Ward off menace posed by narcotics

Today, people, rich or poor and countries, developed or developing, around the world are under grave threats posed by narcotic drugs.

Accordingly, it is much needed to educate the people about the menace of narcotics. Abuse of narcotic drugs can cause infection with HIV virus. Once addicted to narcotic drugs, youths are in no position to enjoy normal privileges of life.

Emphasis is therefore to be placed on educating the people especially the youth about narcotics in order for elimination of drug-related consequences.

Today, stimulant tablets produced scientifically with precursor chemicals are in place of narcotic drugs. Anti-narcotics operations are being implemented with increasing momentum. As a result, many more drug-smuggling gangs have been exposed at home and abroad.

The youth, the future of the nation, are most vulnerable to drugs. So, dangers being faced by many drug addict youths are shockingly alarming.

It is out of the question to lead a peaceful life if people have access to narcotics. So, only when one stays away from drug abuse will it be possible for one to enjoy a healthy life.

It is therefore mandatory for the entire people to take a role as a national duty in anti-narcotics measures so as to create a healthy society.

People's Desire

- * Oppose those relying on external elements, acting as stooges, holding negative views
- * Oppose those trying to jeopardize stability of the State and progress of the nation
- * Oppose foreign nations interfering in internal affairs of the State
- * Crush all internal and external destructive elements as the common enemy

BAGHDAD, 8 Sept—Iraqi police and health officials say at least six people have been killed and 35 wounded in two separate attacks in Baghdad.

A police officer says three policemen and one civilian have been killed when a parked car bomb exploded Wednesday near a bus station in the southern Bayaa neighbourhood. A second bomb targeting police and rescue services arriving at the blast site detonated minutes later.

There were no reports on casualties from the second blast.

In eastern Baghdad, two bombs near a bus station detonated simultaneously Wednesday, killing two civilians and wounding 12 others.

Health officials confirmed the death toll.

Iraqi journalist killed in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 8 Sept—An Iraqi journalist working for the country's official television was killed in western Baghdad on Tuesday morning, an Interior Ministry source said.

Riyadh al-Sarray, presenter of political and religious programmes in the state-run television Iraqia, was gunned down by armed men in their car in al-Harthiyah District when he was heading for work, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

The victim began to work for Iraqia TV in 2005 and had worked with several local television channels, the source said.

Statistics of the Iraqi Union of Journalists showed that more than 275 of its members and media workers have been killed since the start of the US-led war in March 2003.

According to earlier reports by Paris-based media watchdog Reporters Without Borders, after the outbreak of the 2003 war, Iraq has become the most dangerous place for journalists since World War II.

Second Hungarian soldier dies of Afghanistan wounds

BUDAPEST, 8 Sept—A second Hungarian soldier has died of wounds sustained in Afghanistan when their convoy was attacked by militants two weeks ago, the Hungarian Defence Ministry announced on Tuesday.

Corporal Gyorgy Kolozsvari, 37, died of shrapnel wounds in a Budapest hospital early on Tuesday. Killed immediately in the 23 Aug attack was Lieutenant Judit Abraham Papp. Two other Hungarians suffered serious but not life-threatening wounds.

Kolozsvari was flown home on 25 Aug and despite the round-the-clock efforts of doctors at Hungary's military hospital, his vital functions ceased after two weeks on a respirator.

Kolozsvari had been a professional soldier, who joined the military in 1996. He had served in Kosovo and in Bosnia-Herzegovina. He was on the way to the airport to return home following his second six-month tour in Afghanistan when attacked. Kolozsvari was married and had two young children.

Microbes are eating BP oil without using up oxygen

WASHINGTON, 8 Sept—Government scientists studying the BP disaster are reporting the best possible outcome: Microbes are consuming the oil in the Gulf without depleting the oxygen in the water and creating "dead zones" where fish cannot survive.

Outside scientists said this so far vindicates the difficult and much-debated decision by BP and the government to use massive amounts of chemical dispersants deep underwater to break up the oil before it reached the surface.

Oxygen levels in some places where the BP oil spilled are down by 20 percent, but that is not nearly low enough to create dead zones, according to the 95-page report released Tuesday.

In an unusual move, BP released 771,000 gallons of chemical dispersant about a mile deep, right at the spewing wellhead instead of on the surface, to break down the oil into tiny droplets.

The idea was to make it easier for oil-eating microbes to do their job. But the risk was that the microbes would use up the oxygen in the water. So BP had to perform a delicate balancing act.

"Has it hit the sweet spot? Yes. Was it by design? Partly," said Steve Murawski, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration senior scientist who headed the federal team of researchers.

BP will publish an eagerly awaited report on the causes of the Gulf of Mexico oil spill on Wednesday, the company announced.

Google milks animated doodle mystery on Twitter

SEATTLE, 8 Sept—For a dozen years, Google Inc has been occasionally swapping its everyday logo for a "doodle," a sketch celebrating holi-days, inventions, artists and sporting events, and showcasing designs from contest-winning students. Usually, Google makes it clear what's being celebrated, using the doodle as a lure to teach Web surfers more about the topic — artist Nam June Paik on his birthday, for example, or the history of China's lantern festival, to pick just two of more than 300 past designs.

But Google has so far left Tuesday's doodle a mystery, prompting people to speculate about the meaning of this mass of blue, red, yellow and green bouncing balls that skitter across Google.com as if allergic to the mousepointer before settling into the familiar logo pattern.

Google's official statement says merely that "today's doodle is fast, fun and interactive, just the way we think search should be."—Internet

Many HIV-infected kids could use cheaper treatment safely

WASHINGTON, 8 Sept—For HIV-infected children in the developing world, treatment choices have been limited by concerns over the possible development of resistance to drugs they received as infants during failed attempts to prevent their infection in the first place. But a new US National Institutes of Health-funded study suggests there may be a way to administer one particularly cheap and practical HIV drug — nevirapine — safely and effectively to many of these children. The finding was detailed by study co-author Louise Kuhn, a professor of epidemiology at the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University in New York City, and Dr Lynne Mofenson, chief of the pediatric, adolescent and maternal AIDS branch of the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, during a recent teleconference.

The study itself will be published in the 8 Sept issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Mofenson noted that globally 430,000 infants become infected with HIV. About 90 percent of these children live in sub-Saharan Africa.

Decline in adult smoking stalls, alarming experts

NEW YORK, 8 Sept—Although the hazards of smoking are well known, 20 percent of Americans still light up, US health officials said on Tuesday.

The number of adult smokers dropped between 2000 and 2005, but the decline has leveled out, according to a new report from the US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

"The 40-year decline in tobacco in the United States has stalled," CDC director Dr Thomas R Frieden said during an early afternoon press conference.

"Between 2005 and 2009 there was no further reduction in tobacco use," he said. And despite progress nearly 90 million American non-smokers are exposed to toxic chemicals in tobacco smoke."

Frieden laid the blame for the stalled smoking decline on the doorstep of the tobacco industry.

"The industry has gotten even better at sidestepping laws designed to get people to stop smoking," he said. "They ensure that every cigarette they sell is designed to deliver nicotine quickly and efficiently to keep people addicted."

In addition, the industry uses marketing techniques to get children to start smoking. And they create new products that get around laws to attract new smokers, Frieden said. More men (24 percent) than women (18 percent) were smoking in 2009, says the report, which also found that people with less education and lower incomes were more likely than others to smoke. Thirty-one percent of smokers live below the poverty level, and 25 percent never graduated from high school compared with 6 percent of those with graduate degrees, the report says.—Internet

Sinochem approaches Temasek on Potash bid

ORONTO, 8 Sept—China's state-owned Sinochem Corp has invited Temasek, the Singapore sovereign wealth fund, to join a consortium that may bid for Canada's Potash Corp (POT), the world's largest fertilizer supplier, sources with knowledge of the matter said on Tuesday.

The move follows an order by Chinese officials for state companies to meet investment bankers to explore ways to block BHP Billiton's (BHP AX)(BLT L) $39 billion hostile bid for Potash Corp.

Further raising pressure on BHP to sweeten its bid, Potash Corp said on Tuesday it had contacts with several other parties that had shown interest in possible transactions. It has called the Anglo-Australian miner's $130-a-share offer "grossly inadequate." "A number of third parties have already expressed interest in alternative transactions, some whom we approached and others, who initiated contact on their own," Potash Corp Chief Executive Bill Doyle said in a video clip posted on the company's website. Regional development tasks inspected in Sagaing District

Commander Brig-Gen Soe Lwin inspects Hsintat river water pumping project.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 8 Sept—Chairman of Sagaing Region Peace and Development Council Commander of North-West Command Brig-Gen Soe Lwin met servicemen and family members at the hall of the local battalion in Sagaing on 6 September. At Sagaing People's Hospital, he comforted the patients.

The commander looked into progress of No. 3 inter-district road and gave necessary instructions to officials.

He visited Sagaing Cotton Farm and Ohndaw Power Station.

Next, the commander heard reports on progress of Sagaing-Monywa-Shwebo Road presented by officials.

The commander viewed supply of water at Hsintat River Water Pumping Project and thriving monsoon paddy plantations.

In an interview, NyaungU District PDC Chairman U Yan Lin Aung explained cultivation of monsoon and summer paddy in the locality where only tobacco and oil crops were grown in the past, thanks to the implementation of hydropower river water pumping stations; improving incomes of local people; food and oil sufficiency; and construction of Ayeyawady Bridge (Pakokku) which will link the area with those on the west bank of the Ayeyawady.

U Thura Tun Lin, NyaungU Township PDC Chairman, talked about tapping potable water in rural areas, sinking artesian wells, making the region a plastic free zone and conserving forests in an interview at his office.

When I was gazing at green paddy fields on my way to Letpanchepaw River Water Pumping Station, Deputy Director U Maung Maung Lwin of NyaungU Township Water Resources Utilization Department said, "These fields are irrigation area of Kyaukku River Water Pumping Station. The region hasn't seen a paddy plantation before the implementation of river water pumping station. Now it is able to cultivate monsoon and summer paddy as the irrigation water is available in all seasons."

Letpanchepaw River Water Pumping Station.

The farmlands had to be fertilized to grow paddy because they were sandy ones in the absence of paddy cultivation previously.

Some villages in the region had struggled for drinking water and had depended upon Ayeyawady River for potable water. The ponds implemented on either sides of motor road to which the water is supplied through cannels of the river water pumping station help the residents overcome their drinking water scarcity.

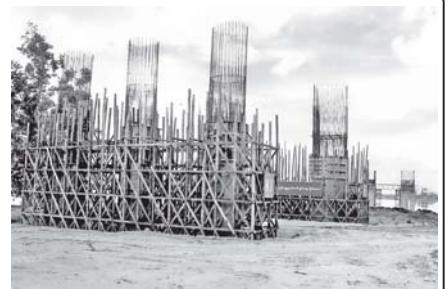

The Letpanchepaw River Water Pumping Station—one of five river water pumping stations in NyaungU District — irrigates 1500 acres of farmlands. All stations, which irrigate 29700 acres of farmlands in total, make the best use of Ayeyawady River water as a priceless resource.

I picked up the chance to observe the construction site of Ayeyawady Bridge (Pakokku) project. It is encouraging to see the on-going construction of the bridge despite the rising water. The 47.78 per cent of the project which started on 15 December 2009 was completed in early August. The scene of piles emerging from the Ayeyawady is catching every one's attention. After the installation of steel girders, the view of the project will become more attractive.

Together with Staff Officer U Zaw Win of Township Forest Department, I visited forest conservation project of local people of Gabani (Red Bank), a village located by NyaungU-Myingyan motorway. The 75-acre firewood plantation was established in 2009-2010 fiscal year.

"Rural people took little interest in establishment of forest. Firewood was near at hand in the past but not now," U Zaw Win said. He also added that local residents will have to take responsibility of the local people-owned forest in the future after the management of the Forest Department is over.

I also observed the water supplying centre of NyaungU Township Development Affairs

Construction of Ayeyawady Bridge (Pakokku) which will become the longest bridge in Myanmar seen on Letpanchepaw Bank.

Committee. Its main water pumping station is situated on Natthamee Bank of the Ayeyawady River. Water is stored in 810,000-gallon tank at Hngetpyittaung re-pumping station and supplied through three pipelines 24 hours a day. It is the longest water supply system in Myanmar as it reaches to 60 miles stretch of rural areas.

With the help of Bridge Asia Japan (BAJ), artesian wells were sunk and 5000-gallon ponds dug for the areas which had to face water shortage in summer. A total of 225 artesian wells have been sunk and plans to dig more are under way.

While I passed the arch reading "Bagan Archaeological Region", it was almost dark and the night lights came on. Because of the rainfalls, it is sure the oil crops plantations will exceed the target. Although I got wet in Bagan rain as I left the umbrella at home, I was thanking rain for it will improve the economic status of local farmers by helping them generate more income. It is the rain of prosperity.

PM: the drive for building a modern...

The ceremony was formally opened by a song of students from Nay Pyi Taw No. 11 BEHS.

In his address, the Prime Minister said that, at the time when the government is striving for emergence of peaceful, modern and developed nation with the help of own national strength of all citizens, it is required not only to improve modern science and technologies in all sectors to be able to gear up the national development tasks and to turn out highly qualified intelligent and intelligent-sia but also to place em-widespread literacy programmes coverage across the globe. As a member of the United Nations, the Union of Myanmar observes the International Literacy Day yearly.

In 2010, two in every three of the world's 759 million illiterate adults are women. So the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization organized the World Conference on Education for All in Jomtien, Thailand in 1990 and World Education Forum in Dakar, Senegal in 2010 separately with the goal of reducing phasis on basic literacy programmes for every citizen to be able to acquire knowledge on every subject.

Designated in 1966 by the United Nations, International Literacy Day is celebrated on 8 September yearly with the aim of ensuring the adult illiteracy rate. The General Assembly of the United Nations designated the decade from 2003 to 2012 as United Nations Literacy Decade that highlights literacy programme to gain higher momentum.

As to literacy of Myanmar, till 1886

Myanmar stood tall with own monarchs with literacy rate as high as 85 per cent. During the colonial period, literacy rate dropped under the colonial education. After independence in 1948, literacy rate dropped to 35 per cent. As public education courses and three Rs courses, education programme for creation of new life and monastic education programme were introduced by the government since Myanmar regained her independence, literacy rate increased to 57 per cent in 1963.

As part of its programme to promote literacy, three-Rs campaign was started in Meiktila District in 1964. Under the leadership of Myanmar Central Literacy Committee, Literacy Programme has been extended annually. Within the period from 1969 to 1983, Literacy Day was celebrated in Mandalay, Yangon, Magway, Bago and Ayeyawady Regions and Mon State. Due to literacy campaign, Myanmar won two prizes awarded by UNESCO—Mohammad Reza Pahlavi Prize in 1971 and the Noma Prize in 1983.

Nowadays, the government is making endeavours for uplifting health, fitness and education standards of the entire nation as a national goal to develop our country and nationalities and to keep abreast with the global community.

Upholding the motto "Build modern developed nation through education", Formal and Non-Formal Education programmes are being implemented systematically in line with changing education concepts so as to promote education standards of the every citizen. With respect to development of education sector, one can see the development of Formal Education and Non-Formal Education sectors harmoniously.

Learning system has emerged not only in the class rooms but in any where. And it has developed in parallel with the development of every citizen, regions and the country.

With respect to school education, a mass activity campaign was launched in pursuit of the goal of ensuring every school-age child has access to and completes school education. As a result, the school enrolment rate of children over five years increased to 98.37 per cent in 2010-2011 Academic Year. In order to expedite the drive, 28,897 primary schools, 6651 post-primary schools, 3022 basic education middle schools and 2305 basic education high schools, totaling 40,875 schools are running the same academic year.

In addition, mobile schools are opened for children of the parents with mobile occupations, and non-formal primary education programmes are ongoing for those who have completed "Three Rs course", and those who have left schools for various seasons. In like manner, inclusive education programmes are being implemented for disabled children.

At the same time, basic literacy programmes and continuing education programmes are underway for those people who did not go to school in their youth for various reasons.

This year, 21,261 Three R's courses were conducted across the nation with 41,293 course instructors under the leadership of the Ministry of Education, appropriate projects laid down by states and regions, and contributions made by local administrative bodies, education staff, social organizations and local people. Due to the courses, 925,806 illiterates became literate, 175,861

BOULDER, 8 Sept—David Myers knew it was time to leave when he looked out into the forest and spotted bright red flames towering skyward. Then came a blinding cloud of smoke and a deafening roar as the fire ripped through the wilderness.

"You can hear just this consumption of fuel, just crackling and burning. And the hardest thing is you couldn't see it because at the point the smoke was that thick," he said.

Myers was among about 3,500 people who desperately fled the fire after it erupted in a tinder-dry canyon northwest of Boulder on Monday and swallowed up dozens of homes. Residents packed everything they could into their cars and sped down narrow, winding roads to safety, encountering a vicious firestorm that melted the bumper of one couple's van.

Myers said Tuesday afternoon that people told him they believed his house was destroyed. He said while he's sure he will experience "a varied level of emotions" about losing it, he remembers how he felt when fleeing the wildfire.

"All that really matters to us was my wife and I getting each other, getting the dogs, and getting out of there," Myers said. "We grabbed a couple of things, but when we look around, and we go, 'What should I take?' it all seems pretty irrelevant."

Authorities said Tuesday night they counted 92 structures that have been destroyed and another eight that have been damaged. A government website listed the addresses of 53 homes destroyed based on a survey of only 5 to 10 percent of the burned area.

Tropical storm cuts off electricity, water supply in NE Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 8 Sept—The tropical storm Hermine has cut off electricity and water supply in northeast Mexico, the director of Tamaulipas' Civil Protection Salvador

Tevino said on Tuesday. However, industrial and trading activities in Tamaulipas were not interrupted despite the electricity and water cutoff. There was not any damages to highways and rural roads, said Tevino at a press conference.

About 2,300 people were evacuated from Matamoros and the municipalities of Soto La Marina and Aldama because of the pouring rains and winds with the speed of 100 kilometres per hour,

Hermine caused floods in 115 districts of Matamoros. The energy supply service was suspended in 80 percent areas of Matamoros because many trees and electricity equipment fell in the rain. The workers of the Electricity Federal Commission (CFE) are working to restore the service. Meanwhile, the chief of Matamoros' naval zone, Alejandro Salomon Velmar told reporters that a ship with three people aboard was reported missing after Hermine made landfall.

Oil falls below $74 on EU bank debt worries

SINGAPORE, 8 Sept—Oil prices skidded below $74 a barrel Wednesday in Asia as crude traders followed regional stocks down on reports European banks may be saddled with more debt than previously estimated.

Benchmark oil for October delivery was down 37 cents at $73.72 a barrel at midday Singapore time in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract fell 51 cents to settle at $74.09 on Tuesday.

Most major Asian stock markets fell Wednesday and the Dow Jones industrial average stumbled 1 percent Tuesday after reports that EU stress tests of 91 banks in July understated some lenders' holdings of potentially risky debt. Germany's top 10 banks will have to raise as much as $135 billion to meet new capital requirements, reports said.

Oil traders often look to equities as a barometer of overall investor sentiment.

Some analysts are concerned that slowing

US economic growth in the second half could undermine crude demand. Bank of America Merrill Lynch expects crude to average $78 a barrel in the second half and $85 next year.

"Following robust increases in oil demand over the past 12 months on a stimulus-driven rebound, we now see some downside risk as slower growth sets in and developed countries' oil inventories remain high," B of A said in a report.

No bomb found on Thai passenger plane

LOS ANGELES, 8 Sept—A bombsquad found no evidence of an explosive or bomb on board a Thai passenger plane which received written terror threats, the FBI said early Wednesday.

Thai Airways Flight 794 landed at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) Tuesday night after written threats which said there was a bomb on board were found in a lavatory, according to the FBI.

The flight from Bangkok landed at LAX at 8:45 p.m. and was taken to a remote part of the airport, said Laura Eimiller of FBI.

About 200 passengers and crew were taken off the plane and were interviewed, Eimiller said.

All baggage has been X-rayed and most of the passenger and cargo areas inside the aircraft have been inspected, but no evidence of an explosive or bomb was found, Eimiller said.

Law enforcement and airport officials were notified at 7:15 pm of an alleged threat on board the aircraft, which was scheduled to land at 8:44 pm, said Sgt. Belinda Nettles of LAX Police Department.

Eighteen fire trucks and fire engines were placed on standby at the airport where the aircraft was expected to land, said Devin Gales of the Los Angeles Fire Department.

An investigation was underway to ascertain the person or group responsible for making the threat, Nettles said.

Farms, roads and caravan park flooded in Fermanagh

LONDON, 8 Sept—A number of properties have been flooded in County Fermanagh after the Colebrooke River burst its banks near Lisnaskea.

Giant hay bale kills former ELO cellist

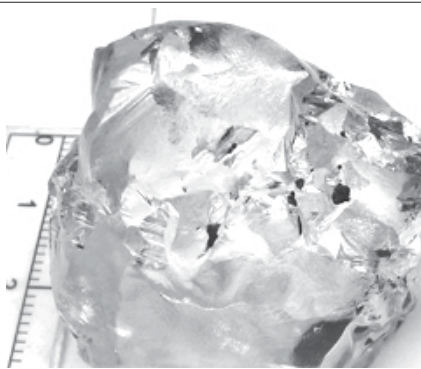

A giant bale of hay has killed a founding member of the Electric Light Orchestra (ELO) band after it tumbled down a hill and crashed into his van.

Celist Mike Edwards, 62, died after the 600 kg (1,323 lb) bale rolled down a steep field in Devon, southern England, smashed through a hedge and careered on to the road.

He died instantly in the freak accident on Friday afternoon.

Police said they used photographs and YouTube footage to identify Edwards and are investigating whether the bale may have fallen from a tractor working on farmland near the road.

Edwards, who played with the band between 1972 and 1975, is believed to have swerved into another vehicle as the bale crushed his cab.

Belgian burns fingers setting world chip-making record

A Belgian maker of French fries, the country's proud national dish, has set a new world record for non-stop chip-making after frying mountains of potato strips for 83 consecutive hours.

The record by 53-year-old Chris Verschueren, owner of a French fries business, beat by 11 hours a previous record of 72 hours set in 1987 by a Briton chip chef. "My fingers are burnt, my feet are sore and my wrist is painful," he said.

"But it doesn't matter, I'm going to party now."

People queue up to have French fries in 2006, on the opening day of the 7th "Week of the French Fries" in Antwerp, Belgium. A Belgian maker of French fries, the country's proud national dish, has set a new world record for non-stop chip-making after frying mountains of potato strips for 83 consecutive hours.

morning in his village of Kastel till he ran out of steam Monday night, Verschueren cooked up 1,500 kilos of chips, taking a 100-minute break after 20 hours for a shower and a stretch.

His bid to set a new record for the amount of ships sold — 1,500 bags — failed however.

The new world record-holder embarked on the challenge in order to raise funds for a children's hospital as his own five-year-old has been ill since birth.

Venice film fest fights its corner as crisis bites

VENICE, 8 Sept—A dearth of big Hollywood stars, Venice's notoriously high costs, fierce competition from Toronto — this year's film festival on the Lido is fighting to keep its place on the map as one of cinema's most prestigious events.

The venue itself is a building site, with completion of the long-delayed new Palazzo del Cinema — its main screening theater — now not expected until 2012.

The xx win Britain's Mercury Prize for debut album

LONDON, 8 Sept—Electronic band The xx have scooped prestigious British music award the Mercury Prize for their debut album "xx", beating off stiff competition from a host of top acts.

Judges handed the 20,000-pound (31,000-dollar, 24,000-euro) prize for best album of the past 12 months to the three-piece at a ceremony in central London late Tuesday.

Australian author Carey shortlisted for Booker Prize record

LONDON, 8 Sept—Peter Carey could scoop the Booker Prize for a record third time after the Australian author was named on the shortlist Tuesday for one of the world's most prestigious literary awards.

His novel "Parrot and Olivier in America" is among six books nominated for the prize, with South Africa's Damon Galgut, Ireland's Emma Donoghue and three British authors providing the competition.

"It's been a great privilege and an exciting challenge for us to reduce our longlist of 13 to this shortlist of six outstandingly good novels," said Andrew Motion, Britain's former poet laureate who chairs the judges.—Internet

BASEL, 8 Sept—England captain Steven Gerrard admits to feeling like a man under siege as he prepares to lead his team into a UEFA Euro 2012 qualifier against Switzerland here on Tuesday desperately trying to keep the focus on football.

The match is potentially the pivotal fixture in Group G after England beat Bulgaria 4-0 in their opening game and could be the start of a post-World Cup revival for Fabio Capello's side that helps heal the still-smarting wounds of South Africa.

But instead of talking about qualification in the build-up to the crucial fixture both Gerrard and Capello have found themselves distracted by the private life of star striker Wayne Rooney.

Mourinho wants Bayern's 'Schweini', says Bild

BERLIN, 8 Sept — Having already brought two German World Cup stars, Sami Khedira and Mesut Ozil, to Real Madrid, coach Jose Mourinho now has his sights on a third: Bastian Schweinsteiger, Bild reported on Tuesday.

Mourinho, who took over at the Santiago Bernabeu this season, made a beeline for the Bayern Munich midfielder after a tribute match to Germany legend Franz Beckenbauer in Germany on 13 August, the daily said.

Shaking the 26-year-old by the hand and looking him in the eye, according to Bild, which didn't cite its sources, Mourinho told him: "I wanted to get you last year, but it didn't happen. "Next year you belong to me."

Schweinsteiger, a key playmaker in Germany's World Cup — Joachim Loew's side lit up the championship with demolition jobs of Australia, England and Argentina, finishing third — could indeed go to Real next year, Bild believes.

NEW YORK, 8 Sept—Caroline Wozniacki's demolition of Maria Sharapova to reach the US Open quarter-finals has blasted a clear passage into Saturday's final for the Danish top seed.

The Russian former champion had been seen as the major threat to the 20-year-old Dane in her half of the draw and she calmly snuffed out that danger with a 6-3, 6-4 fourth round win. Iniesta has seen W Cup goal 'a thousand times'

MADRID, 8 Sept—Barcelona star midfielder Andres Iniesta says he has watched his World Cup-winning goal "a thousand times" on television, but it never feels as good as it did on the pitch. "I watch all my matches many times," the 26-year-old Barcelona playmaker told the Spanish daily El Pais.

"It helps me to improve. Also, they repeat it a lot. So whether I like it or not, I have seen the goal a thousand times," said Iniesta, favourite for the 2010 Golden Ball.

"But the sensation on the pitch is unrepeatable," he added. "Watching it is not the same as scoring it." Iniesta swept Spain to a thrilling 1-0 World Cup victory over the Netherlands on 11 July with an unstoppable strike past the goalkeeper from inside the box four minutes from the end of extra-time.

"There is a goal in that final which is personal, very much mine. What bothers me is that I don't score that many goals and now none of the goals I score will be valued as much as that one." —Internet

Kuyt out for four weeks with shoulder injury

LIVERPOOL, 8 Sept—Liverpool forward Dirk Kuyt faces a four-week injury lay-off after damaging a shoulder on international duty with the Netherlands, the club confirmed on Tuesday.

The 30-year-old Anfield ace suffered the injury during training ahead of Holland's Euro 2012 with Finland and returned to Liverpool's Melwood training base to undergo tests.

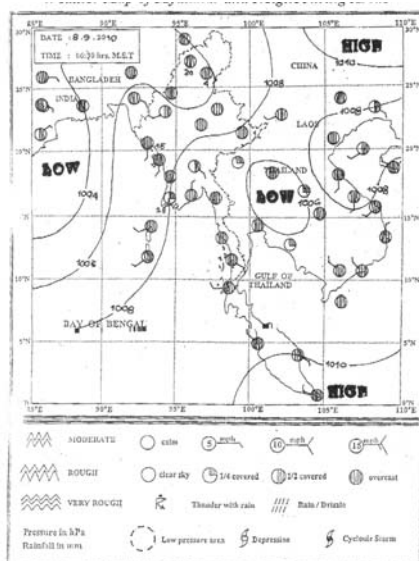

"Dirk has damaged his shoulder at the A-C joint, which is between the collar bone and the shoulder. He is likely to be out for four weeks," club doctor Peter Brukner said in a statement. Bagan rain brings prosperity

While I prepared luggage for a four-day trip to Bagan-NyaungU, I decided to take at least four suits but I was hesitant considering whether I should carry an umbrella or not. Finally, I made up my mind not to hold the umbrella on my tour as the region is supposed to be the one where only the light rain falls.

I arrived Bagan-NyaungU at dawn on the next day by NyaungU-Mann Express Bus which left Nay Pyi Taw in the evening on 22 August. The bus which drove on Meiktila-Kyaukpadaung Road would be reaching NyaungU earlier if it didn't take the breaks on the way. As the road transportation becomes better toady, Nay Pyi
