More inter-district roads built for all-weather transport

The government is fulfilling the requirements for the development of the whole Union. Moreover, plans are being made to ensure speedy development of the regions with poor transport.

Now, new motor roads, railroads and small and large bridges spanning creeks and rivers have been built all over the country. With regional smooth transport, people's socio-economy, education and health have improved.

Back in 1988, there were only over 5,000 miles of rural and urban roads. But now, there have been more than 6,000 miles of urban roads and 30,000 miles of rural roads, enabling the people to have access to all parts of the country.

Inter-district Road No.2 in Mandalay Division, built by the Ministry for Progress of Border Areas and National Races and Development Affairs, was opened on 21 March. The road is over 100 miles long from the Kintha junction in Nay Pyi Taw Tatkon Township to Phyauckseikpin village in Kyaukse Township. With the advent of the road, 63 villages in 11 townships of Mandalay Division have enjoyed smooth transport.

Similarly, Inter-district Road No.3 in Sagaing Division was put into service on 21 March. The 35-mile gravel road has enabled the people of over 90 villages to travel in all seasons. Besides, plans are under way to extend the road to 300 miles from Sagaing to Myitkyina, Kachin State. Inter-district Road No.2 in Mon State was upgraded into the 30-mile tared one from Mottamakywechan village in Paung Township to Zaymathwe village in Thaton Township. And it was opened on 23 March for the convenience of 35 villages.

As networks of motor roads and railroads have been built the length and breadth of the nation, all the regions have enjoyed prosperity with smooth transport and speedy commodity flow.

Domestic workers in US demand full labour protection

LOS ANGELES, 29 March— Maria Moctezuma started to work as a house nanny in 1991. She worked 12 hours a day, six days a week, but earned only 100 US dollars per week at the beginning. Now she earned 75 dollars a day for 12 hours.

What's worse is that she has to pay the employers to keep her immigration status. Many times the employers took her money but did nothing for her.

Moctezuma told her story at a rally to mark the National Domestic Workers Day on Sunday in Los Angeles.

She also showed the media how she worked six days a week, 12 hours a day doing house work, but got little pay.

She has no extra hours, no sick leave and no vacation. She has to bear all abuses since the US labor law does not protect people working at homes as housekeepers, nannies and companions of the elderly.—Xinhua

Junk foods may be addictive: study

BEIJING, 29 March—High-calorie foods may be addictive as cocaine or nicotine, according to a study published in the journal Nature Neuroscience Sunday.

Paul J. Kenny, Ph.D., the lead author of the study, said that doing drugs such as cocaine and eating too much junk food both gradually overload the so-called pleasure centers in the brain.

Eventually the pleasure centers “crash”, and achieving the same pleasure — or even just feeling normal — requires increasing amounts of the drug or food, said Kenny.

Researchers studied three groups of lab rats for 40 days. The first group was fed normal rat food. The second group was allowed to gorge on sweets and junk food for one hour a day. The third was allowed unlimited amounts of junk food for 23 hours of the day.

The third group began to eat compulsively. When researchers applied an electric shock in the presence of food, the first two groups shied away from eating, while the third group continued eating.

Obesity may be a form of compulsive eating. The findings in a study of animals cannot be directly applied to human obesity, but may help in understanding the condition and in developing therapies to treat it, according to the researchers.

How does a heart know when It's Big Enough?

SCIENCE DAILY, 29 March—A protein discovered in fruit fly eyes has brought a Johns Hopkins team closer to understanding how the human heart and other organs automatically “right size” themselves, a piece of information that may hold clues to controlling cancer.

The protein, named Kibra, is linked to a relay of chemical signals responsible for shaping and sizing tissue growth by coordinating control of cell proliferation and death, according to research published Feb. 16 in Developmental Cell by teams at Johns Hopkins and Florida State University.

In a series of experiments, the scientists manipulated Kibra's role in a signaling network called the Hippo pathway, which consists of several proteins working together as a braking system. Counterparts of the components in the Hippo pathway in flies are found in most animals, suggesting that this pathway may act as a “global regulator” of organ size control, according to Duoqia Pan, Ph.D., a professor of molecular biology and genetics at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and an investigator of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute.

Brazil parents jailed over five-year-old's murder

BRAZIL, 29 March — The father and stepmother of a five-year-old girl have been found guilty by a Brazilian court of throwing her to her death from a sixth-floor window.

The death of Isabella Nardoni in 2008 shocked Brazil, and the case has been the focus of intense media coverage.

Her father, Alexandre Nardoni, was sentenced to 31 years in prison by the Sao Paulo court. Her stepmother, Anna Carolina Jatoba, must serve 26 years.

The couple, who had denied the girl's murder, will appeal, their lawyers say.

Isabella was found in the communal garden below the apartment where Nardoni, his second wife and their two children lived in March 2008.

Nardoni, a lawyer, claimed that his daughter had been killed by an intruder while he was helping his wife bring the

Eleven dead in US highway crash

KENTUCKY, 29 March—Eleven people were killed in the US state of Kentucky when a truck crashed into a church van carrying a family on their way to a wedding. The tractor-trailer crossed the central reservation and struck the van head-on, officials said.

It then hit a rock wall and burst into flames, local media reported. The trailer driver was among the dead. Two children survived. Kentucky police said it was one of the deadliest accidents in about 20 years.

Pastor Leroy Kauffman with the Marrowbone Christian Brotherhood in Burkesville said there were three young children on board - aged one, three and five. He said there was also a couple on board the van who were engaged to be married.

“They had a July wedding planned,” he was quoted as saying by the AP news agency. “They’ll have a wedding in heaven I guess.”

The pastor added the family were Mennonites and the father was an assistant pastor at the church.

The family's house had burnt down in December and they had just moved into a new home built by church members, he said.

A similar crash in May 1988 — involving a church bus — claimed the lives of 27 people, AP said. It was caused by a drunk driver going the wrong way on Interstate 71 in Carroll County.

Girl (3) burned to death as 320 slain in Congo massacre

CONGO, 29 March—At least 321 people were killed and hundreds were abducted in one of the worst massacres by Africa's most feared rebel group, the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), in the Democratic Republic of Congo in December.

A three-year-old girl was burned to death during the attack on men, women and children, an investigation by a human rights group has revealed. Villagers who escaped death were sent back with their lips and ears cut off as a warning to others of what would happen if they talked — a tactic used frequently by the LRA, which has terrorised much of northern Uganda and the border areas with Sudan and Congo for more than two decades.

The attack — which was unreported until now — confirms that the LRA has restarted terrorising the region despite losing its bases in Sudan a few years ago, when Khartoum, its main backer, signed a peace deal with south Sudanese rebels. According to Human Rights Watch, the LRA also abducted at least 250 people during the attack, including 80 children.

Anneke Van Woudenberg, of the New York-based rights group, called the massacre in the Makombo area of northeast Democratic Republic of Congo “one of the worst ever committed by the LRA in its bloody 23-year history”.—Internet

Indonesia's reform hampered, but still moves ahead

JAKARTA, 29 March — The hope is high that the Indonesian government led by re-elected President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono could continue to push for reform plans, although the progress may not run as smoothly as expected.

A strong support from parliament, as his Democrat Party has formed a coalition and control over 70 percent seats, is expected to help pave the way for the president to implement his policies to boost gross domestic product, reduce poverty and unemployment, and boost investment climate in the country with over 230 million population.

Yudhoyono has been hailed by investors and international communities for his success to create stability, strong economic fundamental, overhaul legal institutions, bureaucracy and crack down corruption in the Southeast Asia's largest economy.

However, the president's cabinet must face an attack on a bailout case of a small bank, Bank Century, and must involve in the settlement of the controversial conflict between the police and the anti-corruption watchdog, which may cause social unrest.

The case may hamper the government's concentration to boost infrastructure as an effort to increase economic efficiency to raise competitiveness during the implementation of some free trades with several foreign countries.

BEIJING, March 29 — Chinese demand for gold was set to double in tonnage terms within just 10 years, according to a report released by the World Gold Council (WGC) in Beijing Monday.

The report titled "Gold in the Year of the Tiger" is the first-ever report of China's gold market by the London-based organization. It was released in Beijing, London and New York at the same time.

China's demand for gold had increased an average of 13 percent per year over the past five years, and China was the second largest consumer market for gold in the world, and also the world's largest gold producer since 2007, according to the WGC report.

In 2009 alone, cumulative gold demand in China was worth more than 14 billion US dollars, or 11 percent of global demand.

Within the next decade, Chinese gold consumption could double from 2009 levels, it predicted.

Gold demand in China was likely to continue to accelerate in the long term, as buyers' appetite would keep growing despite higher gold prices.

Iranians building two new nuclear plants

IRAN, 29 March —IRAN came under fresh scrutiny yesterday after evidence emerged to suggest it had begun to construct two secret nuclear-enrichment plants.

Western intelligence agencies are understood to have concluded that Tehran has escalated the covert elements of its nuclear programme, giving renewed impetus for a US-led push to tighten sanctions.

The findings are partly based on anomalies in Tehran's nuclear inventory that were identified by inspectors from the United Nations' nuclear watchdog, the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The inspectors expressed serious concern that uranium-enriching equipment developed by Iranian scientists had mysteriously disappeared, the 'New York Times' reported.

The equipment has not turned up at Iran's main uranium-enrichment plant, leading inspectors to believe it is being stored in secret until it can be installed at an unidentified facility.

Iran recently attracted renewed international interest after Ali Akbar Salehi, its atomic-energy chief, announced work was to begin on two plants to be "built inside mountains".

Elephant crushes man to death in Indian zoo

MUMBAI, 29 March—An elephant in an Indian zoo trampled to death a 25-year-old suspected drug addict who jumped into its enclosure when the animal's keepers were not looking, reports said.

The female elephant, called Laxmi after the Hindu goddess of wealth, reacted furiously to the intruder and crushed him against a wall on Sunday at the Byculla zoo in southern Mumbai.

Rain expected in China's drought-hit areas in next three days

BEIJING, 29 March — Cold weather would bring rain to China's drought-hit southwest areas in the next two days, but the prolonged dry spell was forecasted to linger, said the National Meteorological Center (NMC) Monday.

Moderate to light rains would sweep most parts of Yunnan Province, the southern areas in Guizhou Province, the southern part of the plateau in western Sichuan Province, and northwestern areas in Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region, said the NMC.

Temperatures would drop by 6 to 8 degrees Celsius in the nation's northwest areas, including the northern parts in Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region and Shaanxi Province, the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, and the west areas in north China, with temperatures in some areas falling more than 10 degrees Celsius, according to the NMC.

A severe drought has plagued southwestern China since autumn last year, causing drinking water shortage, crop damage and economic losses.

Nadal nails down fourth-round berth

MIAMI, 29 March— Rafael Nadal joined Roger Federer as a seeded survivor at the upset-plagued Miami Masters as the Spaniard defeated David Nalbandian 6-7 (8/10), 6-2, 6-2 Sunday for a fourth-round berth.

Top seed Federer and number four Nadal are all that are left of the top four seeds after exits by number two Novak Djokovic and number three Andy Murray in the second round.

American sixth seed Andy Roddick kept the home crowd happy with his 6-2, 6-1 defeat of Sergiy Stakhovych of the Ukraine, while resurgent Spanish veteran Juan Carlos Ferrero eliminated

Seo wins Kia Classic for first LPGA Tour title

Hee Kyung Seo of South Korea hits her tee shot on the seventh hole during the third round of the Kia Classic at La Costa Resort and Spa in Carlsbad, California. Seo fired a three-under 69 to stretch her lead to five shots after three rounds of the LPGA Kia Classic.—INTERNET

CARLSBAD, 29 March— As Hee Kyung Seo was about to receive the trophy for her runaway win in the inaugural Kia Classic, Michelle Wie was standing near the scorer's tent explaining her latest rules gaffe.

Wie was penalized two strokes for grounding her club in a hazard after hitting out of the water near the 11th green at La Costa, giving her a double-bogey 7. At the time she was five strokes behind Seo, who earned her first LPGA Tour title by shooting a 2-under 70 for a six-stroke victory.

The 23-year-old Seo, who is not a member of the LPGA Tour, received one of the three sponsor's exemptions to get into the tournament. An 11-time winner on the Korean LPGA Tour, she can choose to become an LPGA Tour member this year or next.

Wie likely wouldn't have caught Seo, but the penalty dropped her into a tie for fifth at 4 under.

Milan miss chance to close gap, Juve attacked by fans

ROME, 29 March— AC Milan missed out on the chance to close the gap on leaders Inter Milan to a single point when they were held to a 1-1 home draw by Lazio at the San Siro on Sunday.

Earlier in the day Juventus brushed off an attack on their team bus by their own fans to beat Atalanta 2-1 at Turin's Stadio Olimpico and keep alive their hopes of a top-four finish.

Following AS Roma's 2-1 win over Inter on Saturday, Milan knew they could join the capital based team a point behind their city rivals if they won but the draw leaves them third and three points off top.

It was also their third straight league game without a win and was met with boos at the final whistle while, for Lazio, the point was a great boost in their fight against relegation.

Real back on top as Atletico suffer more derby misery

MADRID, 29 March— Real Madrid came from behind to defeat neighbours Atletico 3-2 in an enthralling derby at the Santiago Bernabeu on Sunday and nudge Barcelona off the top of the La Liga table.

Jose Antonio Reyes fired Atletico into a 10th minute lead but three goals in 17 minutes turned the game on its head with summer signings Xabi Alonso and Alvaro Arbeloa proving two unlikely scorers before Gonzalo Higuain bagged his 23rd of the season.

Gervinho fires Lille up to fourth

PARIS, 29 March— Ivory Coast international forward Gervinho scored on his first start after a month out with a knee injury to set Lille on their way to a 4-1 win over Montpellier on Sunday.

Second-placed Montpellier would have gone three points clear of Bordeaux with victory but fell behind in the 17th minute when Gervinho raced onto a deft pass from the superb Eden Hazard before rounding the goalkeeper to score.

Benitez eyes fourth spot after two-goal Torres shines

LIVERPOOL, 29 March— Rafael Benitez is convinced Liverpool can still finish fourth in the Premier League and qualify for the Champions League after Fernando Torres's double inspired a 3-0 win over Sunderland.

The Reds were simply unstoppable at Anfield on Sunday and produced one of their best performances of the season as they cruised past Steve Bruce's side. The victory moved Liverpool above Manchester City into fifth place in the Premier League, four points behind fourth placed Tottenham.

Nemanja Vidic's elbow on Johan Elmander may go to FA

LONDON, 29 March—Sir Alex Ferguson will hope Owen Coyle's criticism of Nemanja Vidic for what the Bolton Wanderers manager branded a "terrible elbow" on Johan Elmander does not land the Manchester United defender in hot water with the FA. Elmander required four stitches after being caught on the head by Vidic's left forearm during a robust challenge in the second half that left the Bolton striker visibly shaken.

The FA may opt to review the incident today, with Martin Atkinson, the referee, appearing not to have seen it, but it seems unlikely that Vidic will face any action, even though Coyle felt the challenge warranted punishment. "The only thing I'm slightly unhappy about is the elbow on Elmander by Vidic," the Bolton manager said. "I can only assume the referee didn't see it because it was terrible." Asked if the challenge epitomised Vidic's toughness, Coyle said: "I wouldn't equate that incident to toughness. That's not toughness for me."—Internet

Burnley face investigation after derby hostility

LONDON, 29 March—Burnley are set to face another FA investigation after an object, believed to be a coin, was thrown at Mike Dean, the referee, during yesterday's 1-0 defeat by Blackburn Rovers at Turf Moor. Eight days after the FA began looking into an incident in which Chris Kirkland, the Wigan Athletic goalkeeper, was struck by a coin thrown from the away end during the 1-0 defeat at the DW Stadium, Burnley are set for further scrutiny.

Dean was consulting with an assistant after awarding a contentious penalty against Burnley when the coin was thrown from the Jimmy McIlroy Stand. He is sure to include the matter in his match report.

It was not the only such incident at Turf Moor yesterday. Brian Jensen, the Burnley goalkeeper, was almost hit by a bottle as he left the field after the pre-match warm-up, and David Dunn and Christopher Samba, the Blackburn players, were pelted with coins as they walked through a gap between the James Hargreaves Stand and the David Fishwick Stand for post-match interviews as supporters of both teams remained in the stadium.—Internet

Bomb hoax delays cruise ship off Florida

MIAMI, 29 March—A Carnival cruise ship was held off the Florida coast for several hours on Sunday while authorities searched the vessel and arrested a drunk passenger on bomb hoax charges, the US Coast Guard said. No explosives or hazardous materials were found and the ship, the Carnival Sensation, was allowed to dock at Port Canaveral on Florida's Atlantic coast Sunday morning, Coast Guard petty Officer 1st Class Christopher Evanson said.

The ship carried 3,470 passengers and crew and was headed back to Port Canaveral after a three-day cruise to the Bahamas when a passenger reported hearing another passenger make a bomb threat, the Coast Guard said.—MNA/Xinhua

Single gene dramatically boosts yield, sweetness in tomato hybrids

TEL AVIV, 29 March— Giving tomato breeders and ketchup fans something to cheer about, a Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory (CSHL) scientist and his colleagues at the Hebrew University in Israel have identified a gene that pushes hybrid tomato plants to spectacularly increase yield. The yield-boosting power of this gene, which controls when plants make flowers, works in different varieties of tomato, and crucially, across a range of environmental conditions.

"This discovery has potential to have a significant impact on both the billion-dollar tomato industry, as well as agricultural practices designed to get the most yield from other flowering crops," says CSHL's Zach Lippman, Ph.D., one of the three authors on the study, which appears in the journal Nature Genetics online on March 28th. The study is co-authored by Israeli scientists Uri Krieger and Professor Dani Zamir.—Internet
