March towards the democracy goal with peace and stability

Myanmar is home to various national races, who have been living in unity and amity from time immemorial.

Learning experiences from the Myanmar history, Our Three Main National Causes – non-disintegration of the Union, non-disintegration of national consolidation and perpetuation of sovereignty – are the national policy that all the citizens must uphold and safeguard as their ultimate desire.

With a nation or region with peace and stability prevailing, its political, economic and social conditions will be improving.

The State always prioritizes peace, stability and progress. It is also constantly striving for the improvement of the economy and education of the national people. As national reconsolidation has been forged, there have been more friendship and understanding among the national brethren.

Paddy output is on the increase in the agriculture sector fundamental to the national economy. The State is manufacturing machines and import-substitute items by establishing industrial regions and zones. The people are now enjoying fruits of development resulting from trading commodities.

Today, Myanmar is on the road to democracy for building up a democratic nation. The making of the nation requires a gigantic effort. All the national people are marching towards the goal of democracy along with already-achieved development fruits and national unity.

Security increased in Kandahar before Eid

KANDAHAR, 12 Nov—Security operations are to be increased in the Afghan City of Kandahar to prevent attacks before the Muslim festival of Eid and a key NATO conference, a US commander said on Thursday.

“We think that the Taliban are going to try and stage an explosion or series of explosions at Eid to create a media buzz to give the perception of insecurity,” Lieutenant Colonel Victor Garcia told AFP. Garcia, the deputy commander of operations in and around the volatile southern city, and military police commander Lieutenant Colonel John Voorhees, both said the threat was “very serious”, without disclosing further details.

The holy day and festival of Eid al-Adha, marked by the ritual slaughter of sheep, goats, cows and other livestock to commemorate Ibrahim’s acceptance of God’s command to sacrifice his son Ismail, is due to begin next Tuesday. Leaders of the 28-member NATO alliance meet in Lisbon three days later, with discussions likely to be dominated by a timetable for the handover of security to Afghan forces.

Suicide car bomb kills at least 15 in Karachi

KARACHI, 12 Nov—At least 15 people were killed and 100 injured in a suspected Taliban suicide car bomb attack on Thursday at a security compound in Pakistan’s largest city Karachi where militants are held, officials said.

The attack took place at the compound of the police Crime Investigation Department, metres from the provincial chief minister’s house in a central district known as the “red zone” because of its high security status.

Azam Tariq, a spokesman for the Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP), claimed responsibility for the attack which he said was in retaliation for US air strikes in the country’s northwestern tribal areas.

“It’s a reaction to the drone strikes and such attacks will continue until drone strikes are stopped,” he told Reuters. The building is used to hold and interrogate a number of militants, including those from banned organizations. It was not immediately clear how many were inside at the time of the attack.

Sharmila Farooqi, a spokeswoman for the government of Sindh Province where Karachi is the capital, said at least 15 people were killed and 100 injured.

Iran building its own anti-aircraft missile system

TEHERAN, 12 Nov—Iran is building its own advanced anti-aircraft missile system, after Russia wouldn’t sell it one, a top commander of Iran’s elite Revolutionary Guard said Wednesday. Gen Mohammad Hasan Mansourian said Iran will soon test its own version of the S-300 missile system, which is still being developed at military industrial sites, the official IRNA news agency reported.

Mansourian’s comments come after Russia banned all sales of S-300 missile systems to Iran, citing the latest round of tough UN sanctions. Russia signed a 2007 contract to sell the sophisticated systems that would have dramatically boosted Iran’s ability to defend against air strikes. Israel and the United States objected to the deal.

“The Iranian version of S-300 system is currently undergoing field modifications and is at the testing stage. Other long-range anti-aircraft missile systems are also being designed,” IRNA quoted Mansourian as saying. Mansourian said Russia has caved in to US and Israeli pressures despite a valid deal.

“To meet part of our security needs in the field of air defence, we sought to purchase S-300 from Russia but it refused to deliver the defensive weapon under pressures from the US and the Zionist regime, citing UN Security Council resolution 1929 as a pretext,” he said.

Pakistan detains US man at airport

ISLAMABAD, 12 Nov—Pakistani authorities detained an American man at an airport in the country’s east on Thursday for carrying 30 rounds of ammunition in his luggage, officials said. Airport officials in the eastern city of Lahore detained the man upon discovering the rounds in his bags. They then turned him over to police.

Police officer Suhail Kazmi said the man told authorities that he and his wife were on their way to the United States. He said the man was a retired teacher at a missionary school in Lahore. The man told investigators that he had purchased the ammunition for hunting, and that he did not realize he was violating the law by traveling with the rounds, Kazmi said. The US Embassy said Thursday that it was looking into the case.

Saudi Arabia on alert for al-Qaeda attack

RIYADH, 12 Nov—The Interior Minister says Saudi Arabia is on alert for a possible al-Qaeda attack next week during hajj, the annual Islamic pilgrimage that draws millions of worshippers to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

Prince Nayef did not mention any specific threat or intelligence on an attack. But when he was asked at a news conference about the possibility of an al-Qaeda strike on hajj, he said: “We don’t rule out any possibility of something that disturbs the security” of the pilgrims.

The hajj begins on 15 Nov and lasts for several days. Saudi Arabia gave the West key intelligence on two mail bombs recently intercepted after they were sent on planes from neighboring Yemen. Al-Qaeda in Yemen claimed responsibility.—Internet

Despite ban, Palestinians build the settlements

ARIEL, 12 Nov—It’s a startling fact: The workers building Israel’s West Bank settlements have generally been Palestinians even though Palestinians widely consider totally immoral for us to work in settlements,” said Economics Minister Hassan Abu Libdeh, an enthusiastic supporter of the law which passed in April and bans Palestinians from such work. Abu Libdeh said the ban which imposes fines of up to $14,000 and jail time of up to five years for violators — will eventually be enforced. But for now, he said, the government is holding off while it searches for ways to help workers switch jobs. About 21,000 Palestinians currently work in settlements, either in construction, agriculture or industry. Their ability to return to the settlements in recent years — after a period of violence from 2000-2005 which saw the two peoples separated almost completely — has been key to the mini-revival of the Palestinian economy.—Internet

Announcement of remaining lists of representatives-elect to be continued

NAY PYI TAW, 12 Nov — Of representatives-elect for respective Hluttaws in Multiparty Democracy General Elections held on 7 November 2010, the announcement on remaining lists of representatives-elect will be issued.—MNA

Welcome and accept national victory cheerfully

Myat Phone Lu

The 2010 multiparty democracy general elections have been completed successfully. And the Myanmar people have passed the fifth of the seven-step Road Map successfully.

The multiparty democracy general elections were simultaneously held in States and Regions nationwide on 7 November. All the polling stations opened simultaneously at 6 am and the voters cast their ballots earnestly. Election news was reported on TV and in dailies and private journals. It was heartening to see that the people happily went to polling stations and cast their votes, enjoying the first ever voting right they got in 20 years.

The media featured the election images colourfully such as the polling station officer's announcement of the opening of polling stations and the people lining up to vote, drawing up ballot papers, choosing the candidates they liked in secret polling booths and putting their ballot papers into the ballot boxes. When the time came to close the polling stations in the evening, we found arrangements were being made for the voters assembling in the compound of polling stations to be able to cast their votes before 4 pm. We also witnessed through media that in counting votes after the closing of polling stations, votes were being counted, checked and recorded in a systematic way in the presence of the polling station officers, responsible persons, members of subcommittees concerned, representatives appointed by Hluttaw candidates, the voters and the observers.

Studying these facts, it can clearly be seen that all necessary measures were taken in accord with the election law and rules to ensure a free and fair election as well as transparency and all-inclusiveness. Likewise, systematic arrangements were made in the media sector so that the people could observe the real election processes nationwide as if they were witnessing personally.

We saw ambassadors to Myanmar, charges d' affaires ai, resident representatives of UN agencies, members of Myanmar Foreign Correspondents Club and journalists and reporters from local journals and magazines observing the casting of the votes at the polling stations since the morning of the election day. All these arrangements were made in order that both the nation and the international community could know the transparent and free and fair election of Myanmar, the active participation of Myanmar people in election processes, the expression of public desires and the systematic election processes. In other words, we have invited all to see to the acid test of the elections.

In so doing, authorities concerned with full respect invited all foreign diplomats and resident representatives from UN agencies to observe the 18 constituencies across the country. The US and EU diplomats refused to come with. Before the elections, there were various accusations that the elections would not be transparent, free and fair without foreign observers. But again, the invitation was turned down. It was too difficult to understand them.

In reality, the US and the EU are godfathers of democracy. Whatever place and whatever issue, they talk about democracy repeatedly. What's more, they are always saying that they want to see democracy flourishing in Myanmar and promote the democracy cause of Myanmar. In practice, they turned a blind eye to the multiparty general elections, the first step towards democracy in Myanmar. It can be assumed that they failed to encourage the democracy cause and disrupt the systematic democratic process in Myanmar. It is so disappointing.

To make matters worse, the statement of President Obama was released from the White House on the Myanmar election day. As usual, they made one-sided accusations that the elections of Myanmar would be window dressing. Besides, the statements says that they will closely watch Myanmar in the post-election period by putting pressure on and continuing engagements and sanctions against Myanmar. It is not strange that western diplomats are making such accusations because even the President himself of the world power is openly interfering in the internal affairs of other countries.

State Secretary Clinton also made a statement the same day, echoing her president's statement. Likewise, the committee of members of parliament of European Union made a statement. It is crystal clear that the western bloc is making attacks without any reason by slandering the Myanmar elections in which the person or party they favour did not take part. They cannot see anything as long as they are turning a blind eye to Myanmar's purity, transparency, effort and success.

I would like to continue to say that the western diplomats not only received political parties and politicians frequently at their embassies and residences but also visited the party headquarters and the homes of the politicians. Moreover, they went to border areas and held discussions with national race parties and national race groups many times. They did not support the elections although they took great interest in Myanmar's democracy affairs. Their acts are not sensible and reasonable.

Although the western diplomats failed to recognize the first step of Myanmar democratization, diplomats of neighbouring countries including ASEAN and other world nations supported and recognized the aspirations of Myanmar people for democratization by observing the Myanmar democracy elections with full of enthusiasm. They witnessed the real situation of the elections. So all the diplomats who observed the Myanmar elections praised and recognized that Myanmar election was free and fair and it was held systematically with the massive participation of the entire Myanmar people who cast votes freely and actively in the elections and opened the door to democracy in unison. Anyhow, we must be grateful to them for their support in the drive for democratization process of the host country.

Despite the slanderous remarks on Myanmar elections by the western bloc, many friendly nations have witnessed the truth and made a correct review. China, for example, welcomed Myanmar's smooth multiparty democracy general elections, saying that the election was a vital part in its transition to an elected government, that smooth and successful holding of the elections was a significant step for Myanmar, and that it is required to recognize and welcome the Myanmar elections.

Similarly, ASEAN welcomed the Myanmar elections. ASEAN Chair, Vietnam, issued a statement dated 8 November. The statement said ASEAN welcomes the Myanmar elections held on 7 November as a significant step ahead the implementation of the seven-step Road Map for Democracy. ASEAN encourages Myanmar to continue to accelerate the process of national reconciliation and democratization for stability and development in the country. ASEAN also stresses the need for Myanmar to continue to work together with ASEAN and the UN in this process. ASEAN stands ready to assist Myanmar if required and in accordance with the ASEAN Charter. It is obvious that the entire international community, a true friend with correct view, stands on our side although there were slanderous remarks made by those who did not want to rejoice at other's success.

It is true that all Myanmar people are fully satisfied with the elections. They enjoyed the right to cast their votes freely in accord with their own views, convictions and wishes. They are looking forwards to the time when names of representatives they elected are announced. No one but the Myanmar people could understand how much the elections were free and fair and how systematically and truly they were held.

All in all, an election is a normal political

ASEAN welcomed the Myanmar elections. ASEAN Chair, Vietnam, issued a statement dated 8 November. process of most of world nations where elections are held once every four or five years. They have to do their best to hold elections as one of the processes of internal affairs in accord with their own situations. Likewise, Myanmar saw smooth and successful elections to be able to march toward the goal of democracy. Under the systematic supervision of the Union Election Commission, the new chapter of democratization had been opened, going down into the annals of Myanmar history as a free and fair election with the participation of the political parties and the people. Despite opposition from those who did not want to rejoice at others' success, I would like to honour again the elections as a national victory the State and its people have to hail and honour cheerfully.

Technology a blessing, a curse for remote island

INTERNET

BEAVER ISLAND, 12 Nov—Mugs Bass doesn't own a computer. She's pretty much dead set against e-mail. Anyone who calls her home on Michigan's remote Beaver Island should be prepared for a busy signal, if she's on her land-line phone. She has no cell.

"When you don't have it, you don't miss it. That's what I say," says the spunky 70-year-old grandmother, who's as comfortable telling jokes at the local pub as she is attending Mass each morning.

Technology isn't really her thing. So, it's a small miracle when Bass drives, once a month, to her island's rural health center to sit down in front of a wide-screen television. There, she and a handful of other islanders connect by video conference with a similar group in Charlevoix, Mich, a two-hour ferry ride to the south and east.

They chat. They laugh. They cry together.

All of them have, or have had, cancer, Bass included. Hers started with a lump in her breast and has since metastasized to her bones, making her cancer treatable, but incurable, her doctors tell her.

AOL taps BofA to mull Yahoo deal

INTERNET

NEW YORK, 12 Nov—AOL Inc has tapped Bank of America to explore strategic options including a potential Yahoo Inc merger, according to people familiar with the matter. Allen & Co LLC, a New York-based boutique investment bank that focuses on media and entertainment, is also advising AOL on its options, said one of the sources.

The idea of combining AOL with Yahoo is still considered in an early stage and may not materialize into a deal, the sources said.

But the Yahoo deal is compelling for AOL Chief Executive Tim Armstrong, who believes he can do a better job running a combined company, the sources said.

"First of all, Yahoo has to be approached and this is nowhere close to that point," said one of the sources.

Getting Yahoo and AOL to merge on a stock deal is challenging, that source said.

Private equity firms including Silver Lake, TPG Capital, Madison Dearborn Partners and KKR have previously approached AOL to explore a buyout of Yahoo but sources said private equity interest has cooled over the past few weeks.

Fed officials voice concerns about bond buying

NEW YORK, 12 Nov—Three top Federal Reserve officials on Monday voiced concerns about the central bank's latest efforts to boost the economy, with one warning the Fed's bond buying might need to be curbed to head-off inflation.

The remarks from Fed Governor Kevin Warsh, Dallas Fed chief Richard Fisher and Thomas Hoenig of the Kansas City Fed underscored the unease within the central bank about the decision to buy an additional $600 billion in government debt. Last week's decision has sparked an unusually vocal public debate among Fed officials and drawn the ire of many countries that say the United States is deliberately pushing down the dollar.

Warsh raised the prospect that rising inflation risks could prompt the central bank to scale back the programme even with unemployment still painfully high.

"Policies should be altered if certain objectives are satisfied, purported benefits disappoint, or potential risks threaten to materialize," Warsh said. "We haven't bought ourselves an eight month holiday. We bought ourselves eight months of hard work," he said.—Internet

German government extends anti-pirate mission

BERLIN, 12 Nov—Germany will extend three military deployments including its contribution to an EU naval force tracking pirates off Somalia, the government said on Wednesday.

Parliament must still approve the extension of the missions, in which Germany has provided 320 personnel to the anti-piracy force, sent 120 soldiers to Bosnia, and will send a ship with 220 soldiers to take part in NATO's Active Endeavour operation patrolling in the Mediterranean.

Defence Minister Karl-Theodor zu Guttenberg said on Tuesday Germany should be ready to use its military against pirates and to defend its economic interests. Military deployments are still a sensitive issue in Germany, more than 60 years after Adolf Hitler's Nazis started World War II. President Horst Koehler resigned in May after being accused of "gunboat diplomacy" for saying that military intervention was justified in an emergency to uphold German interests such as free trade routes.

Saudi Arabia vows help to Yemen in fighting Qaeda

MECCA, 12 Nov—Saudi Arabia pledged on Wednesday to give Yemen whatever help it needed to fight al-Qaeda after the militant group claimed responsibility for a recently foiled bomb plot, which Riyadh helped uncover.

Late last month, authorities in Dubai and Britain intercepted two bombs hidden in toner cartridges destined for the United States from Yemen via FedEx and United Parcel Service, after a tip-off from Saudi Arabia. The al-Qaeda affiliate based in Yemen, plagued by armed disorder, claimed responsibility for the attempt. "The security situation in Yemen is as important to us as the security situation in the kingdom," the Saudi Interior Minister, Prince Nayef bin Abdulaziz, told reporters in Islam's holiest city Mecca where millions of Muslims flock to the annual pilgrimage, or haj, next week. In the first remarks on the matter made by a top security official from the US ally, Nayef said security cooperation between Saudi Arabia and Yemen was at the best possible level and that the kingdom would help its impoverished neighbour.—MNA/Reuters

SAP grills Oracle as Apotheker absent from trial

Oracle CEO Larry Ellison speaks during his keynote address at the Oracle Open World in San Francisco.
INTERNET

OAKLAND, 12 Nov—Oracle Corp CEO Larry Ellison testified that SAP's theft of its software cost his company $4 billion, doubling his previous estimate, but failed to bring strong supporting written evidence.

SAP lawyers immediately challenged Ellison to back up the new figure, but Silicon Valley's richest man said he could not cite documentation proving his company's claim of the cost of lost business. German-based SAP asserts that it owes Oracle merely tens of millions of dollars.

Oracle's star witness also failed to produce testimony of his public assertion that Hewlett-Packard Co's new CEO, Leo Apotheker, knew of the theft when he headed SAP and did nothing about it until Oracle sued.

A source told Reuters that Oracle had hired private detectives to locate Apotheker so he could be subpoenaed to appear in the trial.

The normally brash, outspoken Ellison left the courtroom on Monday without speaking to reporters.

19 Chinese return home after Somali pirate ordeal

BEIJING, 12 Nov—A group of 17 Chinese sailors returned home safely after being held hostage more than four months by Somali pirates who gave them only one meal of boiled potatoes per day, newspapers reported on Thursday. The pirates were paid an undisclosed amount of money in ransom after the Shanghai-based ship's owner mortgaged his home and all his shipping company shares to raise funds, the Beijing Daily said.

The group arrived in Shanghai on Wednesday on a flight from the Qatari Capital of Doha, the paper said. All were in good health, despite having survived for 131 days on their potato diet and suffering from limited water supplies and poor hygiene conditions. All their belongings, including mobile phones and personal items, had been left on board the ship with the pirates, it said.

on its way to India from Saudi Arabia when an unknown number of pirates seized control on 28 June. The pirates had initially demanded a ransom of $15 million, but that was later negotiated downward after the pirates began showing greater flexibility by the third month, the Beijing Daily said. The final amount paid was not given. Somali pirates are regularly able to make multimillion dollar ransoms from their hijackings.

Lawsuit over air security at Vancouver Games

VANCOUVER, 12 Nov—Small air operators whose wings were clipped by security rules during the Vancouver Olympics said on Wednesday they are suing the Canadian government for damages.

The six operators, including Pacific Coastal Airlines, say the government ignored their requests for compensation, something they say is normally paid to businesses hurt by security for events such as G8 summits.

"It is quite unacceptable that the Canadian government will not face up to its responsibilities," said John McKenna, president of the Air Transport

Association of Canada, which says the losses during the Games topped C$1 million. Canada also hosted the G8 and G20 summits in Toronto this year.

Aircraft were prohibited from flying near Olympic venues immediately before and during the Winter Games in Vancouver and British Columbia's Whistler resort in February, and tighter passenger screening was required through-out the region. The charter and small airline operators complain they lost out on tourist revenue during the Olympics, and the screening rules limited their flights and prevented them from carrying last-minute passengers.

Most air travel between Vancouver and coastal communities is done using float-planes and small aircraft, and does not involve less stringent passenger screening requirements than airports use. Officials at Transport Canada were not immediately available for comment on the lawsuit.

The security budget for the Vancouver Games was more than C$900 million ($900 million), nearly all of which was paid for by the federal government.

Asia shares gain amid higher commodity prices, G20

BANGKOK, 12 Nov—Asian markets mostly climbed Thursday amid higher commodity prices and as President Barack Obama called on world leaders at the Group of 20 summit to work together to advance the economic recovery.

Oil jumped above $88 a barrel and prices for some metals were also higher. The dollar fell against the euro and gained against the yen. Meetings of world leaders in South Korea on Thursday and Friday and in Japan on the weekend provided the background to trading.

Tensions over currencies and trade gaps are overhanging the Group of 20 and APEC summits as America's move to flood its sluggish economy with $600 billion of cash and weaken the dollar triggers alarm in export-reliant nations from China to Germany.

Eat a carrot, hurt the economy?

LONDON, 12 Nov—Eating a healthy diet may be good for you, but it may be unintentionally slimming for the economies of some developing countries, a new study says. British researchers modelled what could happen if people in Britain and Brazil adopted healthier diets as defined by the World Health Organization, including more fruits and vegetables and less meat and dairy products.

In Britain, experts estimated that fixing the country's bad eating habits might prevent nearly 70,000 people from prematurely dying of diet-related health problems like heart disease and cancer. It would also theoretically save the health system 20 billion pounds ($32 billion) every year. In Brazil, however, the rates of illnesses linked to a poor diet are not as high as in the UK. So Brazilians would get relatively few health benefits while their economy might lose millions.

The study was paid for by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and was published online Thursday in the medical journal, Lancet. "We are not suggesting people not eat a healthy diet," said Richard Smith, a professor of health system economics at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. "We're just trying to point out that healthier eating can have unintended consequences."

Cisco revenue outlook stokes competition fears

NEW YORK, 12 Nov—Cisco Systems Inc has given a disappointing sales forecast for the second quarter in a row, raising doubts about the network equipment maker's competitive chops despite an uptick in its most recent quarterly earnings. Back in August, Cisco CEO John Chambers rattled investors by pointing to "unusual uncertainty" among customers about the pace of economic recovery.

But some analysts worry the latest shortfall in Cisco's revenue projections may have more to do with smaller competitors eroding its dominant market position. Juniper Networks Inc, for instance, is just a fraction of Cisco's size but comparable, Cisco said Wednesday that revenue for the quarter running from November through January will climb just 3 percent to 5 percent. That's less than half the growth rate that analysts predicted.

While the numbers are not directly

Nepal police crackdown on illegal gambling

KATHMANDU, 12 Nov—Police in Nepal have launched a crackdown on casino operators, charging them with breaking the law by allowing local people to gamble, Kathmandu police chief Bhog Bahadur Thapa said on Thursday. Gambling is illegal in Nepal, but eight hotels in the capital Kathmandu operate casinos under special government licences that only allow them to admit foreign customers.

Police say five of the casinos routinely flout the law by allowing locals to gamble, and they have issued warrants for the arrest of their owners. "The Nepal government issues licences for the casinos on condition that they only allow foreigners to gamble," Thapa told AFP.

"They are violating the law by letting Nepalese citizens gamble."

Police in Kathmandu conduct regular raids on casinos and arrest locals found gambling. Thapa said 28 arrests had been made during the recent festival period in Nepal. Nepal's first casino opened in 1968 in a hotel owned by former king Gyanendra and the industry has long been a draw for tourists from neighbouring India.—Internet

Washington state bans alcoholic energy drinks

OLYMPIA, 12 Nov—Retailers have a week to clear millions of dollars worth of alcoholic energy drinks from their shelves after state regulators banned them on Wednesday, citing the hospitalization of nine dangerously drunk college students last month.

The emergency ban, similar to those in Michigan, Utah and Oklahoma, takes effect on 18 Nov. Washington's rule targets beer-based drinks that also feature caffeine, such as the malt-liquor energy drink Four Loko.

Some universities

also have banned boozy energy drinks from campus while the federal Food and Drug Administration reviews their safety, and US Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-NY, called on Wednesday for a ban in his state.

Wendy's sells new fries with potato skin, sea salt

NEW YORK, 12 Nov—With an eye toward appealing to foodies, Wendy's is remaking its fries with Russett potatoes, leaving the skin on and sprinkling sea salt on top. The fast-food chain has been changing its menu to focus on "real" ingredients to win more fans.

The first move in the strategy was a new line of salads such as Apple Pecan Chicken in the summer. Now, the fries, which first appear on Thursday and roll out over the next two weeks. This is the first major overhaul of the 41-year-old company's fries, although it has adjusted the recipe in the past.

The new fries are slightly slimmer than the old ones, and crispier because they're smaller. They will have more salt, a medium size fry goes from 350 milligrams to 500 milligrams, and calories add 10 to 420.

The selling price will not change, ranging from 99 cents to about $2. The fries will still come to stores frozen. Wendy's is planning a marketing push, including national television ads airing later this month, to highlight the changes.—Internet

Qantas grounds troubled A380s until further notice

SYDNEY, 12 Nov—Qantas grounded its Airbus A380 superjumbos until further notice Thursday, a week after a mid-air engine blast prompted serious safety worries over the world's biggest passenger jet. The Australian carrier revamped its flight schedule to exclude the six flagship A380s, potentially for "weeks", after the blow-out which also led to Singapore Airlines putting three of its superjumbos out of action.

A spokesman told AFP that Qantas's A380s, which service long-haul routes connecting Australian cities with Los Angeles and London, would not be used for at least a few days. "We're not really putting a time-frame on it at the moment. The situation's really fluid," he said. "It's (the relaunch) unlikely to be within the next couple of days, beyond that we're unwilling to say."

Qantas is among a group of carriers conducting urgent safety checks of the A380s' Rolls-Royce Trent 900 engines as investigators work to determine what caused last Thursday's blow-out over the Indonesian island of Batam.

Lambert won three CMA awards Wednesday night, including the coveted album of the year, celebrating her 27th birthday by leading a sea change in country music that also included two wins for her fiancé, Blake Shelton, and entertainer of the year for long-suffering Brad Paisley. The blond Texas firebrand whose breakthrough album "Revolution" was just that joined Lynn on stage with Sheryl Crow for a rendition of "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Lambert received her female vocalist of the year trophy from Lynn, who is celebrating her 50th year as a singer. "I hope it's the beginning," Lambert said. "I hope that I'm here 40 years from now, handing out an award like Loretta did." Lambert also won video of the year for "The House That Built Me," which also won song of the year for songwriters Tom Douglas and Allan Shamblin.

LOS ANGELES, 12 Nov—Mel Gibson appeared in court Wednesday for the first time for a custody hearing involving his infant daughter with an estranged ex-girlfriend.

The Academy Award winner arrived for the all-day session about 10 minutes before Russian musician Oksana Grigorieva at a downtown Los Angeles courthouse, escorted by deputies.

He remained out of sight during a lengthy morning break, but walked calmly through the courthouse with his attorneys to and from a luncheon strategy session.

Gibson did not speak to the group of reporters convened outside Judge Scott Gordon's closely guarded courtroom. By law, the custody proceedings are closed to the public and the case file is sealed. At least part of Wednesday's session was spent addressing the release of information about the case, but attorneys for both sides declined to comment in detail about what occurred. They are scheduled to reconvene on 22 Nov.

Mexico battle over Cancun tigers close to climax

MEXICO CITY, 12 Nov—Cancun's "Pepe Tiger" may soon lose his big cats and his dream of opening a zoo near the sun-soaked Mexican resort city after a decades-long battle that has seen a mauling, animal cruelty charges and even claims of national sovereignty.

Mexican officials are preparing to remove the eight tigers and two jaguars kept by Jose Juarez Gil—or "Pepe Tiger"—saying they are being kept in unsafe conditions, a charge denied by Juarez Gil who says he loves the cats and lets them swim and run in his makeshift animal refuge on the road to Cancun's Airport. He vowed on Wednesday to fight their removal, saying he will appeal the latest seizure order. "Do you think I am going to just leave my whole life behind?" asked Juarez Gil. His surreal tale began in the 1980s, when police started turning over to him tigers and jaguars seized from the private zoos of drug traffickers and other criminals. In the following decades, shopping malls and luxury apartments sprung up around his land on the outskirts of Cancun, but he has stubbornly refused to give up his animals or his property. Court appeals had allowed his improvised refuge to limp on, despite what authorities and US-based groups said were bad health and diet conditions for the big cats.

Cycling: Contador happy as case moves forward

MADRID, 12 Nov — Tour de France champion Alberto Contador, who is provisionally suspended following a positive test for clenbuterol, said on Wednesday he was happy his case is finally being handled by the Spanish cycling federation (RFEC). "I'm happy that the case is being handled by the federation because that means we can now move forward," said Contador, who faces a ban from the sport as well as giving up his 2010 yellow jersey.

Contador has claimed his positive result for trace amounts of the banned weight loss/muscle-building drug, following a test on the Tour de France in July, was down to eating contaminated meat — although sceptics suggest he may have inadvertently put clenbuterol back into his system through an il-

Ho Chi Minh-Yangon-Ho Chi Minh direct flight on 15 Nov

Vietnamese Ambassador to the Union of Myanmar Mr Chu Cong Phung extends greetings at press conference on Ho Chi Minh-Yangon-Ho Chi Minh direct flight.

MNA

YANGON, 12 Nov—A press conference on Ho Chi Minh-Yangon-Ho Chi Minh direct flight of Vietnamese Airlines was held at Parkroyal Hotel, here, this afternoon.

Present on the occasion were Vietnamese Ambassador to the Union of Myanmar Mr Chu Cong Phung, diplomats, the general manager of Vietnamese Airlines and officials, members of Myanmar Foreign Correspondents Club, editorial staff of journals and magazines and guests.

Vietnamese Ambassador to Myanmar Mr Chu Cong Phung extended greetings. General Manager Mr Cao Xuan Phu of the airlines explained matters related to Ho Chi Minh-Yangon-Ho Chi Minh direct flight and Vietnamese Airlines. Next, they replied to the queries raised by those present.

Ho Chi Minh-Yangon-Ho Chi Minh direct flight will go into commercial operation with Airbus A320 on Sunday, Monday and Friday every week. Price of return ticket is US$ 110 per head.

Vietnamese Airlines will join hands with Myanma Airways for development of tourism industry in Myanmar. The plan is under way to run the flight four times a week.

The maiden flight will be launched at Yangon International Airport at 5.50 pm on 15 November.—MNA

INSIDE

It is true that all Myanmar people are fully satisfied with the elections. They enjoyed the right to cast their votes freely in accord with their own views, convictions and wishes. They are looking forwards to the time when names of representatives they elected are announced.
