Honouring the 90th Anniversary National Day

PERSPECTIVES

The day of arousing independence struggles

The 10th Waning of Tazaungmone 1372 ME (today) is the 90th anniversary National Day of the Union of Myanmar.

On the day, the very first national movement was launched during the period Myanmar was under the rule of British colonialists. That day was designated as National Day because on that day, national movements were aroused to repulse the immense suppression the British government put over Myanmar national race affairs, religion and education.

Looking back to the history of the nation, the national movement began in protest at the colonial education system over 90 years ago. Yangon University Act was enacted on 1 December 1920 to make the colonial rule more effective.

The act was particularly designed to hamper the youth of national races from pursuing higher education and to prolong the political and economic monopoly and colonial rule over Myanmar. Therefore, young people with a strong sense of nationalistic spirit and patriotic spirit strongly protested against the colonial education act.

The national movement was launched on the 10th Waning of Tazaungmone 1282 Myanmar Era to demand better education system and to fight British colonialists' suppression of Myanmar people. National schools brought about a large number of patriotic youths.

The national movement led to the regaining of independence. Now, Myanmar stands tall with high national prestige and integrity in the international community. So, the image of National Day is always high in the annals of the Myanmar history.

Afghan President Karzai to study recent US leaked documents

KABUL, 30 Nov—Afghan Presidential spokesman Waheed Omar on Monday said that President Hamid Karzai is to study the recent US documents that were released Sunday night by WikiLeaks. “I have given the President a full copy of the document and the President will study it carefully today,” Omar told a weekly press conference here.

However, he added that there is not much in the document on Afghanistan. “Since very little part of the documents released last night and so far I have studied the files there is not much on Afghanistan,” Omar emphasized.

He made this comment in the wake of media reports that the documents released by Wikileaks described President Karzai as a weak leader.

“Allegations against President Hamid Karzai are not new,” he stated. Meantime, he noted that the leaked files would not affect the diplomatic and strategic relationship between Afghanistan and the United States. Asked if Afghan government condemns the recent leaks, Omar said, “It is too early to make comments.”

However, he added, “It is unfortunate that secret documents have been made public.”

Omar also said that President Hamid Karzai is going to leave for Kazakhstan on Tuesday to attend a meeting of European leaders on security.

20 militants killed in Afghanistan’s Kunar Province

KABUL, 30 Nov—Afghan and NATO-led troops eliminated at least 20 Taliban militants Tuesday when conducting security patrol in Afghanistan’s eastern Kunar Province, the military alliance said.

“A combined Afghan and International Security Assistance Force patrol killed numerous insurgents during multiple engagements while conducting a combined patrol in the Ghaziabad District of Kunar Province today,” the NATO-led ISAF said in a statement released here. When the patrol received small-arms fire, they positively identified the insurgent firing positions and returned fire, it said.

“While continuing to receive fire, they called for artillery and close air support who engaged the insurgent firing positions,” the statement said. “Initial reports indicate approximately 20 insurgents were killed in the engagement, with no civilian casualties.”

Taliban insurgents fighting Afghan and NATO-led troops have intensified their activities against government and security forces since the beginning of this year.

However, the hard-liner militias have yet to make comments.

Afghan police officer kills six US service members

KABUL, 30 Nov—An Afghan border policeman killed six American servicemen during a training mission Monday, underscoring one of the risks in a US-led programme to educate enough recruits to turn over the lead for security to Afghan forces by 2014.

The shooting in a remote area near the Pakistani border appeared to be the deadliest attack of its kind in at least two years.

Attacks on NATO troops by Afghan policemen or soldiers, although still rare, have increased as the coalition has accelerated the programme. Other problems with the rapidly growing security forces include drug use, widespread illiteracy and high rates of attrition.

WikiLeaks documents point to Turkish-US tensions

LONDON, 30 Nov— US diplomats have cast doubts on the reliability of NATO ally Turkey, portraying its leadership as divided and permeated by Islamists, according to the German Der Spiegel magazine’s website. Der Spiegel, citing US diplomatic documents released on Sunday by whistle-blowing website WikiLeaks, said advisers to Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan were described as having “little understanding of politics beyond Ankara”. Erdogan has introduced sweeping liberal economic reforms in pursuit of European Union membership since his AK Party was first elected by a landslide in 2002. He denies accusations by secularists that he harbours secret Islamist ambitions.

Der Spiegel cited a cable as saying Erdogan had surrounded himself with an “iron ring of sycophantic (but contemptuous) advisors”. “The leaked diplomatic cables reveal that US diplomats are skeptical about Turkey’s dependability as a partner. The leadership in Ankara is depicted as divided and permeated by Islamists.”

Der Spiegel’s website gave few details or direct quotations from the cables but said its magazine would provide a broader account on Monday.

Retailers hope Cyber Monday sustains shopping

NEW YORK, 30 Nov—Retailers from Amazon.com Inc to Target Corp offered steep online discounts to shoppers on Cyber Monday, aiming to win additional sales after a strong start to the holiday shopping season over the weekend.

Cyber Monday to be as strong as sales were this weekend," said Maggie Taylor, a senior credit officer with Moody's Investors Service.

Tiny house movement thrives amid real estate bust

GRATON, 30 Nov—As Americans downsize in the aftermath of a colossal real estate bust, at least one tiny corner of the housing market appears to be thriving. To save money or simplify their lives, a small but growing number of Americans are buying or building homes that could fit inside many people's living rooms, according to entrepreneurs in the small house industry.

Some put these wheeled homes in their backyards to use as offices, studios or extra bedrooms. Others use them as mobile vacation homes they can park in the woods. But the most intrepid of the tiny house owners live in them full-time, paring down their possessions and often living off the grid.

"It's very un-American in the sense that living small means consuming less," said Jay Shafer, 46, co-founder of the Small House Society, sitting on the porch of his wooden cabin in California wine country. "Living in a small house like this really entails knowing what you need to be happy and getting rid of everything else."

Shafer, author of "The Small House Book," built the 89-square-foot house himself a decade ago and lived in it full-time until his son was born last year. Inside a space the size of an ice cream truck, he has a kitchen with gas stove and sink, bathroom with shower, two-seater porch, bedroom loft and a "great room" where he can work and entertain — as long as he doesn't invite more than a couple guests.

He and his family now live in relatively sprawling 500-square foot home next to the tiny one.—Internet

Oil rises to near $85 as traders eye jobs report

World oil prices rose, before the latest US energy report, with traders on tenterhooks over the eurozone debt crisis and simmering tensions on the Korean peninsula.—INTERNET

SINGAPORE, 30 Nov—Oil prices rose to near $85 a barrel Monday in Asia as investors look to this week's key jobs report for evidence the US economy is improving.

Benchmark oil for January delivery was up $1.20 to $84.96 a barrel at late afternoon Singapore time in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract fell 10 cents to settle at $83.76 on Friday.

Traders will be closely watching Friday's unemployment numbers for signs more Americans are going back to work as the economy slowly recovers from last year's recession.

Crude advanced despite mixed dollar trading. The euro fell early in the session before recovering to $1.3278 after European Union nations agreed to give 67.5 billion euros ($89.4 billion) in bailout loans to Ireland on Sunday. Oil normally falls as the dollar strengthens since crude becomes more expensive for investors with other currencies.

"Oil is possibly detaching further from the strong dollar while placing greater emphasis on increasing indications of favorable US economic guidance," Ritterbusch and Associates said in a report.—Internet

India's economy grew 8.9 percent last quarter

NEW DELHI, 30 Nov—India's economy grew a forecast-beating 8.9 percent year-on-year in the July-September quarter, data showed Tuesday, underscoring the country's recovery from the global financial crisis.

The fiscal second-quarter boom beat expectations of growth of around 8.2 percent and was propelled by a 9.8-percent jump in manufacturing from a year earlier and an 8.8-percent leap in construction.

Asia's third-largest economy also got a boost from stronger farm production, which expanded 4.4 percent, thanks to a bountiful monsoon, data from the Central Statistical Organisation showed.

The strong overall growth comes as the country of 1.2 billion people has been aggressively unwinding massive stimulus measures put in place to shield the country from the global slump.

Global investors have been pouring billions of dollars into India, seeking to tap its strong growth, with industrialised economies still struggling to emerge from the downturn.

The South Asian country is the world's second fastest growing major economy, behind regional rival China, which logged growth of 9.6 percent year-on-year in the same three-month period.

Surging vehicle sales and growing bank lending have helped to power the strong performance.

Some alcohol may reduce transplants' risk

DENVER, 30 Nov—Moderate alcohol consumption has been linked to lowered death rates in kidney transplant patients, a Dutch researcher says.

Dorien Zelle of the University Medical Centre Groningen, Netherlands, found moderate alcohol drinkers were 67 percent less likely to develop diabetes than other types of drinkers/non-drinkers. Zelle and colleagues tracked these patients for seven years and found the moderate alcohol drinkers were 44 percent less likely to die than other types of drinkers/non-drinkers.

"Quality of life in renal transplant recipients is under pressure by many threats, restrictions and recommendations," Zelle said in a statement. "Our results indicate that one of the restraints on quality of life in stable renal transplant recipients may be released. There seems no reason to advise renal transplant recipients to abstain from alcohol post-transplant."

Zelle and colleagues looked at 600 renal transplant recipients who had their transplant more than one year before and followed them for several years post-transplant. Of these, 48 percent were abstainers, 16 percent were sporadic drinkers, 35 percent had moderate alcohol intake and 1 percent were heavy drinkers.—Internet

UNSG's message for World AIDS Day

1 December, 2010

Next year will mark the 30th anniversary of the AIDS epidemic. This milestone offers a moment to reflect—and to renew our resolve. Over the past three decades, AIDS has caused untold suffering and death. But another story has unfolded through the years, one of the global community uniting with passion to take action and save lives. These efforts are making a real difference around the world.

Fewer people are becoming infected with HIV. Millions of people have gained access to HIV treatment. More women are now able to prevent their babies from becoming infected with HIV. Travel restrictions for people living with HIV are being lifted by many countries, as stigma gives way—still too slowly—to compassion and recognition of human rights. With commitment and solidarity, this movement is helping the world turn the corner on the AIDS epidemic. We have finally reached the first part of Millennium Development Goal 6—by halting and beginning to reverse the spread of HIV. We must continue to chart a new and bold path ahead.

Our common goal is clear: universal access to HIV prevention, treatment, care and support. We must also work to make the AIDS response sustainable.

Three decades into this crisis, let us set our sights on achieving the "three zeros"—zero new HIV infections, zero discrimination and zero AIDS-related deaths. On this World AIDS Day, let us pledge to work together to realize this vision for all of the world's people.—UNIC

Wal-Mart in Japan insider trading probe

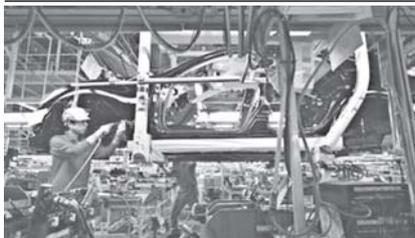

TOKYO, 30 Nov—Japanese prosecutors will open an investigation into possible insider trading involving shares of Wal-Mart's (WMT.N) Japanese subsidiary Seiyu, the Nikkei business daily said on its website on Tuesday.

The trading is suspected to have occurred when Wal-Mart turned Seiyu into a fully owned unit in 2007, the Nikkei said on its website, citing unidentified sources.

Wal-Mart officials declined to comment on the report, repeating a statement made on November 5 when Japan's Securities and Exchange Surveillance Commission began an investigation into possible insider trading, that it would cooperate with authorities.

Toyota to fix 650,000 Prius hybrids for heat risk

DETROIT, 30 Nov—Toyota Motor Corp will pay to fix about 650,000 Prius models worldwide for a coolant pump glitch that could cause the top-selling hybrid to overheat and lose power, the automaker said. The repair campaign covers Prius cars for the model years 2004 to 2007. The bulk of the cars, or 378,000 units, are in the United States.

The Japanese automaker said it had not received any reports of accidents or injuries from problems with the pump, which circulates coolant for the hybrid system.

Major automakers, including Toyota, often conduct repair campaigns that are separate from safety recalls filed with US regulators in cases where they determine that a defect does not present a safety risk. Toyota said the design of the electric water pump let air bubbles enter the system, slowing coolant circulation and allowing the hybrid's components to heat up.

The heating up of the components could trigger a warning light. If left unattended, the Prius could overheat and drop into a "fail-safe" mode where engine power would be reduced, Toyota said.

Toyota said it would begin notifying owners of the Prius repair campaign in the United States in early December.

The automaker has used a different pump design on the Prius hybrid since that time and uses a different type of pump for other hybrids, Toyota spokesman John Hanson said.

A factory worker checks Toyota Prius vehicle on a production line in Japan. The country's industrial production fell for the fifth consecutive month in October, data showed Tuesday, as stimulus effects waned and slowing global demand hit exports, further slowing a fragile recovery.

INTERNET

Toyota will cover the cost of the repairs, including more than $100 in labor for each Prius fixed at a US dealership.

The repair campaign on one of the best-known Toyota vehicles comes at the end of a year in which the top global automaker has struggled to distance itself from a damaging series of recalls and concerns about its quality management.

Since last November, Toyota has recalled about 14 million vehicles worldwide, including about 11 million in the United States.—Reuters

BANGKOK, 30 Nov—Asian markets crumpled Tuesday as Chinese shares slid on fears of an interest rate hike and the European Union's bailout of Ireland failed to convince investors the continent's debt crisis has been contained.

Oil prices dropped to near $85 a barrel as traders looked to US supply reports for clues about the strength of demand for crude. In currencies, the dollar was down against the yen but up against the euro.

The Shanghai Composite Index tumbled 3.4 percent to 2,767.25 amid rumors China's central bank would soon raise interest rates to contain inflation. The Shenzhen index for China's second smaller exchange dived 4.4 percent.

Soaring prices in China, the world's No 2 economy, are so far limited mostly to food, but analysts say price pressure could spread to other areas unless Beijing hikes interest rates and further tightens credit. Investors worry that might slow economic growth or reduce the amount of money flowing through the economy that is helping to finance stock trading.

"There is a little nervousness about how hard the policymakers will have to slam on the brakes to contain inflation," said David Cohen, an economist with Action Economics in Singapore.—Internet

Four years on, drug war bleeds Mexican heartland

MORELIA, 30 Nov—A four-year army crackdown in Mexico's methamphetamine-producing heartland has provoked a dizzying increase in violence, fueling fears that the country is losing its battle against organized crime.

Grisly assassinations and gang extortion are terrifying Mexicans in the western state of Michoacan, where President Felipe Calderon launched his war on drug cartels, sending in about 5,000 soldiers in December 2006 following a narrow election victory.

thousands of arrests, locals say gangs in the president's home state wield huge power, ramping up drug output while using terror and bribes to control towns mired in poverty.

Almost 300 people were killed by drug hitmen between January and October in the state, and Michoacan's 2010 total could near the 371 executions seen in 2009, according to Eduardo Guerrero-Gutierrez, an independent drug trade

China AIDS death toll up nearly 20,000 in a year

BEIJING, 30 Nov—The total number of reported AIDS deaths in China has jumped by nearly 20,000 since an official estimate last year, state media said Monday as Beijing vowed to step up efforts to curb its spread.

Deaths linked to Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) since its emergence in China in the 1980s reached 68,315 by the end of October, state television said, citing figures from the health ministry.

That compares with a tally of 49,845 reported deaths released by the ministry at the end of October 2009.

The number of reported HIV/AIDS sufferers stood at 370,393, the brief report by China Central Television said, compared with a ministry figure last year of 319,877. World AIDS Day is on 1 December.

HIV/AIDS was mostly sexually transmitted, with rates of infection among homosexual men increasing sharply, the report said.

It did not give a reason for the sharp rise in death and infection figures, but the government has been making efforts to improve reporting of cases.

Global temp up 72°F by 2060s

CANCUN, 30 Nov—World temperatures could soar by 4 degrees Celsius (7.2 degrees Fahrenheit) by the 2060s in the worst case of global climate change and require an annual investment of $270 billion just to contain rising sea levels, studies suggested on Sunday.

Such a rapid rise, within the lifetimes of many young people today, is double the 2 degrees C (3.6 degrees Fahrenheit) ceiling set by 140 governments at a UN climate summit in Copenhagen last year and would disrupt food and water supplies in many parts of the globe.

Rising greenhouse gas emissions this decade meant the 2 degree goal was "extremely difficult, arguably impossible, raising the likelihood of global temperature rises of 3 or 4 degrees C within this century," an international team wrote.

The studies, published to coincide with annual UN climate talks in Mexico starting on Monday, said few researchers had examined in detail the possible impact of a 4 degrees C rise above pre-industrial levels.

"Across many sectors — coastal cities, farming, water stress, ecosystems or migration, the impacts will be greater," than at 2 degrees, wrote Mark New of Oxford University in England, who led the international team.—Reuters

Ireland's bailout boosts banks, inflames taxpayers

DUBLIN, 30 Nov—Ireland's international bailout boosted its bank stocks Monday but outraged many hard-pressed taxpayers, who questioned why the government's pension reserves must be ravaged as part of a deal that burdens the whole country with the mistakes of a rich elite.

But the Irish were shocked by a key condition for the rescue — that the government use euro17.5 billion of its own cash and pension reserves to shore up its public finances, which have been overwhelmed by recession and exceptional costs of a

National Day and national characters

Myint Maung (PhilQ)

National Day, which falls on the 10th Waning of Tazaungmone, is one of the days of significance of Myanmar. National Day has been celebrated on a grand scale yearly since its birth. This year, National Day is in its 90th anniversary. Myanmar people composed of various national races and Myanmar have developed in this land from time immemorial. According to the articles and publications by some Myanmar learned persons, many foreigners assume that Myanmar is an independent, peaceful and cohesive people with high cultural standard. Myanmar is held in esteem by those aliens who know well Myanmar people. Myanmar people have high morale. They are not much rapacious, but upright. They are also happy-go-lucky people. Myanmar lead a more peaceful life than any other race in the world. Myanmar people are by nature content with what they have. Thanks to the religious faith they believe in, Myanmar people have high morality and a peaceful mind. Whenever I read that, I am very proud of national characters of Myanmar.

Myanmar people do not give up but show significant resilience in the face of situations in which the nation is on the verge of loss of sovereignty. During the period while the nation lost sovereignty, the people strongly repulsed the suppression and made efforts to regain sovereignty. Myanmar people are hypersensitive to any threats of loss of sovereignty, and safeguards sovereignty.

Myanmar people adore and safeguard their own race and religious faith. They are delighted to safeguard independence and sovereignty. As a gesture of honouring that nationalistic spirit and national character, ensuring flourishing of nationalistic spirit and national character, and recognizing the roles played by dutiful and reliable citizens of respective periods, National Day was designated in 1922. Since then, that day has been held annually.

According to their cultures, customs, traditions and historic events, all global members have their respective days of significance. Myanmar also has its days of significance to represent its long culture and national characters. If one studies facts about Myanmar's days of significance, one will know well the national characters of Myanmar.

Some of Myanmar's days of significance indicate the people's religious faiths and cultural standard; and some, nationalistic spirit and national characters of the people. Myanmar people are by nature devout, and magnanimous with high respects to who respect is due. They maintain friendly relations with those of other religious faiths and are grateful to benefactors. Days of significance that were conceived in independence struggles show that Myanmar are a people that:—

- admires independence and freedom,
- understands well the strength of unity,
- is brave with high physical and mental prowess,
- has a sacrificing spirit in the interest of others,
- cherishes own race, protect own race and religion and has high national prestige and integrity.

Owing to those national characters, every Myanmar citizen can be proud to be Myanmar nationals. Despite being located between two neighbouring giants with long, great cultures, Myanmar has stood for eons with own culture. Younger generations are therefore under a duty to take over the national duty of preserving and promoting those fine characters under the guidance of experienced senior citizens.

For Myanmar, the year 2010 is a year of prosperity because in the year, the date to hold multiparty democracy general elections in line with the 2008 constitution was designated to satisfy the aspiration of the people, and free and fair elections were held with political integrity to materialize the fifth step of the seven-step Road Map. It can be said that successful completion of the elections amidst the disruptions caused by internal and external pessimists is victory of those with high national prestige and integrity.

The seven-step Road Map is being implemented, but not with convenience. Only with great perseverance and tenacity could the government and the people implement the steps. So far, the fifth step has been put into reality. Being effective, the steps of the Road Map prove successful. Now, the tree of political objectives is in fruit. Naturally, fruit trees and flowering plants in a garden grow well under the nurturing work of a competent gardener. Any citizen may get fruit and flowers from the garden.

National Day falls today to boost the nationalistic vigour of the people to realize the remaining policies and steps and complete the building of a modern, developed nation. It is believed that not only political objectives and economic objectives but also social objectives will soon come true.

Today, the world has been like a global village. It is therefore required of the people to enhance the national characters for Myanmar, a developing country, to be able to stand tall in the international community. In this regard, the entire people have to possess high morality and characters, promote national prestige and integrity and sustain cultural heritage and national character that has been preserved for thousands of years. We also have to imbue ourselves strongly with the spirit of cherishing the motherland and own race. It is needed to uplift health, fitness and education standards of the entire people in order that the nation will be able to compete with countries in various fields. We have yet to work harder and harder to meet those requirements. We have to promote national characters more than ever.

The entire people are celebrating National Day across the nation today in accordance with the objectives of National Day, taking a national vow inspired by the national characters to transform the Republic of the Union of Myanmar into a stable, peaceful and modern one.

upholding Our Three Main National Causes to transform the nation into a discipline-flourishing democratic one.

Emergence of a constitution that is in consistence with the historical background of the nation and can safeguard Our Three Main National Causes unconditionally is a fundamental duty of every citizen to ensure long-term practice of discipline-flourishing democratic system.

Therefore, the National Convention was convened in 1993 with representatives of the people of all walks of life and representatives of all national races to lay down fundamental principles and detailed basic principles to formulate a constitution. However, the National Convention was adjourned temporarily in 1996 due to varieties of difficulties and hindrances.

The government, the people and the Tatmadaw had been striving steadfastly together for emergence of a constitution, while making strenuous efforts to generate fundamental factors for systematic practice of democratic system such as restoration of community peace and the rule of law, fulfillment of basic needs of the people, and promotion of the education standard of the entire people. As a result, the nation enjoyed rapid development in various sectors.

Making sustained efforts to achieve greater development of the nation, the government announced the State's seven-step Road Map on 30 August 2003, and since then it has been implementing the Road Map step by step. Now, the Union Election Commission has successfully completed the fifth step — holding free and fair elections to form Hluttaws according to the new constitution. So, only the sixth and seventh steps are left to be implemented: convening conferences with Hluttaw members in accordance with the new constitution, and building of a modern, developed democratic nation with the Head of State elected by the hluttaw, the governing body and administrative bodies formed by the hluttaw.

Great success achieved in carrying out the formidable task of building a new nation by the government, the people and the Tatmadaw is a landmark in the history of the nation, and that is certainly something to be proud of, for the nation and the people.

Now, plans are underway to implement the two remaining steps to hand over the State power to the public. Therefore, I would like to urge you national people to be determined on National Day to keep working with a strong sense of nationalistic spirit and Union Spirit to achieve the objectives of the 90th Anniversary National Day:—

- to keep Union Spirit flourishing and uplift national prestige and integrity
- to promote national education
- to ensure perpetuation of independence and sovereignty of the State
- to successfully complete State's seven-step Road Map.—MNA

Venezuela declares state of emergency in rain-wrecked Falcon State

Venezuela's President Hugo Chavez speaks during an emergency cabinet meeting due to heavy rains in Caracas on 29 November, 2010. XINHUA

CARACAS, 30 Nov — The Venezuelan government Monday declared a state of emergency for the Falcon State which was hit by rains last week.

The decree "aims to deploy all the assets needed to provide support in terms of logistics and preventative health measures," Venezuelan Vice President Elias Jaua told the state-run Venezuelan News Agency (AVN) after meeting government ministers and senior officials.

Some 8,000 rescuers are already in the coastal state to tackle the emergency, officials said. Venezuelan Interior Minister Tarek

El Aissami said on Sunday that 23 of the 25 cities in the state had suffered some damage and 15 cities could no longer be reached by road.

Government sources said that at least 24,000 of 750,000 people in the Falcon State had lost their homes due to the rains.

Torrential rains struck northern Venezuela last week, interrupting the production in two of the three refineries in the Paraguana Refining Centre, which processes almost half of Venezuela's crude oil. Schools and public transport have been closed in the state.

The international flotilla patrolling the waters of the Horn of Africa dispatched a helicopter from the destroyer USS Shoup to survey the MV 26 Agustos, but the suspected pirates had fled before the American ship arrived, said a statement from US 5th Fleet headquarters in Bahrain.

A team from the Shoup boarded the merchant ship and found the crew unharmed in the engine room, where they had retained control of the ship during the suspected pirate attack and was able to call maritime monitors in Dubai, the statement said.

The MV 26 Agustos, which was traveling from Romania to Bangladesh, was reported attacked near Socotra island in the Arabian Sea between the coasts of Somalia and Yemen. The ship continued on its journey after being assisted by the USS Shoup.

A multinational task force has patrolled off lawless Somalia since January 2009. On Wednesday, a jury in Virginia found five Somali men guilty of attacking a US Navy ship off Africa's coast in what the government said was the first piracy conviction in a US court room in nearly 200 years.

Central China starts building supercomputing centre

CHANGSHA, 30 Nov—Central China's Hunan Province began building the country's third National Supercomputing Centre (NSCC) on Sunday, where the world's fastest supercomputer, the Tianhe 1A, will be installed.

Designed to handle one quadrillion computing operations per second, the NSCC in Changsha will add to the world's eight quadrillion level supercomputing centres and national labs, said Du Zhanyuan, vice minister of the Ministry of Science and Technology.

The new NSCC will be housed in Hunan University in Changsha, capital of Hunan, and the construction is expected to be completed by the end of 2011, said Du.

Earlier this month, the Tianhe-1A at the NSCC in Tianjin, which is capable of 2.57 quadrillion computing operations per second, was certified as the world's fastest supercomputer.

Once completed, the Tianhe 1A at the NSCC in Changsha will be able to provide supercomputing services to the weather forecast, scientific research, bio-logical pharmaceuticals, animation design and other complex work in central China, said Xu Shousheng, provincial governor of Hunan.

"The setting up of the NSCC in Changsha will raise the innovative level of Hunan Province and of central China," said Xu.

England 2018 bid team blasts Panorama allegations as "embarrassment"

ZURICH, 30 Nov — England 2018 World Cup bid team have claimed the Panorama allegations should be an embarrassment to the BBC. England 2018 issued a statement in the wake of the airing of the Panorama on Monday, in an effort to distance them from the allegations made by the programme.

"We stand by our previous position that the BBC's Panorama did nothing more than rake over a series of historical allegations none of which are relevant to the current bidding process," said the statement. "It should be seen as an embarrassment to the BBC." "The 2018 team are entirely focused on winning the bid for England," the statement said. The Panorama documentary alleged that Issa Hayatou, Ricardo Terra Teixeira and Nicolas Leoz, all FIFA executive members who will vote to decide on the hosts of 2018 and 2022 World Cups on December 2nd, had previously taken bribes.

England are up against Russia, Spain/Portugal and Holland/Belgium for 2018, with Australia, Japan, USA, South Korea and Qatar bidding for 2022. There were fears that the Panorama programme could damage England's chances, although FIFA had no immediate comment on the reports.—Xinhua

Indonesia's volcano eruption triggers forest damage of $611 mln

JAKARTA, 30 Nov—Loss value of forest damage due to recent volcano eruption of Mount Merapi in Indonesia's Yogyakarta and Central Java province reached 5.5 trillion rupiah (about 611 million US dollars), consisted of ruined 1.12 million of trees in 2,800 hectares of forest areas, Kompas daily quoted an official as saying on Monday.

"It looks like the forest areas were just bombed," said Chief of Mount Merapi National Park Tri Prasetyo in Magelang regency of Central Java province on Sunday. The national park has total forest width of 6,410 hectares spread in Magelang, Sleman, Boyolali and Klaten regencies where the worst damage was occurred in Sleman with total loss of 3.5 trillion rupiah (388.8 million dollars). The loss was merely calculated from the value of each dead and damaged tree, which was 2 million rupiah (222.2 dollar). However, if the damage on ecosystem as conservation land, water and oxygen supplier and habitat for flora and fauna was calculated, the loss was priceless.

"It needs hundreds of year to recover the forest areas as before," he said. Xinhua

US cable TV bleeds subscribers as online grows

WASHINGTON, 30 Nov—The economic downturn has US cable television companies shedding subscribers in record numbers and Americans increasingly "cutting the cord" in favour of cheaper online options, new research shows.

The findings point to a growing pool of potential customers for online services such as Hulu and Netflix and newcomers like Apple TV and Google TV, which offer lower prices and more flexibility, analysts say.

According to research firm SNL Kagan, US cable operators lost 741,000 basic video customers in the third quarter of the year, the biggest decline since it started tracking the segment in 1980.

Comcast, the largest US cable operator, lost 275,000 video subscribers during the third quarter while Time Warner Cable, the second-largest, shed 155,000 video customers in the July-September period.

Combined with a loss of 216,000 customers in the second quarter, the first ever decline in its history, the pay television segment has fallen 2.3 percent in the last six months to around 100 million subscriptions, it said.

Cable television executives have pinned the blame for the unprecedented losses on high unemployment and the recession.

Urgent action needed to prevent non-communicable diseases

UNITED NATIONS, 30 Nov — Non-communicable diseases related to tobacco use, unhealthy diets, physical inactivity and the harmful use of alcohol have emerged as a serious macroeconomic and development challenge around the globe, UN officials on Friday quoted delegates to a recent General Assembly meeting as saying.

In their speeches at the meeting, the delegates have listed the non-communicable diseases as "serious public health threats" and called for urgent action in the social and economic realm to prevent such diseases, according to the UN officials. Prevention of heart disease, strokes, cancer, diabetes and chronic respiratory disease needed to be made a priority on the development agenda, or they would increase in low- and middle- income countries and disproportionately affect the poor, the delegates were cited as saying.

The emergence of non-communicable diseases is among the major challenges in the 21st century. Non-communicable diseases account for an estimated 55 million deaths annually, including the deaths of some 8 million people under age 60.

Foie gras burger blurs fast food and fine dining

A French fast food chain said Monday it intends to offer foie gras "burgers" at bargain prices as a treat for customers ahead of Christmas.

Quick burger said its "Supreme Foie Gras" will consist of the normally expensive duck foie gras, beef, relish and lettuce and go on sale for only 5 euros ($6.57) at more than 350 outlets across France from December 17th to 19th.

"We want to give our clients great taste at cheap prices and give them the possibility to party a little ahead of time," Quick's Marketing Director Laurent Niewolinski, told Reuters.

Foie gras, a luxury dish in French cuisine, is made from the liver of a duck or goose which has been force-fed corn mash, a practice denounced by animal protection groups who say the animals live in constant stress because of it.

Niewolinski brushed off potential criticism, saying that foie gras was a traditional part of French celebrations.

In a bid to rival US fast food giant McDonald's, Quick has focused its business strategy on innovations such as unusual burgers offered on a short-term basis and the launch of halal-only restaurants (selling meat and poultry permissible for observant Muslims), a move that sparked a heated debate in the country earlier this year.

Pa woman rescued from pickup stuck in tree top

Rescue crews had to use ropes and ladders to retrieve a western Pennsylvania woman from her pickup truck after it ran off a road and landed in tree tops about 30 feet above ground in a ravine.

Police say they'll be citing 33-year-old Dana Bowser for driving too fast for conditions on Route 68 near Evans City. That's about 25 miles north of Pittsburgh. State police say Bowser lost control near a culvert that carries the highway over Connoquenessing (kaw-nuh-kwah-NESS'-ing) Creek. Police say Bowser told them the road was icy.

Rescue workers say Bowser was conscious and able to communicate with workers. Most importantly, they say she didn't panic as they worked to reach her in the precarious position. She was taken to Butler Memorial Hospital with minor injuries.

Solar boat crosses Atlantic, heads to Cancun

After more than two months at sea, a boat powered exclusively with solar power has crossed the Atlantic in record time and arrived in Miami, Florida. The boat and crew will rest for a couple of days before heading out to Cancun, Mexico. The developers of the boat hope to show delegates attending the UN Climate conference, that renewable energy is the way of the future.

At more than 30 metres long, the Turanor is the world's largest solar-powered boat, and it's crew of six is on a mission to show the world that clean, renewable power is no longer a futuristic dream, but a practical reality.

Raphael Domjan, developer of Turanor, said, "The idea is to show that today we have the technologies to change. Not tomorrow, but today we can change. Now, it is not a boat you can buy on the normal markets but it is possible that we can be optimistic for the future."

Depp says Disney hated his Captain Sparrow

NEW YORK, 30 Nov—Johnny Depp's flamboyant portrayal of Jack Sparrow in "Pirates of the Caribbean" was good enough for an Oscar nomination, but the actor says Disney was less than thrilled.

Depp talked about it in an interview with rocker Patti Smith for the January edition of Vanity Fair magazine. Depp said Disney "couldn't stand" his Sparrow and one person there even asked if Sparrow was gay. Depp

Fox sues to stop film and TV script leaks

NEW YORK, 30 Nov—Twenty-first Century Fox is taking aggressive steps to keep its movie and TV scripts off the Internet.

The studio has filed a lawsuit alleging roughly $15 million in damages against a New York woman, Patricia McIlvaine, who is said to have put up roughly 100 scripts online without authorization.

On her personal website, McIlvaine describes herself as a "struggling screenwriter who sells flowers over the phone by day and writes scripts by night."

She says she collected scripts that were already posted on the web and made a free online library of scripts in order to assist other screenwriters. She's already soliciting donations for a legal defense fund.

According to the complaint, filed 19 November in US District Court in Brooklyn, NY, McIlvaine's actions allegedly cause particular damage to films and TV shows that are still in development. The postings "interfere and trade off of the costly and carefully designed creative processes that produce finished works ready for public consumption. They harm the fans who do not want their enjoyment of a movie or television show to be spoiled by knowing the story ahead of actually being able to watch it."

Fox's lawsuit mentions various scripts including "Aliens," "Edward Scissorhands," "Wall Street," and "Glee." It also mentions the leak of the script for the X-Men sequel "Deadpool," which isn't scheduled to be released until 2012.

Wenger issues fresh plea for patience

LONDON, 30 Nov — Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger has once again urged Gunners' fans to "keep faith" with his young side ahead of their English League Cup quarter-final against Wigan on Tuesday.

The north London club have not won a major trophy since lifting the FA Cup in 2005.

Arsenal, in the intervening five years, have played some of the most attractive football in England, with Wenger repeatedly insisting the club's future is bright.

But for some Arsenal fans who believe their club loses little in history or tradition compared to the likes of Manchester United or Chelsea, the Frenchman's assurances of a better tomorrow are starting to wear a bit thin.

At some point promise has to become achievement if it is not to turn into disillusionment and for many Arsenal supporters that time is now.

Anti corruption watchdog urges halt to World Cup race

FIFA president Sepp Blatter

ZURICH, 30 Nov — Anti-corruption watchdog Transparency International on Monday called on FIFA to postpone the race to host the 2018 and 2022 World Cups, after renewed media allegations of corruption were made.

The call by the private campaign group came just days before the executive committee of world football's governing body was due to designate the two host nations under the eyes of a brace of world leaders and stars.

"The decision to award football's World Cup in 2018 and 2022, scheduled for 2 December, 2010, must be postponed until full light is shed on the allegations published in the press," Transparency International Switzerland said in a statement.

"These have brought such discredit to the decision-making processes at FIFA that a decision in the current circumstances would only fuel the controversy," it added.

Yangon beautified with concrete roads

Byline: Reporter Than Swe (Pabedan)

Yangon City Development Committee (YCDC) is shaping Yangon, the capital of Yangon Region into a beautiful, clean and tidy garden city. As a special task, YCDC has assigned duties such as repairing and maintenance of roads, bridges, platforms and canals in Yangon municipal areas to Engineering Department (Road and Bridge). To operate construction works conveniently, Engineering Department (Road and Bridge) has organized special construction groups in Dagon Myothit (South), Shwepyitha, Hlinethaya and Dagon Myothit (North) townships. They use asphalt-concrete mixers called AC, which are essential for upgrading of roads, in Dawbon ABC, Dagon Myothit (South) and Shwepyitha townships. Likewise,
