Keep eyes, ears to weather reports

Today, the World Meteorology Federation and the science organizations around the world are scaling up their campaigns on meteorology for security and comfort of the global family members.

Also in Myanmar, the Meteorology and Hydrology Department under the Ministry of Transport is putting greater efforts into the tasks on meteorology in the public interest. It regularly issues weather forecasts for smooth air and water transport including daily weather reports, short- and long-term weather forecasts, potential river floods and tidal warnings, along with public notices on media services and reminders.

The world sees a great deal of changes in weather forecasts in the Age of IT, which is making dramatic progress, thus calling for more sophisticated technologies and equipment to improve the work efficiency.

Weather reports are issued in the media such as daily newspapers, radio and TV. So, the people, on their part, have to keep their eyes and ears to the reports.

As the department releases weather reports through the media in time, the people should contact the Meteorology and Hydrology Department for comments if they hear rumours about natural disasters and suspicious weather reports.

Officials say 9/11-style plot in Iraq foiled

BAGHDAD, 15 April—Iraqi and US security officials say Iraqi forces have foiled an al-Qaida in Iraq plot for a 9/11-style attack to hijack airlines and fly them into Shiite holy shrines.

Two senior Iraqi officials told The Associated Press on Wednesday they have arrested two men allegedly linked to the plan, which shut down the airport in Najaf for days and Baghdad airport for hours last week.

Two senior US

The officials say the plan was aimed at re-igniting sectarian violence.

All spoke on condition of anonymity because the investigation is ongoing.

The U.S. has since long been pressing Pakistan to start military operations in North Waziristan to clear the region from militants' network that would help the U.S. in bringing stability in Afghanistan.—Xinhua

Police arrested Clark after getting a tip concerning his location from one of his neighbors.

Hungarian police have notified the FBI and turned Clark over to Interpol for extradition to the US.

Singapore public urged to immunize with new influenza vaccine

SINGAPORE, 15 April—Experts in Singapore on Wednesday urged the country's public to use a new three-in-one vaccine against influenza, which will be available late April.

According to Channel NewsAsia reports on Wednesday night, local experts said that this is because the old vaccines do not work well against new circulating influenza strains.

"Unfortunately, old vaccinations cannot protect against potential circulating new strains and that's why we have a new composition in the coming vaccine production," said Professor Leo Yee Sin, clinical director of the country's Communicable Disease Center.

Leo added that there is a good long time period for people to consider to go for vaccination as the coming vaccine production has exactly the same composition as the year-end production.

Every year, the World Health Organization will predict the three influenza strains which are predominant. Manufacturers will then produce new vaccines based on the predictions.

This time round, the three predictions are the pandemic H1N1 strain, a new H3N2 strain, as well as influenza type B.

This means it is more cost-effective to use the new vaccine in protecting against influenza strains as opposed to the pandemic H1N1 vaccine ordered by the country's Health Ministry.

With the new vaccine, the old stockpile will not be adequate in protecting the public against influenza. Last year, the Health Ministry ordered 1.3 million doses of the pandemic H1N1 vaccine.

NZ man at strip club leaves baby in car

Police arrested a man for leaving his 1-year-old baby in a car unattended during the early hours while he watched strippers at a nightclub in New Zealand's capital, and have placed the boy in welfare agency care.

A passer-by called police after seeing the sleeping baby in a car parked near the Mermaid Strip Club in Wellington about 3 a.m. Tuesday.

Police took the baby to hospital and arrested the father, 42, after he was located in the club, Inspector Simon Perry said. The man faces a charge of leaving a child under 14 without reasonable supervision, Perry said.

The Child, Youth and Family agency has custody of the baby for five days while it works with the baby's relatives to decide on his future, agency deputy chief executive Ray Smith said.

New Zealand's commissioner for children, John Angus, said leaving a child alone in a car at night was an "extreme form of neglect."

Tapeworm brain infection 'serious health concern'

Taenia solium

SCIENCE DAILY, 15 April—Tapeworm infections of the brain, which can cause epileptic seizures, appear to be increasing in Mexico and bordering southwestern states, Loyola University Health System researchers reports.

Mexico, up to 10 percent of the population may have the infection, neurocysticercosis. While many people never develop symptoms, neurocysticercosis nevertheless "remains a serious health concern, especially among the poor," Loyola researchers wrote in the journal Neurological Research.

Their article is among several articles in the journal's April issue that describe neurological infections in Latin America. Guest editor is Dr.

Jaime Belmares, assistant professor in the Division of Infectious Diseases, Loyola University Chicago Stritch School of Medicine.

Neurocysticercosis is caused by a tapeworm found in pigs called Taenia solium. A person can get infected with the parasite by eating undercooked pork. That person then can excrete tapeworm eggs. The contamination spreads through food, water or surfaces contaminated with feces. A person can become infected, for example, by drinking contaminated water or putting contaminated fingers in the mouth.

Neurocysticercosis is most common in poor rural communities in developing countries with poor sanitation and hygiene and where pigs are allowed to roam freely and eat human feces.

Once inside the stomach, the tapeworm egg hatches, travels through the bloodstream and ends up in the muscles, brain or eyes. The worm, which can grow to more than one-half inch long, becomes enveloped in a fluid-filled cyst. Cysts in the muscles generally don't cause symptoms.

Cat brain: a step toward the electronic equivalent

SCIENCE DAILY, 15 April—A cat can recognize a face faster and more efficiently than a supercomputer. That's one reason a feline brain is the model for a biologically-inspired computer project involving the University of Michigan.

U-M computer engineer Wei Lu has taken a step toward developing this revolutionary type of machine that could be capable of learning and recognizing, as well as making more complex decisions and performing more tasks simultaneously than conventional computers can.

Lu previously built a "memristor," a device that replaces a traditional transistor and acts like a biological synapse, remembering past voltages it was subjected to. Only known living population of rare dwarf lemur discovered

SCIENCE DAILY, 15 April—Researchers have discovered the world's only known living population of sifre's Dwarf Lemur, a rare lemur known only in eastern Madagascar. The discovery of approximately a thousand of these lemurs was made by Mitchell Irwin, a Research Associate at McGill University, and colleagues from the German Primate Center in Göttingen Germany; the University of Antananarivo in Madagascar; and the University of Massachusetts.

The species was first discovered in Madagascar in 1896, but this tiny, nocturnal dwarf lemur was never studied throughout the 20th century. Following the destruction of its only known rainforest habitat, scientists had no idea whether the species still existed in the wild—or even whether it was a distinct species. The new T. Rex: a leech with an affinity for noses SCIENCE DAILY, 15 April—The new T. rex has ferociously large teeth lining a single jaw. But its length is less than 2 inches. Tyrannobdella rex, which means tyrant leech king, is a new species of blood sucker that lives in the remote parts of the Upper Amazon. Although its regular host remains unknown, it was discovered three years ago in Peru when a 44.5 millimeter leech was plucked from the nose of a girl who had recently been bathing in a river. The new species, described in PLoS ONE, has led to revising the group of leeches that has a habit of feeding from body orifices of mammals.

"Because of our analysis of morphology and DNA, we think that Tyrannobdella rex is most closely related to another leech that gets into the mouths of livestock in Mexico," says Anna Phillips, a graduate student affiliated with the American Museum of Natural History and the first author of the paper.—Internet

Expose and ward off destroyers of Thingyan beauty with public force

Kyaw Ye Min

It was Maha Thingyan Akyat Day, a summer afternoon on the 15th of April 2010.

Yangon was lively with the beauty of the traditional water festival, the whole city reverberating with the sound of fairs, laughs, songs and music of the pandals and merry-makers.

At that time, bad news occurred. "Three bombs went off in Kandawgyi!" "People were killed! There were cries, tears and blood all around the scene! It was like hell! What a brutal act! It's so sorrowful! Parents are grieving for their dead or injured children! Why even in Thingyan? So cruel and evil is the crime!"

Suddenly, the bad news had tarnished the beautiful image of Yangon Maha Thingyan. I felt absolutely shocked to hear the news visualizing the scene of confusion and blood with so much sadness in heart. Imagine, how worried would be the parents about the children enjoying the festival? I fully sympathize with them.

As for Myanmar people, Maha Thingyan is one of the most significant and sublime seasonal festivals. It is a traditional festival Myanmar people value, cherish and enjoy most. It is also the most joyful occasion. And this is a common knowledge.

As the happiness is at its height so also is the religious solemnity during the festival. It is also a religious occasion where people do meritorious deeds in accord with Buddhist faith. Thingyan marks the end of the old year and the start of a new year. People try to wash away impurities of the old year with Atar or Thingyan water and enter the New Year together with lots of pious deeds. It is a cultural heritage of the Myanmar people who wish the entire World peace and prosperity and health and happiness with the belief that the pleasant Thingyan water brings loving kindness and good omen.

In addition to merry-making, dances and songs, people free birds and fishes, serve food to others free of charge, take Sabbath practise vipassara. They bathe and manicure the aged and wash their hair. It is an auspicious time people choose to do only the meritorious deeds. These are all the significant characteristics of Thingyan valued and cherished not only by Myanmar but also by the world.

In view of a nation or a race, it is an auspicious occasion with new strengths for the whole nation as we hope that progress and success will come in the new year after passing through and overcoming all difficulties and hardships of the old year. This is why the Maha Thingyan is an important traditional festival which is significant and noble for our nation and people.

In this Maha Thingyan Festival respected not only by Myanmar but also by the world, the government set 10 days for the Maha Thingyan holiday in order that every Myanmar citizen could take part in the festival freely and peacefully. This is the most significant point of the Thingyan Festival, compared with other seasonal festivals.

If one is really a Myanmar citizen, one loves the Thingyan and feels happy on this occasion. It is natural that when the Thingyan nears, we are completely obsessed with it. No matter where we are, we like to go back to our home and place when the Thingyan nears. We try as much as possible to go come home to happily participate in our traditional Thingyan. Myanmar and the Thingyan are inseparable. And it is true that we never try to weaken the spirit of loving the Thingyan.

However, the image of the charming Myanmar traditional Maha Thingyan has been stained with three bombs that exploded in a row among the public taking part in the festival peacefully and innocently. According to sources, the bombs went off in front of a water-throwing pandal on the Kandawgyi ring road, killing 8 people and injuring 170 others. How disgusting it was to see and hear the incident! It is a sheer tragedy. How cruel it was of terrorist groups to damage even the Maha Thingyan Festival we Myanmar people regard as noble. How cold-blooded were they to massacre the innocent people taking part in the festival happily and peacefully with grudge and hatred.

In reality, attacking those participating in the traditional Thingyan happily and peacefully with the bombs is an insult to the people. It is an inhumane act. Because of such subversive acts, we the people abhor and loath the terrorist insurgents. On the one hand, we are mourning the casualties of innocent people and on the other, we abhor a group of brutal terrorists.

Indeed, terrorist insurgents usually hide themselves in disguise among the people. We cannot identify the terrorists easily. This is why they are brazenly committing subversive acts by sliding into the crowds of ordinary people in disguise. All the people need to be vigilant against it, and are to pay attention to expose the destructionists, who are making attempts to undermine peace and stability and development of the State, and to thwart their destructive acts. It is important that only when all the entire people conscientiously participate in the preventive measures against the destructive acts, will success be achieved completely wording off terrorists in a short time. Moreover, it can be said that it is an important duty for ensuring security of lives and property of the entire people.

Such terrorist attacks were merely intended to tarnish the Myanmar Traditional Maha Thingyan Festival and intentionally insult the public. Therefore, the people are to be vigilant against the danger of destructionists and to help expose them. In order to arrest the terrorists who insulted the public, tarnished the image of Myanmar Traditional Maha Thingyan Festival and killed or wounded over 170 innocent people in the incident, I would like to urge all the entire Myanmar people to dutifully help expose the terrorists and to inform the authorities if they find anything suspicious in time.

Aspirin can reduce migraine symptom pain, review says

Oxford, 14 April— Taking an aspirin can reduce the pain of a migraine headache within two hours for over 50% of people, research says.

The results come from a Cochrane Systematic Review using data from 13 studies.

Researchers found that a single dose of aspirin also reduces nausea, vomiting and sensitivity to light or sound - other symptoms of a migraine.

But experts stress aspirin can cause side effects and some people will still need to rely on migraine medication.

In the review, which looked at the data from 4,222 participants, researchers found that severe or moderate migraine headache pain was completely relieved in one in four people.

This happens within two hours, by taking a single dose of 900-1000mg aspirin alone.

In comparison, one in 10 had complete pain relief taking placebo.

And for one in two people, the headache pain was reduced to no worse than mild pain, compared to one in three taking placebo.

Researchers also found that a combination of aspirin plus an antiemetic, which stops people feeling sick, was particularly good at reducing the migraine symptoms of nausea and vomiting. Although it did not produce any greater pain relief.

Co-author of the study, Sheena Derry, who works in pain research at the John Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford, said the use of aspirin would not be an effective therapy for everyone with acute migraine attacks.—Internet

Japanese whale meat 'being sold in US and Korea'

LOS ANGELES, 14 April— Scientists say they have found clear proof that meat from whales captured under Japan's whaling programme is being sold in US and Korean eateries.

The researchers say they used genetic fingerprinting to identify meat taken from a Los Angeles restaurant as coming from a sei whale sold in Japan.

They say the discovery proves that an illegal trade in protected species still exists.

Whale meat was also allegedly found at an unnamed Seoul sushi restaurant.

Commercial whaling has been frozen by an inter-national moratorium since 1986.

But a controversial exemption allows Japan to kill several hundred whales each year for what is termed scientific research.—Internet

NASA spacecraft successfully passes Saturn's moons

LOS ANGELES, 15 April—NASA's Cassini spacecraft completed its double flyby this week, swinging by Saturn's moons Titan and Dione with no maneuver in between, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) said Monday.

The spacecraft has beamed back stunning raw images of fractured terrain and craters on Dione, a moon that had only been visited once before by Cassini, the JPL said in a press release. Cassini obtained fewer images of Titan than expected as an unexpected autonomous reset occurred during the flyby, but the cameras were reset before reaching Dione, which was the primary target on this double flyby, according to the release. Cassini had made three previous double flybys and another two are planned in the years ahead. The mission is nearing the end of its first extension, known as the Equinox Mission. It will begin its second mission extension, known as the Solstice Mission, in October 2010, the release said.—Xinhua

Dust from volcano closes airports

GLASGOW, 15 April — All flights to and from Scotland's airports have been grounded as a plume of volcanic ash drifts across much of northern Europe. Dust from the eruption in Iceland presents a serious risk to aircraft. Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Glasgow airports have been shut and five EasyJet flights due to depart from Stansted Airport were cancelled.

Search and rescue helicopters are still able to fly as long as they do not need to rely on instruments. A BAA spokeswoman said: "Following advice from the Met Office, the National Air Traffic Service (NATS) has introduced restrictions to UK airspace this morning as a result of volcanic ash drifting across the United Kingdom from Iceland.

"These measures currently affect Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Glasgow airports which are closed but may also affect other parts of the UK later today." Passengers intending to fly today are asked to contact their airline for further information and should expect disruption in the coming hours.—INTERNET

Burnt-out neutron stars retain sparks of life

Things start to cool, that pulsar beat doesn't hit the right note and they're washed up on the outer edges of universe showbiz.

But all is not lost. Two space scientists, dubbed the "Simon Cowells of astronomy," are set to reveal today that neutron stars may have career-saving, untapped hidden depths. Mother left in car park as couple head off to France

DOVER, 15 April — A couple alerted police at one of Britain's busiest ports after accidentally leaving their elderly mother behind in a car park at Dover while taking a ferry trip to France. The pair made an urgent call to the Port of Dover Police after discovering midway across the Channel that their relative was still sitting in the vehicle in the multi-storey car park.

Officers managed to locate the woman and gave her a drink, before her flustered relatives, who are thought to be from Merseyside, returned to collect her around four hours later. The incident warranted a special mention in the Port of Dover Police's monthly report for March.

The document reads: "And finally, an unusual telephone request for assistance was received in the Police Control Room from a couple who were on board a ferry that had just left Dover advising that they had forgotten that their elderly mother was still in their car that they had parked in the multi-storey car park ahead of their day trip.—INTERNET

Scientists to create babies with three parents

LONDON, 15 April — 'What we've done is like changing the battery on a laptop'. Babies with three biological parents could be conceived within three years as a result of research that could stop children from inheriting severe diseases. Scientists at Newcastle University, in England, have grown human embryos after merging DNA from two fertilised eggs, with a technique that could soon be used to prevent serious genetic disorders that affect 100 children in Britain a year.

The aim is to correct faulty "cellular batteries", mitochondria, which can cause fatal heart, liver, neurological and muscle conditions, by replacing them with healthy ones from a donated embryo. A child would inherit genetic material from three parents. The mother and father would supply 99.8pc of its DNA, with a small amount from another woman, the mitochondrial donor.

'Scaffolding' for cells may help fix brains

LONDON, 15 April — It may soon be possible to repair damage to the human brain by reactivating stem cells within the body that can grow on specially constructed "biological scaffolding" inserted into the brain, scientists say. The hope is that the brain could be regenerated in the same way that tissue can regrow in animals such as salamanders and fish where nerves are capable of repairing themselves in the same way the human body can repair skin or bone.

Mike Modo, of the Institute of Psychiatry in London, said that medical scaffolds made of synthetically made biological materials inserted into the brain could provide the structural framework for naturally existing stem cells to repair damaged regions caused by strokes or trauma. "If we have damage to the brain, we are trying to put biomaterials in there to provide a structure for these cells to attach and to start forming connections between each other and eventually, hopefully, to regenerate the tissue that has been lost," Dr Modo said.—INTERNET

Online sites win journalism firsts at Pulitzers

NEW YORK, 15 April—ProPublica, in an historic first for online journalism, won a coveted Pulitzer Prize on Monday for investigative reporting about controversial deaths at a New Orleans medical centre following Hurricane Katrina.

The chronicle of decisions by doctors caring for patients stranded by the flood, written by Sheri Fink of ProPublica in collaboration with The new york times magazine, marked the first time an online service won a top journalism award given annually by the Pulitzer Prize Board at Columbia University.

The nonprofit ProPublica is considered by some to be a new model for journalism as struggling for-profit outlets have fewer resources to put towards investigative reporting. The Times magazine published the Hurricane Katrina piece.

"This is something we're going to see more of in the years ahead as there's more and more collaboration of news entities when it comes to enterprise journalism," Sig Gissler, administrator of the prizes, said in announcing the winners.

In another online first, www.sfgate.com, the website of the San Francisco Chronicle, won for editorial cartooning. The award for the animated cartoons by Mark Fiore marked the first time an Internet-based entry won in that category.

Shell gets key Alaska permit for Beaufort drilling

ALASKA, 15 April—Royal Dutch Shell Plc has been granted a long-awaited federal air-quality permit the oil company needs to conduct exploratory drilling this year in Alaska's Beaufort Sea, government officials said late on Friday.

The US Environmental Protection Agency issued the permit to Shell to cover air pollutants emitted from the drill ship and fleet of support vessels that the company plans to mobilize to drill two exploratory wells on leases 16 to 22 miles offshore from Alaska's northern coast.

The Beaufort Sea permit—which Shell has been seeking for nearly four years—was granted a week after the EPA issued a similar permit for the company's planned drilling operations this year in the Chukchi Sea off Alaska's northwestern coast.

The permit requires Shell to use technological advances, ultra-low-sulfur diesel fuel and to commit to other protective measures, EPA officials said in a statement.

"This permit ensures that exploration and drilling will occur in a way that protects air quality," Rick Albright, director of the air, waste and toxics issues for EPA's Seattle regional office, said in a statement.

The Beaufort permit is an important milestone, a Shell spokesman in Anchorage said, after the company spent $84 million on its Beaufort Sea leases and intends to drill prospects there called Sivulliq and Torpedo that are known to contain hydrocarbons.

Two dead after stabbing rampage near S China school

BEIJING, 15 April—A mentally ill man went on a stabbing rampage after students left a nearby elementary school, killing a second grader and an elderly passer-by and wounding five others, a government web site said Tuesday, in the second random attack on schoolchildren in three weeks.

The attack on Monday afternoon in Hepu County of southern China's Guangxi region happened not long after classes were dismissed at the Xizhen Elementary School, according to a statement on the web site of Beihai city, which oversees Hepu.

The attacker, whom the official XINHUA NEWS AGENCY said was about 40 years old, was about a quarter-mile (400 meters) away from the school, chasing people and stabbing them. He was detained by police after the attack, XINHUA said, but gave no other details, such as his name or motive.

The wounded included two elementary school students, a younger child not yet in school and two other passers-by, the Beihai statement said. They were hospitalized and one was in serious condition.

The attacks come after a crime that shocked China on March 23, when a former medical worker stabbed eight children to death as they stood outside the gates of their elementary school in southern Fujian province. Zheng Minsheng reportedly said in court that he had been rejected by a woman and treated unfairly by her wealthy family, and admitted to "killing" the children.

MADRID, 15 April—Barcelona followed up their impressive win over Real Madrid five nights ago with a convincing 3-0 home win over Deportivo La Coruna on Wednesday to go six points clear of Real at La Liga summit.

After scoring against Real, winger Pedro Rodriguez was on the scoresheet again with a fantastic second half strike from 45 yards out in the pick of the goals after Bojan Krkic had opened the scoring on the quarter hour mark. Yaya Toure netted the other goal in a comfortable night for the champions.

It was a seventh successive league win for Barca who are six points clear with six games left although Real Madrid can close back to within three points with a win at Almeria on Thursday.

Fan of Serbian Soccer Club Shot During Brawl

BELGRADE, 15 April— Serbian police say a fan of soccer club Red Star Belgrade has been shot and seriously wounded in a brawl during a match against a rival club.

Police say 21-year-old Igor Vrelc was shot in the abdomen during a local match between Red Star and OFK Beograd late Wednesday.

The incident did not interrupt the game, which Red Star later won. Doctors said Thursday that Vrelc is in stable condition after undergoing surgery.

Use natural fertilizer to prevent environmental pollution

Byline: Singu Soe Win; Photos: Phyo Sithu (Insein)

A pile of bags of natural fertilizer ready for sale.

Development tasks of Bago are significant and bewitch our news hunters' mind to observe. We there made a study of water supply system, beautifying the town and remanufacture of valuable natural organic fertilizer from wastes and rubbishes.

Bago is composed of 31 wards. Due to tourists observing ancient historic pagodas, ancient palace (Kambawza Thadi) and museums, and standing at a short distance from Yangon, Bago is swarming with people daily.

It is reliable that the Township Development Affairs Committee is forging ahead with plans for requirements of Bago busying itself with daily visitors and locals.

Water is obtained by damming Thephyu creek flowing from Bago Yoma and collecting rains. Then it was stored in Kandawgyi Lake about five miles northwest of the town, from which the water is supplied to downtown Bago through water pipelines.

Existence of water supply system of Bago has passed many decades, supplying water to 12 wards, 59 lakes, 42 emergency taps, 52 public water posts and 1296 private water posts through 18-, 14- and 12-inch diameter pipeline as of 1924.

Deputy Director of Bago Development Affairs Committee U Tun Myaing said, "Daily water requirement of Bago is 1,542,000 gallons. More than one million gallons of water are being supplied daily to 31 wards. There is no need to worry any longer about water for Mazin Dam about three miles west of Bago has been translated as reserve water source."

Chief Engineer of Bago DAC U Aung Kyaw Lu and Assistant Engineer U Lay Lwin explained that the Township DAC had tarmacked on 24 roads and built an earth road, five rural roads and one tarred road. And one bridge had been constructed and two were under construction. After 1988, Bago sees 11 tarred roads, three gravel roads, 97 fine earth roads and 293 earth roads.

As to beautifying the town, downtown roads, the road section of Yangon-Mandalay Highway and Kyunthaya car park were decorated with pedestrian way, neat and tidy, which is 42,800 feet long.

Chief Inspector of

Township DAC U Zaw Lwin explained rubbish collection system to us.

He continued, "Apart from easily decaying rubbish like leaves and papers, the rest like plastic and glass are to be buried. We first splash easily decaying rubbish with EM micro-biotic liquid and then discard them for about six months to get organic natural fertilizer."

We together with Deputy Director U Tun Myaing, and Chief Engineer U Aung Kyaw Lu observed organic natural fertilizer workshop, rubbish tanks and seasonal plants with the use of the organic fertilizer.

It is admirable and nice of Bago Township DAC's efforts to produce such environment-friendly fertilizer from wastes. The best endeavours of the Township DAC creating lovely environment are the epitome of other townships.

Bago District possesses abundant paddy plantations. As young paddy sapling growing method has been introduced in the region, local farmers are in need of using low-cost organic natural fertilizer to improve their living standards and to prevent environmental pollution
