For emergence of ASEAN Community

The Union of Myanmar has always practised the active and independent foreign policy in its relations with international community, especially her neighbours and fellow membernations of ASEAN. Myanmar became a fullfledged member in 1997 and since then she has cooperated with other ASEAN nations for economic and socio-cultural development of the region.

Senior General Than Shwe, Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council, sent a message on the occasion of the 38th Anniversary of the ASEAN Day that fell on 8 August. In his message, the Head of State urged the fellow citizens to strive in unison for the emergence of ASEAN Community in accordance with the theme of this year's ASEAN Day, ASEAN Community Building for ASEAN People, as the emergence of an ASEAN Community will benefit people of Myanmar along with other ASEAN citizens in sharing the fruit of peace and stability, development and prosperity, and socio-cultural development.

It was on 8 August 1967, that the Association of South-East Asian Nations was founded and it now encompasses all ten countries in the Southeast Asian region. The association has become one of the most progressive and cohesive regional organizations and plays an important role in the United Nations and such regional fora as ARF and ASEM.

With the adoption of the ASEAN vision 2020, the ASEAN is making efforts to establish an ASEAN Community based on the three pillars of ASEAN Security Community (ASC), ASEAN Economic Community (AEC) and ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC).

The first pillar of ASEAN Community, ASEAN Security Community (ASC), subscribes to the principle of comprehensive security and interdependence of the political, economic and social life of the region. The second pillar of ASEAN Community, ASEAN Economic Community (AEC), embodies the realization of a stable, prosperous and highly competitive region, functioning as a single market and production base. The third pillar of ASEAN Community, ASEAN Socio-Cultural Development (ASCC) represents ASEAN's aspirations to lift the quality of life of its peoples and strengthen its cultural identity towards a people-centred ASEAN.

The emergence of an ASEAN Community will benefit people of Myanmar along with other ASEAN citizens in sharing the fruit of peace and stability, development and prosperity, and socio-cultural development. Therefore, we would like to call on our fellow citizens of ASEAN nations to strive in unison for the emergence of ASEAN Community.

Iran says EU offers to back oil pipeline from Central Asia

TEHERAN, 7 Aug-Iran said on Friday the European Union had offered to back it as the main oil transit route from Central Asia to tempt Teheran to freeze its nuclear fuel work, but a summary of the EU's proposals contained no such offer.

Iran, home to the world's second-largest oil and gas reserves, has long promoted itself as an alternative route for delivering land-locked Caspian oil to world markets, but has met opposition from the United States, its political rival.

"In the proposal, they have supported the idea of Iran being the main energy transit route to Europe from Central Asia," a senior Iranian close to the EU negotiations told Reuters. But a summary of the package delivered to Iran by Britain, France and Germany made no mention of supporting an Iranian oil pipeline. "The summary contains all the substance of the full proposals," an EU diplomat said in Brussels.

In reference to energy, the proposal says the EU is prepared to declare Iran a long-term source of oil and gas. Asked later if the EU was ready to support such an oil transit pipeline from Central Asia to Europe, a senior French official told Reuters: "There are a lot of ideas. Here, we haven't gone into a lot of detail.

Singapore's aerospace industry holds positive prospects for growth

SINGAPORE, 7 Aug- The growth prospects for the aerospace industry in Singapore remain positive, said Senior Minister of State for Information, Communications and the Arts and Health Balaji Sadasivan

Addressing an industry event celebrating Singapore's 40th National Day, the minister attributed the bright forecast to "the emergence of budget airlines and the trend towards outsourcing" in the region.

"Budget airlines offering cheap airfares will continue to boost travel within the region," said Balaji, noting that the increasing demand for air travel will create more jobs in the industry.

He added that the practice of outsourcing maintenance, repair and overhaul services (MRO) will not only help low cost carriers and regular airlines reduce their cost, but also encourage more companies to set up MRO operations overseas.

"To ensure that Singapore retains its competitive edge, companies ... must continue to improve their service offerings and develop cost effective solutions for customers," Balaji stressed, pointing out that the rapid growth of other regional airports and the emergence of long haul aircraft have posed threats to Singapore's status as Asia's fourth biggest air hub.

Being an important part of the city state's economy, the aerospace industry registered a record output of 4.5 billion Singapore dollars (about 2.7 billion US dollars) in 2004, up 16.3 per cent from a year ago.— MNA/Xinhua

China succeeds in artificial lightning diversion

JINAN, 7 Aug—Chinese scientists succeeded in using weather rockets to guide lightning to a specific spot on the ground in a recent experiment carried out in east China's Shandong Province.

The experiment, conducted by scientists from the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Chinese Academy of Meteorological Sciences (CAMS), would help lightning control in the region, according to Zhang Yijun, a research fellow with CAMS.

China launches anti-corruption education among kids

Hangzhou, 7 Aug— China has launched an anti-corruption education among kids aiming at fostering a noble-minded probity of its new generation.

"To help students bear anti-corruption in mind and fight against corruption, the new education programme will take various forms of seminars, lectures, fieldwork, reading and online study," said Xu Subin, deputy director with the Discipline Inspection Committee of Hangzhou, the capital city of east China's Zheijang Province.

In Hangzhou, such education has already been carried out in all primary and elementary schools in a major urban district for a year, and is to be promoted to all schools beginning this September.

The Ministry of Education (MOE) has launched the campaign in some big cities and provinces like Beijing, Tianjin, Zhejiang, Hubei, Shaanxi, Guangzhou and Shenzhen, in the second half of this year.

The Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Youth League also issued a circular to kick off a nationwide drive of same kind two weeks ago.

Designers of the new lessons have focused on four major areas, including basic ethics, traditional Chinese virtue, ideals and belief, as well as legal education, according to Xu.

However, some challenge the idea of "vaccinating" the kids against corruption, saying it is just like "making children take pills for the adult's disease".

In a survey conducted in 2003 among more than 200 first-grade middle school students in Hangzhou, the students were asked "What is the major temptation around you." "Money" and "position promotion" ranked the two most popular answers, with many consider being a class monitor as "superior" and can "get the whip hand over other classmates".

"We hope anti-corruption education may improve youth's immunity against bad influences from the adult world and prevent them from growing up with the bud of corruption," said Ye Ming, head of the city's Discipline Inspection Committee, when explaining why Hangzhou has begun a trial education in eight schools as early as 2003.

Indonesian Supreme Court rejects Bashir's appeal

JAKARTA, 7 Aug — Indonesia's Supreme Court has rejected an appeal by Abu Bakar Bashir, the Muslim cleric serving to 30 months in jail for his role in the 2002 Bali nightclub bombing that killed 202 people, his lawyer said on Saturday.

Bashir was convicted in March and given a 30-month jail sentence. His lawyers have argued that the court decision was based on false evidence and a fabricated police dossier.

"It's true that the Supreme Court has rejected Abu Bakar Bashir's appeal, but we have not received an official notification," said the cleric's lawyer Muhammad Assegaf. Authorities in Indonesia, the world's most populous Muslim nation, and some foreign governments say the 66-year-old cleric is the head of the al-Qaeda-linked Jemaah Islamiah network operating in Southeast Asia.

"He (Bashir) feels it is an act of injustice since the very beginning. It was clearly an intervention by foreign countries," Assegaf said.

Bashir was acquitted of charges that he led Jemaah Islamiah, ordered the Bali bombings or was involved in a 2003 blast at Jakarta's JW Marriott Hotel that killed 12 people.

The verdict prompted the United States and key ally Australia to call for a review on the grounds the sentence was too lenient. The Bali nightclub blasts killed 88 Australians.

"He will continue to fight this injustice, and he rather fight in silence than having to admit that the allegations were true," said Assegaf.

China's private aviation set to take off in big way

Beijing, 7 Aug — Whether for business or pleasure, manufacturers reckon private aviation in China is set to take off in a big way, according to Saturday's China Daily.

Diamond Aircraft Industries, an Austrianbased plane manufacturer, is one of the foreign jet manufacturers eyeing the lucrative market.

Diamond established a joint venture with the Binzhou Dagao General Aviation Co Ltd in East China's Shandong Province in June.

The first 4-seat DA40 light plane is expected to leave the assemble line in October with a list price of around 200,000 US dollars, sources from the ioint venture said

The number of millionaires in China is growing, and more and more Chinese will have a chance to own their own planes, said Michael Feinig, Diamond's managing director.

"It is not far from a reality for wealthy Chinese people to be able to treat the private jet as a practical means of transport, creating an attractive market for us," Feinig was quoted by the 21st Business Herald as saying. Insiders forecast China's business jet market will be worth over 9 billion US dollars within 10 years, with the number of private jets expected to rise from 20-plus to more than 600.

"There are more private jets in the greater Los Angeles area than in the whole of China at the moment, but we expect it to be fast-growing," said David Dixon, Asia Pacific vice-president for regional jet maker Bombardier Aerospace.

Canada's Bombardier is also vying with traditional rivals Embraer SA of Brazil and Gulfstream, a unit of General Dynamics, for a slice of the private jet market in China - where the economy has been growing at nearly 9 per cent every year for almost a decade.— MNA/Xinhua

Gayetgyi Island and Kadonkalay Island. These islands were formed with silt deposited by Bogale River and Gulf of Mottama. Bredit turtles lay eggs on Gayetgyi Island from September to March yearly. Female turtles made their nests to lay the eggs on the sandbank. We have chosen three stations for experiment as lower slope, upper slope and dune on nesting area. Each nest is fixed with pillars for date of laying eggs and serial number for identification. We have taken data such as egg laying date, time, pillar number, sector number, approximate hatching date, number of death, number of unhatched eggs, number of unde-

In the past the research works on Sea turteles had been limited except two scholars of certain universities. They are Daw Saw Mya Kay Thi and U Maung Myint. ElBaradei says scrapping nukes vital for human survival

VIENNA, 7 Aug— The carnage wrought by the nuclear bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki 60 years ago demonstrates the need to eliminate nuclear weapons for the sake of human survival, the head of the UN nuclear watchdog said on Friday.

Speaking at an event in Vienna to mark the anniversaries of the bombings, International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) chief Mohamed ElBarade said the passage of time should not let the world forget how devastating nuclear weapons are.

"It has always been hoped that the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki stand as constant reminders of why preventing the further use and proliferation of such weapons — and why nuclear disarmament leading to a nuclear weapon-free world—is of utmost importance for the survival of humankind and planet Earth," he said.

The United States dropped an atomic bomb on the Japanese port of Hiroshima on 6 August, 1945. It was the world's first atomic bombing and killed about 78,000 people instantly. By the end of 1945, the number of dead had reached about 140,000 out of the city's estimated population of 350,000.

Three days later, a second bomb hit Nagasaki. Japan surrendered on 15 August, ending World War II. "We should remain humbled by what we have learned from the destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki," said ElBaradei, whose agency polices the nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT), the global pact against the spread of nuclear weapons.

Nearly 30% of Niger's children suffering from malnutrition

LOME, 7 Aug — The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) on Thursday increased its appeal for aid to 14 million US dollars to help children in desperate need for food in Niger and said nearly 30 per cent of children in the West African nation are suffering from malnutrition.

The UNICEF's Deputy Director Rima Salah visited Niger for a first-hand look at the famine. She told reporters that UNICEF must take actions to tackle the humanitarian crisis and save more children's lives, according to reports from Niamey, Niger's capital.

She said that 24 to 30 per cent of children in the famine-stricken country are suffering from severe and moderate malnutrition.

UNICEF will do everything it can to save lives in Niger, Salah said, adding that the organization has increased its appeal for humanitarian aid to 14 million US dollars, but until now only nine million has been collected to help the hungry children.

Aboudou Karim Adibadji, UNICEF's representative in Niger, called on the international society to increase its efforts in dealing with the severe famine

He said UNICEF has distributed food to some 32,000 children suffering malnutrition.

Two weeks ago, UN humanitarian chief Jan Egeland said Niger was facing "an acute humanitarian crisis" in which children were dying because the world community ignored UN appeals for urgent aid.

He said 2.5 million people desperately need food, including 800,000 malnourished children. Some 150,000 of those children will die soon "unless we really get to step up our operation", he warned.

On Thursday, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) also renewed its appeal for four million US dollars emergency agriculture assistance to respond to the famine crisis in Niger.

The FAO said in statement that funds are urgently needed to provide veterinary services and feed for livestock that play a key role in the livelihood and food security of many of the country's most vulnerable households

"Without the assistance, the crises can worsen and more food aid would be needed," the statement said.

The United States announced on Thursday it would provide high-energy food to more than 34,000 of Niger's children in school feeding programmes.

Neighbouring Nigeria has donated 1,000 tons of grain and set up a committee to coordinate its Niger relief effort, according to Nigerian Press

Study helps New York to improve response to gas attack

New York, 7 Aug- A federally-funded anti-terror project is underway to determine the best way for New York City to respond to the effects of a bioterror attack, local media reported on Friday.

Researchers will release a harmless tracer gas in Midtown Manhattan, then trace the air currents with the help of sensors set up all over the place.

The study is expected to help determine how much gas is liable to seep into the subway system and get into nearby office buildings.

The researchers said they already have computer models that suggest how the gas would spread, but that real-world

Africa needs 7% economic growth to meet MDGs

JOHANNESBURG, 7 Aug-Africa needs to achieve an economic growth rate of at least 7 per cent to meet the millennium development goals, new African Development Bank (ADB) chief Donald Kaberuka said on Friday.

Kaberuka said in Pretoria that in order to meet the millennium development goals, Africa must "attain a real increase in GDP (gross domestic product) of seven percent at a minimum on a sustainable basis".

The goals, adopted by the United Nations five years ago, include halving poverty and hunger, improving access to education, and halting the spread of diseases like HIV/AIDS and Malaria — all by 2015. "Clearly, economic growth on its own is not enough, but it is an essential condition," said Kaberuka, who is on a courtesy visit to South Africa. Currently, the continent's overall economic growth rate was just over 4 per cent. Also required was investment in human development and infrastructure Kaberukasaid

He promised major reforms to make the ADB more effective. The Bank tasked with financing the continent's economic development, he said, clearly needed "a scaling up of the quality of operations".

US backs Iran's civilian nuke programme for first time

Washington,7 Aug — The United States on Friday for the first time accepted that Iran can develop civilian nuclear programmes, backing an EU proposal that would allow Teheran to pursue atomic power in exchange for giving up fuel work.

In a compromise that completed a gradual shift in US policy, Washington acquiesced because it believes the European Union offer has enough safeguards to prevent Iran diverting its civilian work into making nuclear bombs.

"We support the (Europeans') effort and the proposal they have put forward to find a diplomatic solution to this problem and to seek an end to Iran's nuclear weapons programme," State Department spokesman Tom Casey told reporters.

Drogba double hands Chelsea win over Arsenal

CARDIFF, 8 Aug— Two goals from Didier Drogba gave champions Chelsea the best possible start to the new season with a 2-1 victory over likely title rivals Arsenal in the Community Shield match on Sunday.

The Ivory Coast striker, considered a disappointment by many last season after his arrival from Marseille for 24 million pounds (42.7 million US dollars), opened the scoring from close range in the eighth minute before adding the second with a superb solo effort 12 minutes into the second period.

Young Spanish midfielder Francesc Fabregas got one back seven minutes later to give FA Cup winners Arsenal hope but a myriad of second-half substitutions affected the cohesion of what had been a cagey contest at the Millennium Stadium.

It was the third time Chelsea had won English football's traditional seasonopener and a first victory over their London rivals in a domestic match since November 1998.

Despite starting with two wingers in Damien Duff and Arjen Robben, Chelsea failed to get much width and their early attacks came through long balls launched towards Drogba and Eidur Gudjohnsen up front. The tactic, though crude, proved effective after eight minutes when new signing Asier Del Horno lofted a pass from left midfield towards Drogba, who had got in front of Swiss defender Philippe Senderos on the edge of the box.

The Ivory Coast striker took the ball on his chest before clipping a half-volley over Arsenal goalkeeper Jens Lehmann with his left foot to send the blue half of the 58,040 crowd wild with delight.

Arsenal pressed forward but for all the skill of their talented forwards, they spent most of their time skirmishing around the edge of the box and failed to really trouble the Chelsea goalkeeper until 10 minutes before half time.

Indeed, it was an Arsenal defender who finally forced the save from Petr Cech, Kolo Toure firing in a shot from just outside the box which the Czech pushed past his post at full stretch.

Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger made three changes at halftime but it was Chelsea who grabbed the initiative in the second period with Drogba's second goal.

The 27-year-old outmuscled Senderos to get through on goal, put the ball round Lehmann and almost lost it to Toure before turning and lashing the ball into Chelsea were not allowed to take it easy, however, and Fabregas, expected to fill the huge shoes of the departed Patrick Vieira, got one back for Arsenal with a good run and neat finish after 64 minutes.

Thereafter the game opened up a bit with much more goalmouth incident than in the first hour and, while there was no lack of endeavour, the frequent substitutions inevitably diluted the quality.

Wenger will have been pleased by the fluent performance of his new signing Alexander Hleb in midfield, while Chelsea's 21-million-pound buy from Manchester City Sean Wright-Phillips replaced Robben on the wing for the last 21 minutes. —MNA/Reuters

Carew presents Lyon with first home win

PARIS, 8 Aug- Norway striker John Carew presented Olympique Lyon with a 1-0 win over Racing Strasbourg in the French champions' first home Ligue 1 match of the season on Sunday.

Newcomer Carew scored from a tight angle on 26 minutes to make Lyon one of four teams on maximum points from two games with Nantes, Paris St. Germain and Bordeaux

Charleroi round off Belgian weekend action with victory

Brussels, 8 Aug—Charleroi rounded off the opening weekend's action in the Belgian First Division with a 2-0 home win against Germinal Beerschot on Sunday.

Two second half goals from Grgory Christ and Loris Reina secured the points against last season's cup winners.

Club Bruges kicked off the defence of their title and the weekend's action with a 2-0 home win over Excelsior Mouscron on Friday night. On Saturday, goals from all three of Anderlecht's new signings helped them crush La Louviere 6-0 on Saturday.

Trapped Russian mini-sub resurfaces in Pacific

Moscow, 8 Aug — A Russian mini-submarine burst to the surface on Sunday after rescuers hacked away the cables that had snared it deep in Pacific waters and saved the crew before their air supply ran out.

"The mini-sub has surfaced. The seven submariners on board are alive," naval spokesman Igor Dygalo was quoted by Interfax as saying.

A naval officer had warned they might only have Sunday left to rescue the men stuck on | Moscow's request to board the AS-28, which was snarled up in heavy metal debris 190 metres (600 feet) below the surface, because of dwindling oxygen.

The British Scorpio, an unmanned undersea rescue vehicle rushed at waters off the far east Kamchatka Peninsula, was briefly forced to return to the surface but got back to work to clear remaining debris.

"We are in constant contact with the crew through acoustic signals. and according to them, their health condition is satisfactory," Interfax quoted the head of Russia's Pacific Fleet Press Service. Alexander Kosolapov as saying earlier. The AS-28, itself a rescue vessel, got its propeller tangled in metal cords from the antenna of an electronic underwater monitoring station part of Russia's coastal defences - during military exercises.

The accident, which happened on Thursday but only came to light the following day, has stirred up sore memories of a botched attempt to save a Russian nuclear submarine five years ago.

The structure enmeshing the vessel was itself weighed down on the ocean floor by two heavy anchors. A previous attempt on Saturday to drag the mini-sub to shallow waters failed.

The coastal waters off Russia's far east have highly sensitive installations and there were suggestions the Russian military was far from keen to allow foreign navies to come so close to such a strategic area. "This area is stuffed with secrets," Interfax news agency quoted retired Admiral Eduard Baltin, former Black Sea Fleet commander, as saying. "It is home to strategic nuclear submarines.'
