Government, people and Tatmadaw join hands to overcome difficulties

Under the arrangements of the National Disaster Preparedness Central Committee, a ceremony to honour those who constructed Cyclone Shelters took place at the hall of Ministry of Construction in Nay Pyi Taw on 31 August, with an address by Chairman of the NDPCC Prime Minister U Thein Sein.

Today, the world encounters various natural disasters. In early May 2008, Myanmar was hit by the cyclone Nargis, which is the strongest in the course of Myanmar history. Due to the storm, the total loss of State-owned and private-owned property amounted to K 11.7 trillion.

The government carried out emergency rescue and relief works expeditiously. In accord with the guidance of the Head of State, the government systematically carried out emergency rescue work and provided temporary accommodation during the first phase, rehabilitation during the second phase and regional development and long-term preparedness and prevention against natural disaster during the third phase. At present, the storm survivors have enjoyed the better living standard than in the past.

In addition to Hillocks and Cyclone Shelters, the Road Network is being constructed not only for the preventive measures against natural disasters in the long run but for production roads.

Making energetic efforts in rehabilitation and reconstruction of the storm-ravaged regions by overcoming difficulties of weather, transport and vehicle reflects genuine goodwill of the State and wellwishers towards the storm-hit people.

In times of emergency, the entire people upholding national spirit are to join hands with the government and the Tatmadaw for overcoming various difficulties and obstacles through the united strength.

Typhoon suspends S Korean flights, subway, kills three

SEOUL, 2 Sept—Typhoon Kompasu slammed into South Korea on Thursday, killing three people in what was called the strongest tropical storm to hit the Seoul area in 15 years.

Powerful gusts knocked over trees, power lines and streetlights, cutting off power to tens of thousands of homes and forcing airports to cancel or delay dozens of international flights, the National Emergency Management Agency said.

More than 60 international flights were delayed or canceled, mostly to and from China, officials at Incheon and Gimpo airports said. Service on two Seoul subway lines and five railway routes was suspended, officials said.

An 80-year-old man died after being hit by a roof tile and a 37-year-old businessman was killed on his way to work by a falling tree branch, the emergency management agency said. A 75-year-old man was electrocuted while examining a transformer, and four people were injured by broken glass, it said.

Elementary and middle schools in the capital, Seoul, were ordered to delay the start of the school day by two hours, while all public and private kindergartens were closed for the day, the Seoul Metropolitan Office of Education said.

American troops killed in Afghan attacks

KABUL, 2 Sept—Two American troops died in fighting in Afghanistan on Thursday, while NATO said it had killed the leader of an insurgent cell responsible for laying roadside bombs and smuggling foreign fighters into the country.

NATO said one service member was killed in the country's east, the other in the south — regions where fighting between the coalition and Taleban insurgents has been at its most intense. No other details were given in keeping with standard NATO procedure.

The deaths bring to three the number of US service members killed in September and follows a spike in casualties during the last two weeks of August that saw the monthly total rise to 55. The August figure was still below the back-to-back monthly records of 66 in July and 60 in June.

India to test-fire newly-improved medium-range ballistic missile Agni-II+

MUMBAI, 2 Sept—India will test-fire the newly improved medium-range ballistic missile Agni-II+ around the end of this month to strengthen the aerial strategic deterrent capability, local media reported on Thursday.

The Agni-II+ will be launched from an interim test range on the coast of the eastern Indian state of Orissa by the Indian Defence Research and Development Organization (DRDO), the Orissa government-run website Orissadiary quoted an official of the DRDO as saying.

The missile is a completely new version of the Agni-II with several advanced technologies adopted in its design. In comparison to its previous version, Agni-II+ has the extended range of 3,000 kilometres, bridging the gap between the 2000km-range Agni-II and 3500km-range Agni-III medium-range ballistic missiles, said the official.

Agni-II+ weighs about 17 tons with the length of 21 metres. It could carry a nuclear warhead of over one ton for long-range strike, according to the official.

Agni-II is the second member of the Indian most powerful surface-to surface ballistic missile family of Agni series, which include Agni-I, Agni-II, Agni-III and Agni-V.

On 27 Aug, Indian Defence Minister AK Antony said India was ready to first test-fire the newly developed inter-continental ballistic missile Agni-V. But he did not disclose the date for Agni-V's test.

Jordan discovers 3,000-year-old Iron Age temple

AMMAN, 2 Sept—Archaeologists in Jordan have unearthed a 3,000-year-old Iron Age temple with a trove of figurines of ancient deities and circular clay vessels used for religious rituals, officials said Wednesday.

The head of the Jordanian Antiquities Department, Ziad al-Saad, said the sanctuary dates to the eighth century BC and was discovered at Khirbat 'Ataroz near the town of Mabada, some 20 miles (32 kilometres) southwest of the capital Amman.

The Moabites, whose kingdom ran along present-day Jordan's mountainous eastern shore of the Dead Sea, were closely related to the Israelites, although the two were in frequent conflict. The Babylonians eventually conquered the Moabites in 582 BC.

Archaeologists also unearthed some 300 pots, figurines of deities and sacred vessels used for worship at the site. Al-Saad said it was rare to discover so many Iron Age items in one place.

Excavations began in Khirbat 'Ataroz in 2000 in cooperation with the California-based La Sierra University, but the majority of the items were only discovered in the past few months.

Among the items on display Wednesday, there was a four-legged animal god Hadad, as well as delicate circular clay vessels used in holy rites. Al-Saad said the objects indicate the Moabites worshipped many deities and had a highly organized ritual use of temples.

The items will be scientifically analyzed and conserved before going on display in Jordan's archaeological museum.—Internet

Famed Tasmanian devil euthanized after tumor found

SYDNEY, 2 Sept—A Tasmanian devil named Cedric, once thought to be immune to a contagious facial cancer threatening the iconic creatures with extinction, has been euthanized after succumbing to the disease, researchers said Wednesday.

The death of the devil — previously heralded as a possible key to saving the species — is another blow for scientists struggling to stop the rapid spread of the cancer, which is transmitted when the furry black marsupials bite each other.

The Tasmanian devil population has plummeted by 70 percent since Devil Facial Tumor Disease was first discovered in 1996. The snarling, fox-sized creatures — made famous by their Looney Tunes cartoon namesake Taz — don't exist in the wild outside Tasmania, an island state south of the Australian mainland.

In 2007, Menzies

researchers injected Cedric and his half brother Clinky with facial cancer cells. Clinky developed the disease, but Cedric showed an immune response and grew no tumors — giving researchers hope that he could help them create a vaccine.

But in late 2008, Cedric developed two small facial tumors after being injected with a different strain of the cancer, which causes grotesque facial growths that eventually grow so large, it becomes impossible for the devils to eat. Current estimates suggest the species could be extinct within 25 years due to the prolific spread of the cancer.

Researchers removed the tumors, and Cedric appeared to be rallying. But X-rays taken two weeks ago showed the cancer had spread to the 5-year-old's lungs, Kreiss said. Tests confirmed the lung tumors were a result of facial tumor disease.—Internet

Apple unveils new TV set-top box

SAN FRANCISCO, 2 Sept—Apple Inc on Wednesday unveils a new version of its TV set-top box which is smaller and cheaper.

The new Apple TV is a quarter of the size of the previous version and can be easily held in people's hand, Apple CEO Steve Jobs said at a media event held in San Francisco. The device supports video streaming from Netflix Inc, a company that offers movies and TV shows rental by mail and online.

Apple TV can also stream content from websites such as YouTube, as well as music, photos and videos from users' computers to their high definition (HD) TVs. The TV show rental service gives users up to 30 days to start watching and then 48 hours to finish or watch multiple times.

Apple confirmed that ABC, ABC Family, Fox, Disney Channel and BBC America have agreed to offer shows for streaming. "We think the rest of the studios will see the light and get on board with us," Jobs said.

Apple said the new product will be available later this month and can be pre-ordered beginning Wednesday on the company's online store.—Xinhua

PlayStation 3 will be ready for 3D by October

SAN FRANCISCO, 2 Sept—PlayStation 3 owners will finally be able to watch movies in 3D by October, Sony CEO Howard Stringer promised during his speech Wednesday at the Internationale Funkausstellung (IFA) trade show in Berlin.

The work on the 3D software upgrade is now complete, and the upgrade will be done by October, according to Stringer. Users who have a 3D-compatible TV set and PlayStation 3 will be able to watch 3D movies on Blu-ray discs, Stringer said.

Sony continues to work on Vaio laptops with 3D screens. At the show, Sony demonstrated a prototype that can produce 240 frames per second and uses the same active shutter technology, which means users need glasses to see the 3D effect.

For users who want a bigger picture than most TV sets are capable of producing, Sony also announced its first 3D home projector. The VPL-VW90ES will be able to project 3D in 1080p, according to Sony, and will be available across Europe in November.—Internet

Google data gathering was not a crime

WELLINGTON, 2 Sept—New Zealand police said Thursday that Google did not commit a criminal offence when it collected data from wireless networks for its "Street View" mapping service.

The New Zealand Privacy Commissioner called in police in June after Google admitted that its cars taking photographs of cities in more than 30 countries had inadvertently gathered personal data sent over unsecured wifi systems.

Privacy regulators in Australia, Europe, the US and Canada also launched investigations into data the web giant's camera-equipped cars collected while taking photos of streets and houses.

New Zealand police said Google's actions did not constitute a criminal offence and they had referred the matter back to the Privacy Commissioner.

Concerns in the case centre on Google's collection of so-called "payload data", unencrypted information sent on wireless networks that are not protected by passwords which can contain personal information, including the content of e-mails.

Google said in July that its "Street View" cars would resume operations in some countries but collect only photos and 3D imagery, not wifi data.—Internet

Health Tip: Breastfeeding Toddlers

Mums have the right to breastfeed their toddlers anywhere they need to, the same as with breastfeeding babies. These rights are protected under antidiscrimination law in all states of Australia. However, if you feel less comfortable breastfeeding a toddler in public here are some tips to make it easier:

- Breastfeed with your toddler sitting in your lap, rather than lying down.
- In cafes, choose a corner or a booth and turn your back to the other customers.
- Breastfeed at home before you go out.
- Offer snacks or drinks first.
- Discuss with your toddler what you feel is acceptable for breastfeeding when out and about, including where you will feed and how long for.
- Use a parents' room at shopping centres as many have private feeding areas – and the toilets are handy!—Internet

Dengue fever at its peak during Commonwealth Games

NEW DELHI, 2 Sept—A viral fever that spreads through mosquito bites is likely to be at its peak during next month's Commonwealth Games in New Delhi, health officials in India said Wednesday.

Dengue fever, a painful illness that can be life-threatening, is on the rise with close to 1,000 cases reported in the Indian capital. It has led countries like Britain, Australia, Malaysia and New Zealand to issue health warnings. Dr VK Monga, the health committee chairman of the Municipal Corporation of Delhi, conceded that "mosquito breeding is likely to be at its peak during the games and dengue is a concern."

Mosquitoes that spread the fever are known to bite during the day, making athletes during the 3-14 Oct Games vulnerable at venues. Most of the 11 stadium clusters are still being worked on. Though work on the main structures is close to completion, areas around the stadiums remain dug up at several places.

Delhi Health Minister Kiran Walia conceded it was a point of concern. "The city government has ordered municipal authorities to ensure there is no mosquito breeding in and around Games venues," Walia said. But Lalit Bhanot, secretary-general of the Commonwealth Games organizing committee, said the fever was not a major concern.

"We are confident the government will take necessary steps to ensure the dengue fever does not spread," Bhanot said. "I am sure it will be controlled with proper measures."—Internet

Singapore's elderly at risk of malnutrition

SINGAPORE, 2 Sept—IA survey found three in 10 elderly folks here at moderate to high risk of malnutrition, local radio 938 Live reported Wednesday.

The survey conducted on 421 relatively healthy elderly folks aged 50 years and above found that the risk of malnutrition increases with age.

Doctors say Singapore's elderly population is not eating right.

According to the survey, conducted from February to March this year by Abbott, only one percent of the elderly respondents met the Health Promotion Board's diet recommendations.

They do not take enough foods which contain calcium, carbohydrates and fiber.

The elderly living in private apartments and condominiums are also found to be at risk.

And doctors are worried about the trend.

Senior Consultant Geriatrician Chan Kin Wing said that this is very significant as three in ten is about 30 percent, or almost 300,000 older people who are at risk in terms of absolute numbers.

VIENNA, 2 Sept—With the establishment of Shaolin Europe Association announced in Vienna on Wednesday, Chinese Kung Fu fans and Zen Buddhism culture enthusiasts across Europe will have a new platform to exchange ideas and promote Shaolin culture.

"Since Shaolin culture was introduced into Europe 20 years ago, it has been deeply loved by European people and become part of their life," said Shi Yongxin, Abbot of Shaolin Temple, which has been announced part of humanity's cultural heritage by UNESCO.

Shi Yongxin, who is visiting Austria for an international meeting, also said at a press conference that although hundreds of thousands of European people have had access to Shaolin Kung Fu training programmes, there is still room for improvement in terms of inadequate channels to spread Shaolin culture. That is where the new association comes in to better provide Shaolin culture for European people, he said.

Headquartered in the Shaolin Culture Centre in the German capital of Berlin, the association has been joined by 10 Shaolin branch units in Europe, according to an organizer at the press conference held in Hilton Vienna Plaza Hotel.

Nestled in the Songshan Mountains of China's Henan Province, and with a history of more than 1,500 years, the Shaolin Temple has long been considered by many as the Cradle of Chinese Kung Fu and home of Zen Buddhism culture. In recent years, it has sent its Kungfu masters to perform Kungfu arts all over the world and established Shaolin culture centres to help promote cultural exchanges between China and other countries.

In the process, the Tatmadaw has the State's seven-step Road Map on the go to achieve the national goal of democracy in order to satisfy the people's aspiration. Simultaneously, it is striving for sustainable peace and stability of the nation for a prosperous future of the people.

As a result, the people today show their trust and reliance on the Tatmadaw. The people are well convinced of the fact that the Tatmadaw is essential for the leadership role in maintaining the already-achieved development momentum and ensuring smooth and stable transition to democracy. Only with the participation of the Tatmadaw, will it be possible to ensure the future of the nation and the people. And only when the Tatmadaw is strong, so will the nation. That is why the people place trust and reliance on the Tatmadaw and want the Tatmadaw to remain strong and powerful. The people of us are confident that the nation will be strong only when the Tatmadaw is strong.

Yet, certain elements are desperate to break up the Tatmadaw. They are none other than a handful of axe-handles inside and outside the nation. They are so power-craving that they focus all their attention to power. Their concept is that only with the downfall of the Tatmadaw, will they come to power and enjoy a brighter future. And only when the Tatmadaw is weak, can they do at will. Thus, they are resorting to all possible ways and means to break up, weaken and divert the Tatmadaw from its course of national political way. Nonetheless, they are too foolish to visualize that if the Tatmadaw splits into pieces, so will the nation. Then, the entire people including them will fall under the rule of neo-colonialists. Moreover, the nation will encounter a wide range of evil consequences beyond imagination. They are getting desperate to come to power and doing indiscriminately, which is very dangerous to the nation.

It is common knowledge that the axe-handles in complicity with certain western radio stations are airing groundless news stories constantly. They have done so on purpose since late 1988. Their intention is to destroy the nation, to incite conflicts among the national people, and to push the nation under alien subjugation. That is known to all.

Nowadays, western radio stations are airing broadcasts designed to deal a devastating blow to the Tatmadaw. In the news stories, they say that the eight regiments under the brigade in Yemon are in defiance of commands because soldiers are not allowed to withdraw the money they have saved in the regiments concerned; and that they decline Nay Pyi Taw's intervention. In addition, they aired that the regiments in Yemon were surrounded by 400 troops from Nay Pyi Taw. Later, they said that the troops were as strong as 700. Then, they aired irresponsibly that the eight commanding officers were all detained to mollify the other ranks. They have been airing such baseless stories for months in a row, thus denoting the point that they turn more attention to the drive for breaking up the Tatmadaw.

The fabrications came from BBC correspondent U Than who has little knowledge of the Tatmadaw. Earlier that, he sent distorted news about battalions in Inma and Bago with the intent to sow discord among servicemen. Then, he turned to DI factories in Htonbo and Hsinte in Bago Region. Now, the people have realized that the regions, battalions and factories remain normal without any problems.

Yemon Brigade (11) remains stable and all the officers and other ranks keep on shouldering duties as the motto "We will remain united whoever try to divide us". No soldiers were in defiance of orders, nor were any regiments surrounded by troops from other regiments. Any commanding officers were not arrested, either. The whole Yemon Station remains bustling and peaceful. Now, the brigade commander shield football tournament is in progress in Yemon Station. So, every evening, Yemon Station is reverberating with voices of fans supporting their teams. I wish correspondent U Than would know that teams representing their regiments and units are wholeheartedly contending for the championship shield.

Although knowing that internal and external axe-handles and elements under the influence of the west are sending made-up stories, certain radio stations such as BBC are happy with airing such groundless news stories with the intention of sowing disunity among servicemen as well as among the people and creating public panic. They are anxious to stimulate sedition and downfall of the Tatmadaw. Someway, they are pushing artless people relying on external elements to the streets for mass demonstrations. Therefore, it is required of the people to realize their real intention.

Foreign radio stations hand in glove with internal and external axe-handles have been airing such fabricated news stories for long to trouble the nation and the people. They have tried so many times to break up the Tatmadaw. But, their schemes have never worked.

In the 1988 disturbances, anti-government groups resorted to a variety of ways to demolish the Tatmadaw. Many leaders of the anti-government groups gave anti-government talks eloquently. Besides, many fake announcements were issued that Air Force would launch bomb attacks; that Navy would open artillery fire; and that the Tatmadaw had collapsed. Nevertheless, the Tatmadaw remained stable and managed to save the nation and the people from threats. Servicemen discharged the duties assigned to them. That is a fine tradition of the Tatmadaw.

I would like to present another event in that regard. BBC correspondent Christopher Gunness in cooperation with Nay Min, Htay Aung, Htay Kywe and Ko Ko Lat conducted a made-up interview with Red Cross member as well as university student Ma Aye Nyein Thu to make mobs wild. In the interview, the female student made a lie that many other female students and she were raped in Insein Prison. There are so many similar evidences I can present.

Another news story is that over 20 groups of absconder axe-handles held DAB conference in a border area in the neighbouring country from 21 to 24 August. The conference laid down seven work programmes to speed up the campaign in cooperation with national race peace groups to disrupt 2010 elections. According to Internet blogs, the campaign covers boosting protests into public campaign and breaking the Tatmadaw. These points indicate that the axe-handle groups inside and outside the nation are implementing harmoniously their objective of breaking up the nation and the Tatmadaw.

Now, elections, the fifth step of the seven-step Road Map, are drawing near. The axe-handle groups and the West are found accelerating their destructive acts as they cannot stand for the process of shaping the nation into a democratic one. Therefore, the people are to remain constantly vigilant against such conspiracies in order to maintain the momentum of restoring stability and peace and we cannot miss the democracy goal that is now within the touching distance. The people have understood well that the broadcasts of the foreign radio stations are all groundless and tricky. So, the people should not place any trust in their stories. Without doubt, they keep on airing such baseless news stories. Hence, the people of us have to be aware of their broadcasts.

- * VOA, BBC-sowing hatred among the people
- * RFA, DVB-generating public outrage
- * Do not allow ourselves to be swayed by killer broadcasts designed to cause troubles

This public warning has been stated in daily newspapers and on TV for long in order that the people will not be caught in the snare set by those foreign radio stations. The public warning symbolizes the benevolent attitude the government shows to the people. Therefore, the people should not let themselves deceived by those killer radio stations and keep on taking strides till 2010 elections are held successfully and the democratic nation with flourishing discipline is built.

Qantas engine blast 'like fireworks', say passengers

SYDNEY, 2 Sept—Passengers on a Sydney-bound Qantas jet rocked by an exploding engine Thursday described how the plane felt like it had hit a "speed bump" and showered flames and sparks like fireworks.

The Qantas Boeing 747-400 had to turn back to San Francisco about half an hour into Monday's flight after an engine failed, blasting a large hole in its casing.

Passengers among the 212 on board finally arrived in Sydney on Thursday, and told of their alarm when the engine gave way with a "loud thump", sending rumbles through the aircraft.

"It was like the plane hit a speed bump," one man told a reporter at Sydney Airport.

Passengers on a Sydney-bound Qantas jet rocked by an exploding engine on Thursday described how the plane felt like it had hit a "speed bump" and showered flames and sparks like fireworks.—INTERNET

"The plane shuddered violently and passengers were quite concerned about what had happened," added another. "Basically the plane shuddered to the left and there were quite a deal of flames coming out of the engine. Somebody likened it to a roman candle (firework) that extended from the wing right down to the end of the plane."

Crew members dashed to the front of the aircraft and worried children had to be soothed, a third man said.

"We just told my son that they had to use special tools like daddy's at home to repair the plane, and that we would get to Sydney to see the kangaroos and the aquarium," he told ABC. Qantas, Australia's national airline, said investigations were underway into the incident, which it described as "excessive vibration" in one of the plane's four Rolls-Royce engines.

Initial checks confirmed that the engine had failed, and a spokesman said there were a couple of "holes" in the casing. Transport safety officials from Australia and the United States are now looking into the matter.

No one was injured and the aircraft landed back at San Francisco without incident, with the passengers taking a later flight.

Four allegedly stole from Detroit school

DETROIT, 2 Sept — A former Detroit school principal and the bookkeeper at her school have been charged with using school funds to buy items for their own use.

Wayne County District Attorney Kym Worthy said after the indictment was announced "stealing from children is the worst of the worst kind of theft."

LONDON, 2 Sept — A third of smokers are being forced to lie about their habit to find a home to rent, a survey has indicated. Only 7% of landlords will allow tenants to smoke in their properties, with 38% saying they would evict someone who smoked indoors, according to flatshare website Easyroommate.co.uk. The group found 67% of smokers are living in non-smoking accommodation, with 34% lying about their habit in order to secure a flatshare.

Nearly a third of smokers even claim they have considered giving up the habit in order to find somewhere to live.

Smokers are also unpopular with fellow tenants, with only 19% of people saying they would be prepared to share a home with a smoker, while 37% said they would only do so if their housemate agreed to just smoke outdoors. Jonathan Moore, the director of Easyroommate.co.uk, said: "With smoking in pubs and restaurants off the cards, the last refuge for smoking—at home—is being eroded now, too."

"There's been a strong shift in attitudes towards smoking, and the tolerance levels of smokers since the smoking ban. Smoker-friendly accommodation has been squeezed as a result." The group found smoking was most prevalent among younger people, who are also more likely to be looking for a flatshare than other age groups.

The whale became more stable during the past few days, permitting department workers to attempt to euthanize it. Explosive charges are "carefully set to cause the brain of the whale to implode," Higgs told United Press International on Thursday.

Discovery Channel HQ hostages freed as gunman shot dead

WASHINGTON, 2 Sept — A gunman who took three hostages at the Discovery Communications headquarters in the US has been shot dead by police and his captives have been set free. The man had metallic canisters strapped to his chest and a handgun when he entered the building near Washington DC, police said.

Officers opened fire because they thought the gunman was about to detonate his explosives, they added. The police had held several hours of talks with the man. Discovery employees were evacuated from the building shortly after the incident began at about 1700 GMT. The area around the building in Silver Spring, Maryland, was sealed off as police negotiated with the man.

After several hours, police began to fear for the safety of the hostages, said Montgomery County Police Chief J Thomas Manger.—Internet

Cell phone left in Ala burglary leads to arrest

Police investigating a home burglary in Russellville found a surprising clue—a cell phone that got left behind. Franklin County District Attorney Joey Rushing said the phone was left near where a computer was taken in the weekend burglary. Investigators began calling some of the phone numbers and determined the phone belonged to a 19-year-old who was on probation for a previous burglary.

The prosecutor said police also got surveillance video from the Wal-Mart in Russellville that shows the suspect cashing in coins believed to have been taken during the burglary.

Bog saves Finnish woman from 1,000 metre jump with unopened parachute

A young woman in Finland survived a jump from 1,000 metre height thanks to landing in a bog while her parachute failed to open, Finnish media reported on Monday.

The 20-year-old woman was making her first solo jump over Loppi in southern Finland on Sunday afternoon after completing a ski diving course.

For some reason still to be determined, the static line that was to open her parachute did not work and the chute did not deploy. She attempted to open her emergency parachute, succeeding only by the time she had reached tree-top level. However, she landed in a soft bog and walked away from her mishap.

The woman was taken to hospital where she was found to be almost completely unharmed.

The British woman was treated for scalding at the airport and released but not before the plane resumed its journey without her. She later took a train to Poland, police said.

Crouch injury another blow for Capello

LONDON, 2 Sept — Fabio Capello suffered another injury blow on Wednesday as Peter Crouch was ruled out of the Euro 2012 qualifiers against Bulgaria and Switzerland with a back injury. Crouch had been unable to take part in training with Fabio Capello's squad this week after suffering what he thought was a rib injury in Tottenham's defeat against Wigan on Saturday.

The former Liverpool striker has now been told he has a back problem, which is serious enough to force his withdrawal ahead of England's opening qualifier against Bulgaria at Wembley on Friday and the trip to Switzerland on Tuesday.

Hargreaves included in United squad

LONDON, 2 Sept — Manchester United midfielder Owen Hargreaves has been included in Sir Alex Ferguson's 25-man Premier League squad despite his continuing injury woes. Hargreaves has made just one substitute appearance for United in the last two years as he struggles with knee tendinitis.

There is still no date set for the former Bayern Munich star to return from injury and it had been suggested the England international would not make the cut when Ferguson selected his mandatory squad. But United confirmed on Wednesday that all of their senior players, including Hargreaves, have been registered to play in the domestic league.
