President U Thein Sein attends concluding of summer paddy cultivation on 369-acre farmland in Pyinmana Township

NAY PYI TAW, 19 Feb— President of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar U Thein Sein attended the concluding of summer paddy cultivation on 369-acre farmland in Alyinlo Village, Pyinmana Township, Nay Pyi Taw Council Area this morning.

It was also attended by Union Minister for Information and for Culture U Kyaw Hsan, Union Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation U Myint Hlaing, Union Minister for Cooperatives and for Livestock and Fisheries U Ohn Myint, Deputy Minister for Commerce Dr Pwint Hsan, Nay Pyi Taw Council Member U Myint Shwe, Pyithu Hluttaw and Amyotha Hluttaw representatives, departmental heads, President U Win Aung of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Vice-President of the federation U Hla Maung Shwe, Chairman U Chit Khaing of Myanmar Rice Industry Association, vice-chairmen and executives of the association, Chairman of Central Cooperatives Association U Khin Maung Aye, CEOs of rice dealing companies, farmers and locals.

Union Minister U Myint Hlaing explained cultivation of Palethwe hybrid rice plants on 369-acre farmland owned by farmers of Alyinlo Village. General Secretary of Myanmar Rice Industry Association Director of Ayeya Hintha Co explained strong market potential of Palethwe hybrid paddy, and prepaid purchase of rice from farmers and construction of modern rice mill in Nay Pyi Taw. Two local farmers reported on assistance of the government for agricultural development.

The President said it is encouraging to see active contribution of Agriculture and Irrigation Ministry, related ministries, Myanmar Rice Industry Association and rice dealing companies for agricultural development of the country. Myanmar is still an agro-based nation. Although industrialization alone can ensure modernization, the nation still has to rely on agriculture for the meantime. Changes are needed for development of agricultural sector as the old conventional methods would not produce the better results.

The President emphasized that it needs to change our mind first and better changes will occur in consequence. In the past, Myanmar was the biggest rice exporter in Asia but now it exports a small volume. Thailand and Vietnam which are smaller than our country in size are exporting sheer quantity of rice which is gaining popularity in international market thanks to their superior quality. Our country has moderate climate, blessed with water resources and fertile soil. It needs to take actions for exportation of rice apart from food sufficiency.

Sufficiency of food, clothing and shelter are important for the life of an individual. Clothing and shelter are not matters of daily concern but food is. Now, the world population has hit 7000 million, but the size of the world remains unchanged, calling for two to three times increased production of food for growing population.

He stressed the need of material change in addition to spiritual change. It is difficult to measure the exact area of farmland across the nation because of their different shapes. It needs actions for farmland reforms for agricultural development. In so doing, it needs to pave production road and irrigation canals are to be dug on both sides of the production road so that irrigation water can be provided to the farmlands. Only standardized farmlands are reclaimed beside the production road, can the measurement of farmland be accurate and cultivation can be made easily with farming equipment.

To remedy scarcity of farm workers, it is needed to transform into mechanized farming, the President said. Conventional cultivation and harvesting by man power cost much with relatively greater wastage, he said. With the wastage of six baskets per acre, it is a great deal for 17 million acres of the entire country, he pointed out. Cultivation and harvesting by machines reduce the cost by half and give pure paddy with less wastage, he went on.

The President underscored the need to sow quality paddy strains. While some countries are yielding 200 baskets per acre, the nation still have to content with the yield of about 60 or 70 baskets per acre on average, he said. He highlighted the importance of growing hybrid paddy, with higher yield, better taste and wider foreign market. Only with the change in attitude, land reform, transformation to mechanized farming and growing high-yield quality strains, will the agricultural sector be developed, he said.

A simple and perfect exercise

Normally, jogging is running slowly which is beneficial especially to older people as running for long hours may hurt their joints. Jogging, in fact, is an exercise whose benefits are far more than the financial cost.

Another advantage for senior citizens is that jogging needs lesser efforts when compared with running. It is really simple and most suitable for many especially the deskbound people.

Regular jogging can make the heart stronger, control body weight, build stamina, decrease stress, and decelerate aging. Although it uses energy and needs efforts, jogging can make people feel physically vigilant and can keep their spirit up in their daily work.

As muscles are using more oxygen while running slowly and steadily, jogging improves strength or endurance. Better endurance is attained when the lungs are able to take in more oxygen for the blood to pump.

Apart from keeping mental problems including anxiety, depression and stress at bay, jogging can also prevent dreadful syndromes as diabetes, hypertension and heart attack and also obesity which actually is their source.

A comprehensive knowledge of jogging is that it has the power of significantly reducing stress and clearing worries. As jogging or running relieves stress which is one of the causes of cancers, some research report even say that it can prevent cancer risks mainly breast cancer. Other cancer risks like lung cancer, ovarian cancer and prostate cancer can also be reduced through jogging.

So, nothing in this world will be more beneficial for us than refreshing ourselves with a revitalizing jogging in the morning or evening.

Iranian warships enter Mediterranean

TEHRAN, 19 Feb—Two Iranian warships sailed through the Suez Canal Saturday into the Mediterranean Sea, Iranian naval officials said. CNN said it is not clear where the destroyer and supply ship are headed.

Iranian navy Rear Adm Habibollah Sayyari was quoted by Iran's semi-official Mehr news agency as saying

"the navy's 18th fleet will in the best way carry the message of peace and friendship to regional countries, and display the might of the country and the sacred system of the Islamic Republic of Iran."

Egypt, which has sovereignty over the Suez Canal, is bound by the 1978 Camp David Accords, which guarantee the right of free passage by ships belonging to Israel and all other nations on the basis of the Constantinople Convention of 1888, CNN said.

Israel will make own decision on Iran, says army chief

JERUSALEM, 19 Feb—Israel will ultimately decree on an Iranian strike on its own, its military chief of staff said in an interview broadcast on Saturday, as a senior US official arrived for talks on the Islamic Republic.

"Israel is the central guarantor of its own security; this is our role as army, the State of Israel should defend itself," Lieutenant General Benny Gantz told state-owned Channel One TV. "We must follow the developments in Iran and its nuclear project, but in a very broad manner, taking into account what the world is doing, what Iran decided, what we will do or not do," he said.

In recent weeks, there has been feverish speculation that Israel was getting closer to mounting a pre-emptive strike on Iran's nuclear programme, though Israel has denied reaching such a decision. Tensions between Iran and Israel have been simmering with Iranian warships entering the Mediterranean through the Suez Canal in a show of "might", a move Israel said it would closely monitor.

On Wednesday, Iran said it had installed another 3,000 centrifuges to increase its uranium enrichment abilities and was stepping up exploration and processing of uranium yellowcake. And Israel blamed a recent wave of attacks targeting Israeli diplomats on agents of Teheran, allegations Iran denies.

Warrant issued for fifth Bangkok bombing suspect

BANGKOK, 19 Feb—The South Bangkok Criminal Court Saturday night approved a police request to issue an arrest warrant of a Middle East man believed to have been involved in the three bomb explosions in a business district of Bangkok on 17 February, local media INN reported on Sunday.

According to Pol Col Sunthorn Khemaprada, deputy chief of Metropolitan Police Division 5, the suspect, who was not yet identified, was charged with illegally assembling bombs, illegally having explosives in possession, and causing explosions that hurt other people.

Pol Col Sunthorn said there had not been enough evidence to confirm whether the fifth suspect was identified as Nikkhahfard Javad, who reportedly left the country on 14 February.

The camera captured images of the fifth suspect walking from the rented house at Sukhumvit 71's Soi Pridi Panomyong 31 where the first bomb exploded.

Thailand's Criminal Court on last Thursday issued arrest warrants for four Iranians on various charges related to Tuesday's Bangkok bomb incidents.—Xinhua

Turkey: NATO radar data not shared

ANKARA, 19 Feb—Turkey says it will not share information from a NATO radar installation aimed at Iran with countries that do not belong to the alliance.

Turkish Foreign Minister Ahmet Davutoglu made the statement after a meeting on Friday with Anders Fogh Rasmussen, the secretary general of NATO, Voice of America reported. Turkish news media had reported that the United States allegedly shared information obtained from the radar installation with Israel, which does not belong to NATO.

Turkey "will never allow any third country to use any NATO facility," Davutoglu said. Rasmussen said all NATO installations are primarily intended to protect members.

Rasmussen was in Ankara to mark the 60th anniversary of Turkey's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The two men also discussed Syria and an upcoming NATO summit on Afghanistan scheduled to be held in May in Chicago.—Internet

Experts delay call on releasing controversial H5N1 work

Research into the H5N1 virus has to be carried out in highly controlled conditions.—INTERNET

LONDON, 19 Feb — Experts have delayed a decision on whether controversial research into the H5N1 bird flu virus should be released. It had been looking at how the work could be released while guarding against its abuse by bioterrorists. But talks at the World Health Organization in Geneva decided more discussions were needed to see if it could be possible to publish in full. One of the two journals which want to publish has already agreed to wait for talks to be complete.

They showed that the H5N1 virus could relatively easily mutate into a form that could spread rapidly among the human population. The studies prompted the US National Security Advisory Board for Biotechnology (NSABB) to ask both journals last November to redact some sensitive parts of the research, which it believed could be used by terrorists to develop such a virus.—Internet

LONDON, 19 Feb — More than 2,800 women with privately fitted PIP breast implants have been referred to the NHS in England, according to government figures.

These are women whose private clinics have either refused to remove the implants, or whose clinic no longer exists. More than 1,100 women have had their implants scanned. Only a small number have decided to have them removed so far.

privately fitted PIP implants. If there is a medical need, which includes distress, and the patient cannot receive an operation from their private

Sixty seven have decided to have them removed, and 12 of these operations have taken place so far.

Women who had PIP implants fitted by the NHS will have them removed and replaced by the health service. Figures show 741 women had implants fitted by the NHS, largely for reconstruction after breast cancer.

Doctors have contact 653 of the patients, 17 have decided to have the operation and one had been completed so far.

Woman dies after contracting Legionnaires' disease from dentist's office

who determined the source of the woman's illness, which occurred in February 2011, said during the disease's incubation period the woman only left her home twice to visit her dentist. When they tested the water in both places, they discovered the bacteria that causes Legionnaires' in the dentist's water line.

Water lines carry water from the main water supply to certain devices used during patient care. While the authors wrote the most common sources of infection are air conditioning systems, hot water systems, spas and fountains, a recent study found dental water lines to be another major source of contamination with Legionella bacteria. Legionella pneumophila is the bacterial strain that causes Legionnaires' disease. "However, as far as we are aware, no case of Legionnaires' disease has been associated with this source of infection," added the authors, led by Maria Luisa Ricci of the Italian National Health Service. While it was not clear what kind of water line standards were in place in Italy, in the US, the American Dental Association (ADA) said infection control standards are very stringent in order to prevent cases like the one in Italy from happening.—Internet

Ex-Google CEO Schmidt to sell up to 2.4m shares

SAN FRANCISCO, 19 Feb — Former Google CEO Eric Schmidt plans to sell up to 2.4 million shares of stock currently worth nearly $1.5 billion. Schmidt, now Google's executive chairman, intends to stagger the sales of the stock over a one-year period. Google disclosed Schmidt's plans in a Friday regulatory filing. The company said Schmidt, 56, is trying to raise some money and diversify his investment portfolio.

If all 2.4 million shares of stock are sold, that will reduce Schmidt's stake in Google Inc from 2.8 percent to 2.1 percent. Those sales are scheduled to be completed in 2015.

some of his shares comes 10 months after he ended his 10-year stint as Google's CEO and turned the job over to one of the Internet search leader's co-founders, Larry Page. Page and co-founder Sergey Brin filed plans to sell 5 million Google shares apiece in 2010. Those sales are scheduled to be completed in 2015.

Together, Page, Brin and Schmidt hold the majority of shareholder voting power at Google. They will retain that control even after they reduce their stakes. All three have been billionaires since Google went public in 2004. Google shares fell $1.88 Friday to close at $604.64. The company disclosed Schmidt's plans to lower his holdings after the stock market closed. The shares fell 44 cents after hours.—Internet

London Metal Exchange gets "good number" of first-round bids

LONDON, 19 Feb — The London Metal Exchange (LME) has received a good number of first-round bids for the 130-year-old bourse, the world's largest metals market place, an LME spokesman said on Friday. Separate sources familiar with the situation said the list includes NYSE/Euronext. Around half of the 15 or so parties that had shown interest in the LME had made initial offers. "Everything is on track with a good number of bids for the board to consider next week," an LME spokesman said.

The LME board meets on 23 February. The Financial Times newspaper reported that the CME Group had also made an offer. The CME declined to comment. Sources said potential suitor Deutsche Boerse had decided not to bid and that the London Stock Exchange was also unlikely to make an offer. ## Iceland debt 'safe to invest' after ratings upgrade

LONDON, 19 Feb — Iceland is safe to invest in again, according to Fitch, which has upgraded its credit rating three years after its economy spectacularly collapsed. Fitch raised Iceland's sovereign rating by one notch, to BBB- from BB+, meaning that the country's debt is now "investment grade". Iceland's economy imploded under a mountain of debt in 2008, forcing an International Monetary Fund bailout. Since then, the debts of its neighbours have sparked a crisis in the eurozone.

Fitch said the decision "reflects the progress that has been made in restoring macroeconomic stability, pushing ahead with structural reform and rebuilding sovereign creditworthiness". In 2008, its three banks failed under their enormous foreign debt, which at one point was larger than the Icelandic economy. The value of the Icelandic krona plunged, which made its exports more competitive. The new government of 2009 was allowed to carry on borrowing and spending for another year before spending cuts kicked in. That is in contrast to the austerity measures that have been imposed on Greece, Portugal and the Irish Republic since their respective bailouts. All those countries share the euro and so cannot devalue their currencies. Last month, Fitch downgraded five eurozone countries, including Italy and Spain, citing financial weakness during the debt crisis. Standard & Poor's agency had downgraded nine eurozone economies, including France. And Moody's this week put the UK on "negative outlook", implying a 30% chance of losing its AAA credit rating within 18 months.—Internet

Violent videogame boosts vision in some adults

VANCOUVER, 19 Feb— Playing a videogame that involves shooting enemies on a battlefield has helped some adults who were born with a rare eye disorder improve their vision later in life, scientists said on Friday. The research shows that some sensory abilities that may seem permanently impaired can be improved in adulthood, according to lead investigator Daphne Maurer of McMaster University in Canada. Maurer and colleagues followed children born with a rare cataract disorder in both eyes that required surgery and corrective contacts. All were deprived of normal vision as infants between three and 10 months.

As these children grew to adults, their vision improved but never reached 20/20, and they showed some deficits in face perception, sharpness, direction of motion, peripheral and binocular vision. Since previous research on people with certain eye disorders had shown improvements after playing a type of videogame known as a first-person shooter, in which the player wields a gun and blows up foes, Maurer decided to try it on her subjects.

Six patients between the ages of 19 and 31 were tracked for a period of one month, in which they played the Electronic Arts (EA) videogame "Medal of Honor" for a total of 40 hours — no more than two hours a day, five days a week.

Tasmanian devils' killer disease genome mapped

LONDON, 19 Feb — Researchers have sequenced the genome of the killer disease that is driving the remaining wild populations of Tasmanian devils towards extinction. They hope the genetic data will offer clues on how to suppress the spread of Devil Facial Tumour Disease (DFTD), which is transmitted via biting. Since DFTD was first recorded in 1996, populations in some areas are estimated to have declined by up to 90%. Details of the research have been published in the journal Cell.

DFTD refers to a fatal condition that is characterised by the appearance of facial tumours. As these develop into large cancerous growths, the animal finds it hard to eat. As it becomes weaker, it is unable to compete with other animals for food. Researchers say that affected animals appear to die within three to five months of the lesions first appearing.—Internet

Tiny shrimp leave giant carbon footprint: scientist

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb — Measured by environmental impact, a humble shrimp cocktail could be the most costly part of a typical restaurant meal, scientists said on Friday. If the seafood is produced on a typical Asian fish farm, a 100-gram (3.5 ounce) serving "has an ecosystem carbon footprint of an astounding 198 kilograms (436 pounds) of CO<sub>2</sub>," biologist J Boone Kauffman said. A one-pound (454-gram) bag of frozen shrimp produces one ton of carbon dioxide, said Kauffman, who is based at Oregon State University and conducts research in Indonesia.

He told a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that he developed the comparison to help the public understand the environmental impact of land use decisions. Kauffman said 50 to 60 percent of shrimp

Will the new process save the planet? Or wind up destroying it?—INTERNET

AMSTERDAM, 19 Feb — It should come as no surprise to learn that the world is over reliant on petroleum, from the gas we put in cars to the plastic bags we take groceries home in. We're still trying to figure out how to make electric cars popular, but scientists at

Dutch researchers invent a process to turn plants into plastics

Utrecht University in the Netherlands may have solved the plastic bag half of the problem, creating an innovative new process that turns plant material to plastic.

Being able to convert plants to plastic isn't new, but the ability to make the conversion cheaply and efficiently is. The new technology uses a new type of iron nanoparticle catalyst to synthesize ethylene and propylene, the basic components of most modern plastics, from plant material.

This means that just about everything we use with plastic in our daily lives, from cars to paint, could one day come from a 100% renewable source. And since the process uses waste products such as branches and grass clippings, this new method of making plastic doesn't need to compete with the food supply for acreage.

The innovation isn't all good news, however — it has its share of environmental critics. Converting biomass to plastic means you're creating a new non-biodegradable product, potentially adding to landfills if people don't recycle. Further, there's concern that companies may be tempted to raze endangered-animal-filled rainforests for the purposes of gathering more biomass and creating new fast-growing grass fields for harvest.

Microsoft rolls out a dramatically different logo for Windows 8

NEW YORK, 19 Feb — Announced on Microsoft's The Windows Blog earlier today, the software company has officially announced the redesigned logo for Windows 8 after it was leaked on a Chinese site on Monday. While the colour scheme is different than the leaked version, the design is definitely the same. Designed to emulate the Metro style of Windows 8, the monochromatic logo is much simpler than the Windows 7 logo which was previously mistaken for a flag according to the blog.

As explained by Samuel Moreau, the User Experience Director at Microsoft, he states "We wanted the new logo to be both modern and classic by echoing the International Typographic Style (or Swiss design) that has been a great influence on our Metro style design philosophy. Using bold flat colours and clean lines and shapes, the new logo has the characteristics of way-finding design systems seen in airports and subways." Moreau continues "It was important that the new logo carries our Metro principle of being "Authentically Digital". By that, we mean it does not try to emulate faux-industrial design characteristics such as materiality (glass, wood, plastic, etc.). It has motion — aligning with the fast and fluid style you'll find throughout Windows 8. Our final goal was for the new logo to be humble, yet confident. Welcoming you in with a slight tilt in perspective and when you change your colour, the logo changes to reflect you. It is a "Personal" Computer after all."

The logo most closely resembles the Windows 1.0 logo released in conjunction with the first version of the operating system during 1985.

Obama: 'Big opportunity' for US economy

EVERETT, 19 Feb—US President Barack Obama said Saturday "we have a big opportunity right now" to build the economy and improve economic security for the middle class.

In his weekly radio and Internet address — taped Friday at the Boeing Coplant in Everett, Wash. — the president called the aviation giant's Dreamliner "a great example of how we can bring jobs and manufacturing back to America."

Obama said job outsourcing and technology that has "made businesses more efficient and productive" has also resulted in the loss of jobs that "provided a decent living" for US families. "And the hard truth is that a lot of those jobs aren't coming back," he said.

"But that doesn't mean we have to settle for a lesser future," the President said.

"I don't accept that idea. In America, there's always something we can do to create new jobs and new manufacturing and new security for the middle class. In America, we don't give up, we get up."

The President noted US businesses have added 3.7 million new jobs during the past 23 months, "and manufacturers are hiring for the first time since the 1990s."

"It's now getting more expensive to do business in places like China," he said. "Meanwhile, America is more productive than ever.

"We have a big opportunity right now to build not only an economy that will help us succeed today, but an economy that will help our kids and their kids succeed tomorrow. We know what we need to do. We need to strengthen American manufacturing.

We need to invest in American-made energy and new skills for American workers.

And above all, we need to renew the values that have always made this country great: Hard work. Fair play. Shared responsibility."

The President repeated his argument for eliminating tax breaks for companies for outsourcing jobs and called for tax breaks for manufacturers "who set up shop here at home."

Sanctions decrease Dubai-Iran trade 'day by day'

DUBAI, 19 Feb—Export volumes from Dubai to Iran, one of the sheikhdom's largest market abroad, face major setback due to the latest UN, US and EU sanctions, the Abu Dhabi-based The National reported Saturday.

The daily quotes Hamad Buamim, Director General of the Dubai Chamber of Commerce and Industry, as saying that exports from Dubai to Iran were shrinking "day by day." Dubai has the largest container port in the Middle East, the Jebel Ali Free port, in the west of the emirates, which is considered the gateway to global goods for Iran.

Buamim added that the UN sanctions against Iran from last June and the latest sanctions imposed by Washington and Brussels are in certain aspects "not very clear," which puts additional uncertainty to export companies.

In the first half 2011, re-exports from the United Arab Emirates (UAE) to Iran surged by 36 percent from the same period a year earlier to 19.5 billion Dirham (about 5.3 billion US dollars), according to figures provided by the UAE Customs Authority.

A major problem for Iran-oriented trade firms is financing. The UAE Central Bank told local banks in the country to stop financing trade with Teheran, and firms complain letters of credit are not issued any more, even for food and medical goods which are exempted from sanctions.

According to the report, the total value of Dubai Chamber of Commerce and Industry members' global exports and re-exports increased by 4.7 percent in January 2012 compared to the same month last year. "But the percentage rise is smaller than the 15 percent rise in members' exports for all of last year."—Xinhua

Cameron, Sarkozy enjoy friendly summit

PARIS, 19 Feb—British Prime Minister David Cameron and French President Nicolas Sarkozy signed a nuclear power agreement Friday at a friendly summit in Paris.

Cameron even gave what appeared to be close to an endorsement of Sarkozy in the upcoming French presidential election, The Independent reported. The most recent polls show Sarkozy running behind Socialist Francois Hollande.

"I think that he has done great things for his country," Cameron said at a news conference with a smiling Sarkozy. "I wish my friend well in the battle that lies ahead."

Cameron, however, suggested his support might do Sarkozy more harm than good with French voters. The summit was postponed from November, when France and Britain were divided by disagreements over European economic policy.

The agreements signed Friday include one involving the French nuclear power company Areva. That pact is expected to create hundreds of British jobs. The leaders also signed a letter of intent for development of a more advanced military drone and agreed to move more quickly on a joint military command and control centre. Sarkozy and Cameron also said that future defence cooperation will involve nuclear equipment, including joint nuclear submarine patrols.

Bear bile maker website hacked

BEIJING, 19 Feb—A Chinese bear bile products manufacturer's website was hacked on Saturday night, after the company invited the public to visit its farm.

The website of Guizhentang Pharmaceutical Co Ltd was hacked at 9:30 pm Saturday, one hour after the company posted a message online welcoming the public to visit its bear farm on Wednesday and Friday, according to a statement by the company on Sunday.

Technical repairs had been carried out on its website and it was functioning as normal Sunday morning. The company had reported the hacking to the police, the statement said.

The incident came after animal welfare groups and members of the public protested against an IPO (initial public offering) plan by the company, which manufactures medicine using bile extracted from live bears.

The China Association of Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) defended the company at a Press conference on Thursday afternoon, comparing bile extraction operations to "turning on a tap."

A day prior to the online attack against the bear bile company, the TCM association website was hacked.

Bear bile, a popular ingredient in traditional Chinese medicine, is believed to cure liver and eye ailments, remove toxins and eliminate fevers.

Sandra Thompson was celebrating her 59th birthday with her family on a snowboarding trip in Austria when she fell, The Daily Telegraph reported Saturday.

Although she was wearing a helmet during the incident 6 Feb, Thompson suffered severe brain swelling.

"My youngest son, Christopher, was snowboarding with her and she just went up a small rise and toppled backwards and hit her head on the snow," said Thompson's husband, David. "She was wearing a helmet and my son was with her within 10 seconds, but she was already unconscious."

"It's probably going to get worse," she said. "That's what we're terrified of."

Fake Facebook page leads to arrest

HOUSTON, 19 Feb—A Houston-area man was charged with a felony after creating a fake and degrading Facebook page for his ex-girlfriend, officials said.

Cesar Saldana, 19, was charged by the Harris County District Attorney's Office with online impersonation after his former girlfriend discovered a Facebook page that included her name, a topless photograph of her and what officials described as a

"lewd user name."

The complaint states the girl, a high school student, told police she recently ended her relationship with Saldana, did not create the Facebook page and has been receiving threats from him via text message.

The complaint, filed Tuesday, also states Saldana admitted to police he created the Facebook page and placed the photograph on it.

US, EU optimistic Iran will return to nuclear talks

BEIJING, 19 Feb—The United States and the European Union expressed cautious optimism on Friday over prospects that Iran may be willing to engage with major powers in new talks.

However, they also stressed that any new negotiations must be sustained and focus on the nuclear issue.

Hillary Clinton, US Secretary of State, said, "We have been reviewing Iran's proposal to resume talks on its nuclear activities and consulting closely between us and with our other P5+1 partners.

This response from the Iranian government is one we have been waiting for and if we do proceed, it will have to be a sustained effort that can produce results."

Catherine Ashton, EU Foreign Policy Chief, said, "It is extremely significant that we are meeting today because we meet on the back of having received a letter from Dr Jalili from Iran in response to my letter in October. As you said, we are consulting colleagues and analysing closely what this letter would mean. Let me say that I think it is good to see that the letter has arrived and that there is a potential possibility that Iran may be ready to start talks. We'll continue to discuss and make sure that what we are looking at is substantive, but I am cautious and I'm optimistic at the same time for this."

Capcom-themed restaurant opens in Tokyo

TOKYO, 19 Feb — Capcom fans, feast your eyes on the culinary translation of your favourite video games. Last month, an entertainment bar was opened in Tokyo, fully dedicated to the 28-year old Japanese video game developer. The video game-themed bar's grand opening was 25 January and features food inspired by characters and items from Capcom's currently popular franchises, like the Resident Evil and Phoenix Wright series'. Nothing less could be expected from the country that gave us Donkey Kong and the NES.

The game developers' first restaurant is located in Shinjuku, on the first floor of the Pasela Resort. Food prices seem to average at around 580 & yen ($7), and you can even order video game-themed drinks, which average 780 Yen ($10). The bar also includes gaming kiosks for those of you that like to dine and game. The bar plans on including an area for Capcom merchandise as well as gaming-related events like competitions or even live shows.

Capcom has been around since 1983 and is the developer behind classics such as Street Fighter, Devil May Cry, Mega Man, Ghost's n Goblins and Bionic Commando. However, the menu will initially be focusing on many of the company's currently popular series', with limited menu options for newly released games. The games that make the cut include Monster Hunter, Resident Evil, Samurai Kings (Sengoku Basara), Biohazard and Phoenix Wright: Ace Attorney.

Monster Hunter, huge in Japan, seems to be the easiest food-to-game transition; Monster Hunter Tri, for example, lets you cook dishes for stat boosts. Included under the Monster Hunter heading are dishes from the Airou and Yukumo villages as well as the obvious Well Done Steak. Monster Hunter drinks include alcoholic "dragon blood" and soft drinks in potion bottles.—Internet

Iran 'building up nuclear site near Qom'

LONDON, 19 Feb—Iran may be preparing to expand its nuclear programme at an underground plant near the city of Qom, a diplomat has told the BBC, just days ahead of a visit by United Nations nuclear inspectors.

Iran appears to be poised to install thousands of new centrifuges at the underground site in the northern city, a Vienna-based diplomat told the British broadcaster late Saturday.

The BBC said the centrifuges could speed up the production of enriched uranium, which can be used both for generating nuclear power and to manufacture atomic weapons.

Iran said on Wednesday it had installed another 3,000 centrifuges to increase its uranium enrichment abilities, but it was unclear Sunday whether these were the same as those mentioned by the diplomat.

Inspectors from the International Atomic Energy Agency, the UN's nuclear watchdog, are due to visit Teheran this week.

Iran insists that its nuclear drive is peaceful, but Western countries suspect the Islamic Republic of trying to develop an atomic bomb.

Iran has been slapped with four sets of UN sanctions and a raft of unilateral US and European Union measures over its nuclear drive.

There has been feverish speculation in recent weeks that Israel is preparing to mount a pre-emptive strike on the country's nuclear programme, though Israel has denied reaching such a decision.

Britain's Foreign Secretary William Hague warned over the weekend that Iran's nuclear ambitions could spark an atomic arms race in the Middle East.

British baby born at 12 pounds, 12 ounces

A British mother said her infant daughter, born with a weight of 12 pounds, 12 ounces, may be the heaviest ever born in Britain. Gemma Tevendale, 26, of Swindon, England, said her daughter, Suzie Gzowski, was born naturally and already had two teeth when she was born three weeks ago, The Sun reported on Friday.

Tevendale said both she and the girl's father, James Gzowski, 25, were born with a normal weight, but her two previous children were born at 10 pounds, 10 ounces and 11 pounds, 2 ounces.

The mother theorized eating a lot of fish while pregnant may have contributed to the plumping of her newborns.

"I do like my fish four times a week," she said. "I hadn't gone overboard with it, although I probably had more than I should — usually tuna and smoked salmon."

Experts told the parents the previous largest baby in Britain was born weighing 12 pounds, 9 ounces.

The heaviest baby ever born weighed 22 pounds, 8 ounces and was born in Italy in 1955, The Sun said.

Where was Charlie Chaplin born?

LONDON, 19 Feb—British intelligence officers found no record of Charlie Chaplin's birth when they probed him over over suspected Soviet ties, secret files have revealed.

The mystery of the silent film legend's origins emerged when the US asked Britain to probe his background after his exile from America in 1952 over suspected links to the Communist Party, the express.co.uk reported Friday.

But they found no Communist ties and the files said that he held "little security significance" and "we are not satisfied there are reliable grounds for regarding him as a security risk". Chaplin died in 1977.

Nicolas Cage walked around in 'voodoo mask' on Ghost Rider set

LONDON, 19 Feb—Nicolas Cage wore a voodoo style mask to stay in character on set filming 'Ghost Rider: Spirit of Vengeance'.

He said he got the idea after discussing it with director Brian Taylor.

"I said to him 'Well look, if I do this can I wear a mask?' Because I was concerned about feeling ridiculous on the set," the BBC quoted him as saying.

The 48-year-old went further, wearing black contact lenses and locating mystical objects to carry around with him.

"I would gather things together to wear in my wardrobe, like a bit of Egyptian artefacts from a pyramid," he said.

"And I would sew them in, or get some rocks together that had a frequency in the new age community," he added.

'Ghost Rider: Spirit of Vengeance' is the first time Cage has played the menacing alter-ego of stunt rider Johnny Blaze, despite this being the second time he's starred in a 'Ghost Rider' film.

"In the Mark Steven Johnson movie [Ghost Rider, 2007], I was not Ghost Rider, there was a stunt man doing that," he said.

Cage sees the follow up "as its own entity", and so he took embodying the role seriously. 'Ghost Rider Spirit of Vengeance' in 3D is in cinemas from 17 February 2012.

Celebrities honour Ali's life at Vegas gala

LAS VEGAS, 19 Feb—Muhammad Ali had seven prizefights in Las Vegas, with his two losses there coming in the twilight of his legendary career. Now, dozens of heavyweight celebrities are back in Sin City to laud a lifetime in the spotlight and join the icon known as “The Greatest” in fighting neurological diseases. Roughly 2,000 people were expected to attend a swanky gala to celebrate Ali’s 70th birthday on Saturday night at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas, the site of most of boxing’s major fights the past 20 years.

Ali turned 70 last month, and had another celebration and fundraiser then in his home state of Kentucky. Guests arriving on the red carpet included football great Jim Brown. “America started with slavery and ended up with a black president,” Brown said. “Muhammad Ali was a part of that ... a big part.” One of Ali’s daughters, Rasheda Ali, says the gala is a chance for friends, family and A-listers who look up to her father to show their respect for his life and legacy as a humanitarian. In return, she says he’ll be honored to see them there. “He has not left that need to help others,” Rasheda Ali told The Associated Press. “That’s one of his core values — his charity and his giving.”

The gala starting at $1,500 per plate was expected to draw some of the biggest names in entertainment and sports — including David Beckham, Anthony Hopkins, Samuel L. Jackson and Stevie Wonder, among others. They’re planning performances and tributes to a fighter who went 56-5 in the ring with 37 knockouts and became perhaps the most famous athlete ever because of his personality and willingness to publicly stand up for his beliefs. Ali has lived with Parkinson’s disease for nearly 30 years, a degenerative brain condition that some doctors say can be brought on by punches to the head. — Internet

Hirscher wins World Cup GS after Ligety mistake

BANSKO, 19 Feb—Marchel Hirscher took advantage of a mistake by rival Ted Ligety to win a World Cup giant slalom Saturday and overtake the American for first place in the discipline standings. Ligety led after the first run but dropped out of contention in the second run with a mistake in the upper part of the slope and placed last of the 27 finishers.

Hirscher, who began the second run trailing Ligety by 0.16 seconds, clinched the victory with a combined time of 2 minutes, 25.35 seconds. Hirscher called his performance “one of my very best giant slalom runs.” “I have reasons to believe that I could win the World Cup, but I take it one race at a time,” Hirscher said, adding that he prefers to “play it safe.”

Italy’s Massimiliano Bardonone came in second with a combined time of 2:26.74, ahead of Austria’s Marcel Mathis, 0.86 off the lead. The 20-year-old Mathis put in a sensational performance on his second run to advance from 26th to third place and earn his first World Cup podium place. — Internet

Klitschko unanimously outpoints Chisora

MUNICH, 19 Feb—Vitali Klitschko’s 10th successful defence of his WBC heavyweight title ended in chaos Saturday night when challenger Dereck Chisora brawled with former WBA champion David Haye during the post-match news conference. Chisora taunted Haye about losing the WBA belt to Klitschko’s younger brother, Wladimir, last July, leading to a heated exchange before Chisora knocked a bottle out of Haye’s hand and they came to blows.

Haye also fought with members of Chisora’s entourage, and his coach, Adam Booth, was left bleeding from a cut on his head. Camera equipment went flying and reporters fled before security eventually managed to separate the men and police arrived at the scene. “You’ve really lost it this time,” Chisora told Haye. The 40-year-old Klitschko beat Chisora in a bruising bout in which the Ukrainian claimed to have fought from the fourth round with only his right fist after hurting his left hand.

“I think we all heard excuses about a broken toe,” Chisora later retorted, referring to Haye’s loss to Wladimir Klitschko in Germany last July. Chisora found very little support from the sellout crowd of 12,500 after slapping Vitali Klitschko’s face at the weigh-in on Friday, and ensured the ill feelings continued when he spit water in Wladimir’s face as his brother’s record was being called out before their bout. “I wanted to knock him out, to be honest,” Vitali Klitschko said. “Such a cheek.” — Internet

Real Madrid go 13 points clear

MADRID, 19 Feb—Real Madrid went 13 points clear of Barcelona in La Liga on Saturday as Karim Benzema grabbed a double in a 4-0 win over 10-man Racing Santander. Jose Mourinho’s men have given Barca little margin for error having now won 18 of the last 19 games since they drew 0-0 at Santander at the end of September. On Saturday, they weren’t so forgiving towards Racing as they stayed on track for their first league title since 2008. “It was not a brilliant performance but we won without too much effort and it was a good result,” said Mourinho.

A Cristiano Ronaldo header hit the post as Real came out all guns blazing and after six minutes they were a goal up with Kaka crossing for Ronaldo to head in from less than a yard out for his 28th league strike of the season. Real were given a further boost by the harsh dismissal of Domingo Cisma after 38 minutes when he was adjudged to have handled the ball. On the stroke of half-time Benzema doubled the lead when he clipped the ball in from an acute angle and after the break Real remained firmly in control.

Xabi Alonso had a shot from the edge of the area which went narrowly past the post before substitute Angel Di Maria, returning from injury, hit a shot into the back of the net although goalkeeper Antonio Rodriguez perhaps should have done better. Benzema completed the rout with a deflected strike a minute from the end. Mourinho said he was happy to see Di Maria as well as Sami Khedira return to the side particularly with Champions League matches on the horizon. — Internet

Juve back on top after Catania victory

TURIN, 19 Feb — Juventus hit back to beat 10-man Catania 3-1 in Turin on Saturday and move back to the top of Serie A ahead of AC Milan’s trip to Cesena on Sunday. Pablo Barrientos gave the Sicilians, who had Marco Motta dismissed in the second half, a shock early lead but goals from Andrea Pirlo, Giorgio Chiellini and Fabio Quagliarella secured the three points.

Juve now lead Milan by two points having played the same number of games ahead of their meeting at the San Siro next weekend. “It will be emotional returning to the San Siro but the game is vital for our season so I’m calm,” said Pirlo, who scored his first goal for the Old Lady of Turin since a summer move from Milan, where he spent a decade.

“It was an important goal tonight because it got us back on level terms.” The win ended a run of two straight 0-0 draws for Antonio Conte’s men. — Internet

Mickelson shares lead in Northern Trust Open golf

LOS ANGELES, 19 Feb—Phil Mickelson was delighted to emerge from an erratic round with a share of the third-round lead in the Northern Trust Open, alongside 2011 USPGA Tour Rookie of the Year Keegan Bradley. Mickelson, a two-time winner at Riviera Country Club and seeking a second title in as many weeks after his victory at Pebble Beach last Sunday, wrestled his way to a one-under par 70 to keep a share of the lead he’s held since Thursday on seven-under 206.

Phil Mickelson during the third round of the Northern Trust Open on 18 February. — INTERNET

“This was a great round for me because I did not play well,” Mickelson said. “And I shot one-under par and I’m atop the leaderboard.” Mickelson managed just two birdies — at the par-five first and par-five 11th, against one bogey — but was proud of all the hard-earned pars. “The one thing I did is that on all those misses, I missed it on the side I had to miss it on,” Mickelson said. “I was able to miss it on the correct side that allowed me to always have a chance at making par.”

Meanwhile Bradley, whose outstanding 2011 campaign included a major title with his playoff victory in the PGA Championship, had six birdies in his five-under par 66, which matched the low round of the day. — Internet

Neil Warnock appointed Leeds United manager

LONDON, 19 Feb—Neil Warnock has been appointed manager of Leeds United, promising fans he has "one big challenge left in me". Leeds have been without a manager since Simon Grayson was sacked on 1 February. The former QPR boss, 63, said: "I feel I have one big challenge left in me and believe Leeds is a club that should be in the Premier League."

"I want to be the man who is able to deliver this for a set of fans who never cease to amaze me with their numbers and loyalty."

Warnock, who was sacked as Queens Park Rangers manager in January after a run of eight Premier League games without a win, has signed a deal until the end of the 2012-13 season. Leeds chairman Ken Bates said: "We believe the appointment is arguably the most important we have made. "The objective was to appoint a manager who had a proven track record of getting teams promoted and in Neil we have a man whose record is second to none.—Internet

Muntari scores as AC Milan beats Cesena 3-1

MILAN, 19 Feb—New signing Sulley Muntari scored on his AC Milan debut to help send his new team to a 3-1 victory at struggling Cesena on Sunday, and back to the top of Serie A.

Muntari opened the scoring in the 29th minute and Urby Emanuelson doubled Milan's lead two minutes later. Robinho added a third 10 minutes into the second half.

Daniel Pudil grabbed a consolation for Cesena, which remains seven points adrift of safety after Siena lost 4-1 to Lecce in a relegation battle.

Milan is a point above Juventus, which has a game in hand.

Elsewhere, Roma captain Francesco Totti played his 700th game for the club to help it edge Parma 1-0, with Fabio Borini scoring the only goal.—Internet

Fire sweeps three street markets in Honduras' capital

TEGUCIGALPA, 19 Feb—A fire has swept through street markets in the capital of Honduras, a nation traumatized just five days ago by a fire that killed 358 people at a prison.

Authorities say 11 people were injured and about 1,800 stalls burned, but there were no deaths.

Saturday's fire burned through several blocks of three markets and sent thick plumes of black smoke wafting over Tegucigalpa, the capital. The fire appeared to have hit stands selling mainly clothes and sneakers.

Mayor Ricardo Alvarez said says two women were rescued, one

Spurs forced into replay as Stoke go through

LONDON, 19 Feb—This season's FA Cup favourites Tottenham Hotspur were held to a 0-0 draw at third tier Stevenage on Sunday while last term's runners-up Stoke City reached the quarter-finals after prevailing 2-0 in another tricky-looking game at Crawley Town.

Spurs, third in the Premier League and with coach Harry Redknapp tipped to take over England, produced a lethargic display with a new five-man defence and had to settle for a replay at White Hart Lane next month.

Louis Saha had the ball in the net but his shot clipped an offside Scott Parker on the line to sum up a bad day for Spurs, the best-ranked team left in the Cup after holders Manchester City lost in an earlier round like Manchester United.

London's three big clubs have all struggled in the fifth round with beleaguered Arsenal being eliminated by Sunderland and Chelsea scraping a 1-1 home draw with second tier Birmingham City on Saturday.

Stoke had a man harshly sent off but then scored a controversial penalty as they saw off fourth division Crawley.

Jonathan Walters converted the 42nd-minute spotkick, after Ryan Shawcross had gone to ground having barely been touched by Kyle McFadzean, before Peter Crouch headed a second after halftime to end a personal goal drought.

Rory Delap was sent off in the 16th minute for a studs-up challenge, the kind of tackle which has prompted much past Pepe Reina. Just as the visitors looked set to go in level at half-time however, Liverpool struck again. Luis Suarez saw his shot blocked and Glen Johnson's follow-up was inadvertently turned in to his own net by Brighton's Liam Bridcutt.

And Carroll made sure of Liverpool's place in the last eight as he collected Stewart Downing's pass, slipped his man and rifled home in the second half before Bridcutt scored a second own goal as he turned in Gerrard's cross.

The Seagulls saved the best till last however as Lewis Dunk controlled the ball with his chest before chesting the ball into the net.

Luis Suarez then had the chance to add a sixth from the spot but his poor effort was saved only for the striker to make amends minutes later when he headed in Carroll's cross to make it six.

debate in England this season with referees deeming them dangerous but players saying they are just trying to win the ball.

Stoke boss Tony Pulis, angered that Crawley manager Steve Evans had jumped on to the pitch to protest to referee Mike Jones, told ESPN he was "really irked" that there is such a discrepancy between tackles given reds and those that are not.

Crawley, who lost 1-0 at Manchester United at this stage last season when they were a non-league side, almost took an early lead when the ball hit Crouch and crashed against the woodwork.—Internet

Babies Know What's Fair

PENNSYLVANIA, 19 Feb—"That's not fair!" It's a common playground complaint. But how early do children acquire this sense of fairness? Before they're 2, says a new study.

"We found that 19- and 21-month-old infants have a general expectation of fairness, and they can apply it appropriately to different situations," says University of Illinois psychology graduate student Stephanie Sloane, who conducted the study with UI's Renée Baillargeon and David Premack of the University of Pennsylvania.

The findings appear in Psychological Science, a journal published by the Association for Psychological Science.

In each of two experiments, babies watched live scenarios unfold. In the first, 19-month-olds saw two giraffe puppets dance around at the back of a stage. An experimenter arrived with two toys on a tray and said, "I have toys!" "Yay!" said the giraffes. Then the experimenter gave one toy to each giraffe or both to one of them. The infants were timed gazing at the scene until they lost interest. Longer looking times indicated that something was odd—unexpected—to the baby. In this experiment, three-quarters of the infants looked longer when one giraffe got both toys.

In the second experiment, two women faced each other with a pile of small toys between them and an empty plastic box in front of each of them. An experimenter said, "Wow! Look at all these toys. It's time to clean them up." In one scenario, one woman dutifully put the toys away, while the other kept playing—but the experimenter gave a reward to both the worker and the slacker.—Internet
