tito Mboweni had met a delegation from Harare the previous week.

"South Africa will probably be looking at helping us service our debts, our international debts, and especially with the aim to ensure that we are again in a position of creditworthiness," Charamba said. "If at all they have the resources that we are asking for, they will be looking at reinforcing our ability to recover agriculture by way of inputs, by way of infrastructural development."

He said Zimbabwe,

isolated by the West over policy differences including its land seizures, was also exploring alternative lines of credit with countries like Malaysia and China, with whom Mugabe has sought to expand ties under a "Look East" policy. — MNA/Reuters

Molecular link between obesity and diabetes found

LONDON, 21 July—Scientists have discovered a molecular link between obesity and type 2 diabetes that could be a potential target for new drugs to treat the disease.

They found that a protein released by fat tissue in mice causes insulin resistance, a primary risk factor for diabetes. Elevated levels of the protein had also previously been detected in patients suffering from diabetes.

“Being resistant to insulin is one of the major causes of diabetes,” said Dr Barbara Kahn of Beth Israel Deaconess medical Centre in Boston, Massachusetts, and the lead author of the research published in the science journal Nature.

“And in the absence of diabetes, insulin resistance is a major risk factor for heart disease and early mortality”.

Insulin, which is produced by the pancreas, regulates blood sugar levels. People with type 1 diabetes, which accounts for 10-25 per cent of cases, do not produce any insulin that helps glucose, or sugar, from food get into cells. Type 2 diabetes, the most common form of the disease, is caused by an inability to make enough, or to properly use, insulin. About 90 per cent of diabetes sufferers have type 2, which is linked to being overweight or obese.

About 150 million people worldwide suffer from diabetes and the number may double by 2025, according to the World Health Organization.

The scientists found the protein, called retinol binding protein (RBP4), by studying mice which had been genetically engineered to over or under produce another protein linked to insulin resistance.

They also discovered that increasing levels of RBP4 caused insulin resistance while decreasing levels relieved the condition.

In people who are obese or suffer from type 2 diabetes excess amounts of RBP4 are linked to the severity of insulin resistance.

“There is a rapidly increasing epidemic of obesity and type 2 diabetes in the Western world,” said Khan.

Estrogen gene helps explain some infertility

WASHINGTON, 21 July—Fertility drugs may not help certain women if they lack a certain estrogen-related gene, scientists studying mice suggested on Wednesday.

Mice genetically engineered to lack the gene did not ovulate in response to fertility drugs, the researchers found.

If the same is true in women, it could help explain some forms of infertility and also help steer women away from treatments unlikely to help them.

The gene is called estrogen receptor beta, the team of National Institutes of Health researchers report in the August issue of Endocrinology.

“What we found is that the beta estrogen receptor plays a role in moving the egg outside the ovary so it can be fertilized,” Kenneth Korach of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS) said in a statement.

“We never knew before what function this receptor played in reproduction.”

The NIEHS researchers treated normal female mice and genetically engineered mice with fertility drugs similar to those commonly used by women undergoing fertility treatments.

The mice bred to lack this receptor gene were more likely to be infertile, or had fewer offspring. When treated with fertility drugs the mice did not produce more egg cells.

“Dealing with infertility can be emotionally, financially, and physically draining,” said Dr David Schwartz, director of the NIEHS.

“If we can help couples understand the reasons for their infertility, doctors can further define their treatment options, help them to minimize the expense and risk of taking drugs that may be less effective for them, and increase their chances of having a... healthy child.”

The NIEHS may also try to find out whether defects in estrogen receptor beta are inherited or caused by some environmental effect — and whether perhaps diet can alter the defects.—MNA/Reuters

“Emily” pounds northeast Mexico, US border

SAN FERNANDO (Mexico), 21 July—Hurricane Emily battered the Gulf Coast along the US-Mexico border on Wednesday, knocking down trees, kicking up huge waves and forcing entire villages to evacuate.

The eye of the hurricane hit the Mexican coast about 75 miles south of the US-Mexico border as a Category 3 hurricane with winds of 125 mph (200 kph).

Powerful winds and rains spread out along the coast, knocking out power. Residents boarded up their homes and businesses and headed for higher ground in the thousands.

In the town of San Fernando near the US border, some homes were severely damaged when the eye of the storm tore through.

Maria Barrientos had to abandon her home border when chunks of the roof began to fall in. Rescue workers carried her children out of the house through ankle-deep water.

Emily lost power as it moved over land and dropped to a Category 2 hurricane, but forecasters said it could still cause chaos in the mountains of northeastern Mexico as it dumps torrential rain over there. —MNA/Reuters

Scientists make light of micro cell separation

LONDON, 21 July—Scientists seeking a simple solution to the tricky task of separating single cells from a herd of others have found a way of making light of the problem.

The new technique dubbed the “optoelectronic tweezer” combines a relatively low intensity light source with photo electricity to allow scientists to literally corral the cells they want to study, and could have major medical implications.

“Our design has a strong practical advantage in that, unlike optical tweezers, a simple light source such as a light-emitting diode... is powerful enough,” said Pei Yu Chiou, part of the team led by Ming Wu at the University of California, Berkeley.

The new technique, reported in the science journal Nature, could be used to quickly isolate and study foetal cells in a mother’s blood sample or separate abnormally shaped organisms from healthy ones. As opposed to optical tweezers which use laser beams to round up cells, the low intensity light source which uses 100,000 times less power than that needed for a laser makes sure there is no risk of damage to neighbouring cells.

Currently the process is manual and time-consuming, involving a technician finding the cell of interest under a microscope and literally cutting out the piece of the slide where it is. The new process, which works on the same basis as a photocopier by attracting the wanted cells to a specific spot, can not only isolate large numbers very quickly but could in future be linked to a computer and automated.

Super speed broadband seen over cable TV in 2006

HELSINKI, 21 July—Broadband Internet access via TV cables can reach 100 Megabits per second as early as next year, 50 times faster than the average broadband speeds now offered to cable TV homes, a Finnish firm said on Wednesday.

Similar data transmission speeds are possible over fibre networks, but these cost much more for the operators to build.

“This is a cost-efficient technology as we use the cable TV networks which are already in place,” Jukka Rinnevaara, Chief Executive of small-cap Finnish broadband equipment maker Teleste, told Reuters.

Teleste, whose rivals include big US firms Scientific Atlanta and Cisco Systems Inc, said it would early next year bring to the market its Ethernet to the Home product which will give consumers access to 100Mb/s speed.

The sector is closely followed by big technology firms. Last month Sweden’s Ericsson offered 51 million US dollars to buy Norwegian firm AXCESSIT, which makes broadband ethernet access equipment for telecom operators. To accelerate the transmission speed Teleste fits ethernet — a cheap and standard transport method for Internet data over broadband networks — into cable television networks.

It said it expects first rival technology to be on the market at the earliest in the second-quarter of 2007.

Teleste is running a field-trial with cable TV service provider Essent in Netherlands, but not yet at the top speeds it expects most homes will need in a few years time.

“Based on our research 30 Megabits per second is the absolute minimum in future homes. Just one TV programme would take 10-20 Megabits per second of this alone. So, very fast we would reach a need for 30 Megabits, and also for 50 Megabits per second,” Pekka Rissanen, a Teleste executive told a news conference.

Rissanen said the cost of connecting a home with the new ethernet-to-the-home technology can vary between 50 euros (60.28 US dollars) and 200 euros (241 US dollars).

CEO Rinnevaara declined to say how much the new technology could boost Teleste’s sales or profits in the next 12 months.

Robinho signs for Real Madrid

MADRID, 22 July — Real Madrid have reached a 24-million-euro (29.15-million-US-dollar) deal to sign striker Robinho from Brazilian club Santos, Spanish state radio said on Thursday.

The radio quoted "reliable Real Madrid sources" as saying that Robinho was now a Real Madrid player.

But a Real Madrid spokesman could not immediately be reached for comment and Robinho's agent Wagner Ribeiro denied the report.

He said no deal had been done yet but told Reuters he was prepared to take the matter to FIFA if no agreement was reached.

The radio report said Real Madrid president Florentino Perez had personally taken the decision to pay 24 million euros required to free Robinho from a buy-out clause tying him to Santos.

Robinho would join a star-studded team at Madrid that includes fellow Brazilian Ronaldo, England captain David Beckham and France's Zinedine Zidane. Real Madrid are currently in China on a pre-season tour.

Spanish media reported earlier on Thursday that Robinho had undergone a medical check-up at a clinic in Sao Paulo prior to signing for Real Madrid.

Sports daily Marca said that the 21-year-old international, who has been the subject of a tug-of-war transfer saga between his club Santos and the Spanish giants, was subjected to a battery of tests under the supervision of Joaquim Grava and Real Madrid chief of medical staff Alfonso del Corral.

One of Brazil's most exciting young talents, Robinho has refused to train with Santos since returning from international duty at the start of the month because he has been angry at their refusal to accept a 25-million-dollar offer from Real.

Santos president Marcelo Teixeira has accused Real of making an illicit approach for the player and said that any club wanting to sign him before his contract end in 2008 would have to pay the full 50 million dollars stipulated in his buy-out clause.—MNA/Reuters

English Premier League club Tottenham finished level on points at the top of Group B but scored more goals in the group matches than second-placed Boca Juniors of Argentina, who beat Mamelodi Sundowns of South Africa 3-1 in Kwangju on Thursday.

Olympique Lyon topped Group A, which also included Dutch champions PSV Eindhoven, Once Caldas of Colombia and domestic K-League side Seongnam Ilhwa.

Sunday's final will be played in the Seoul World Cup Stadium, with 2 million US dollars awarded to the winner.

Russia notches up first gold in synchronized swimming

MONTREAL, 22 July — The first gold in synchronized swimming at 2005 Motreal World Aquatic Championships was taken by hot favourite Russia here on Wednesday. In synchronized swimming circle, Russia is the most shining competitor since 1998, as the two Olympic golds and four World Championships titles in team event were bagged by their ballet dancers in the water.

On Wednesday evening, ten Russian aquatic fairies led by the wonderful "Anastasia pair" topped the field of 12 with 99.333 points, making the both defending champion Japan and Spain, the joint runner-up in Barcelona, have to stepped back one place. Japan scored 97.833 points and Spain 97.167. The top three finishes have engaged another confront in Friday's duet event, as defending champion and Olympic title holder Anastasia Davydova and Anastasia Ermakova led the preliminary, followed by Harada Saho and Suzuki Emiko of Japan and Spanish pair Gemma Mengual and Pada Tirados.—MNA/Xinhua

Mourinho says English player prices "crazy"

SHORT HILLS (New Jersey), 21 July — England winger Shaun Wright-Phillips cost Chelsea a "crazy" amount of money, the English champions' manager Jose Mourinho said on Wednesday.

Mourinho was asked why the 23-year-old Wright-Phillips was worth 21 million pounds (37 million US dollars).

"Because the English market is crazy," Mourinho told a news conference on Wednesday.

Chelsea may be prepared to pay even more for Olympique Lyon midfielder Michael Essien.

"Discussions are ongoing," Chelsea spokesman Simon Greenberg told Reuters. The French champions have placed a 45-million-euro (54.32-million-US-dollar) price tag on the Ghana international's head.

Wright-Phillips, the step-son of former Arsenal and England striker Ian Wright, made his international debut 11 months ago and hopes playing for Chelsea will earn him a place in the squad for the 2006 World Cup in Germany.

He faces stiff competition for a place in the team, however. Chelsea have two outstanding wingers in Dutchman Arjen Robben and Ireland's Damien Duff, as well as England's Joe Cole.

Mourinho believes Wright-Phillips will be versatile.

"I think he can be more a pure winger than our other players are ... and he can play from the inside as well," Mourinho said.

Mourinho brushed off suggestions he might have a surplus of wingers, saying he was prompted to buy Wright-Phillips after a spate of injuries to Robben and Duff last season.

"I felt at some moments in the last season we didn't have a pure winger on the right side," Mourinho said.

Chelsea are touring the United States for pre-season matches against AC Milan in Boston and New York, and DC United in Washington.—MNA/Reuters

Bayern will not break bank to keep Ballack

FRANKFURT, 21 July — Bayern Munich would be prepared to lose Germany captain Michael Ballack when his contract is up next year rather than pay the sort of huge salary on offer elsewhere in Europe.

"We insist on sporting success being tied to financial prudence," Bayern's director of football Uli Hoeness told Bavarian TV show Blickpunkt Sport.

"The point may come when we have to say no."

Ballack is Bayern's most influential outfield player and took a key role in last season's double-winning exploits.

His current deal runs out at the end of the 2005-06 season, meaning he could leave at the end of the coming campaign on a free transfer, or before then for a cut-price fee.

There have been reports that Bayern would be prepared to offer the 28-year-old midfielder a salary of 10 million euros (12.06 million US dollars) to avoid such a situation but Hoeness rejected that sort of deal outright.

"When people start talking about 10 million-plus I just don't understand the world any more," Hoeness said.

"Surely no-one believes Ballack earns more than four million or thereabouts? And we're supposed to be considering more than doubling that?"

Ballack was linked last year with a possible move to Spain, where the salaries paid by leading clubs Real Madrid and Barcelona dwarf the amounts available in Germany.

Clubs in England and Italy could also offer far more than Bayern Munich would be prepared to pay.

Chelsea settle out of court with former player de Lucas

LONDON, 21 July — Chelsea have settled out of court with former Spanish midfielder Enrique de Lucas who sued the English champions for more than 2.5 million pounds (4.37 million US dollars) after they terminated his contract in 2003.

De Lucas began a London High Court action on Monday, seeking damages in unpaid wages, bonuses, appearance fees, accommodation and other expenses, including English language tuition.

"Chelsea FC and Enrique de Lucas are pleased to announce that they have settled their differences in relation to the High Court claim brought by Mr de Lucas," a joint statement said on Wednesday.

"The parties have reached a mutually satisfactory solution." No financial details were available.

The 27-year-old's move to English football in 2002 was a complex one involving Spanish club Deportivo Alaves.—MNA/Reuters

Baros to discuss with Benitez about future

LONDON, 22 July — Liverpool striker Milan Baros said on Wednesday that he will have a talk with boss Rafa Benitez about his future.

The recent arrival of Peter Crouch has cast doubt over the long-term future of Baros.

Reds boss Rafa Benitez has admitted he would let Baros leave if he received the right offer.

Baros is now set to sit down with Benitez next week to find out his plans for him.

The Czech Republic ace admits he is unhappy with all the speculation, but is ready to fight for his future at Anfield.

"Of course it is not pleasant, but I am still a Liverpool player," said Baros.

"I am working hard and trying to persuade the coach I deserve my place in the team.

"We will sit together and talk about his intentions with me.

"If he says he does not need me, then we will start solving the problem, but nothing is happening now and I am not letting it play on my mind."

LA doctor indicted for "subdosing" AIDS patients

LOS ANGELES, 22 July—A well-known California AIDS doctors accused of "subdosing" his patients—giving them less than the prescribed amount of medication to boost his profits—has been indicted on federal charges.

Dr George Kooshian, who has twice been sued over subdosing claims and settled both cases out of court, was indicted on Wednesday on 25 counts of health-care fraud, three-counts of making false statements and one count of conspiracy.

"It's pretty egregious because you are talking about people's health here," Assistant US Attorney Jeame Joseph said of the accusations against Kooshian, 54, who has been ordered to appear in court on 1 August.

Kooshian's former assistant, 45-year-old Virgil Opinion, was also named in the indictment but indicated a willingness to cooperate with prosecutors, she said.

The indictment charges Kooshian with ordering Opinion and other employees at two clinics he operated in Los Angeles and Orange Counties to subdose patients he was treating for AIDS, HIV and hepatitis.

According to the indictment, patients received one-half to one-quarter of the doses they were prescribed and in some cases were given only saline or water. Kooshian then billed insurance companies for the full doses and continued to submit claims even after patients stopped taking the medication, the indictment said.

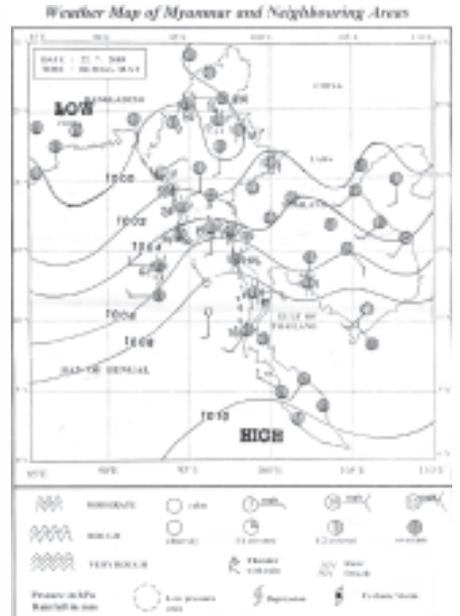

It was Opinion who first alerted authorities to the suspected subdosing coming forward after he was fired.

"He claimed his conscience was killing him," Joseph said. Opinion and one of Kooshian's patients each sued the doctor, who settled both cases out of court. Kooshian and Opinion each face a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison for each of the 25 health-care fraud counts and five years in prison for the conspiracy count and each of the false statement counts.
