Satisfactory results

Agricultural industry needs proper changes as the age-old manual method or conventional method can no longer produce satisfactory results at a time when countries smaller in area and lesser in natural resources than Myanmar are exporting largest amount of rice superior in quality and popular in global markets.

Another disadvantage of the manual method is the high cost as it demands a great deal of manpower and causes a lot of wastage. Imagine the amount of wastage caused by human labour for the country's total paddy sown acreage of 17 million acres at a rate of six baskets per acre (roughly, one basket of rice is equal to 44 pounds).

In contrast, mechanized farming cuts production cost by half and minimizes wastage to a considerable degree. Generally, mechanized farming is extra effective and more commercial in large-scale cultivation, especially for gigantic square-shape crop-growing plots.

Consequently, large-scale mechanized farms have become essential part of the nation to feed its own population and to compete with other global exporters in quality and quantity in the long run. The bottom-line here is the transformation of the whole agricultural industry into a production force fully adaptable to modern techniques and systems.

Undoubtedly, large-scale mechanized farms need a large amount of capital which is not within the reach of rural farmers tilling most of the nation's farms. We now have some big domestic enterprises doing agro-business on a wider scale. But they alone cannot bring satisfactory results we are searching for. At this point, we need to create cooperative farms with the participation of farmers themselves.

We have the Agriculture and Irrigation Ministry, the Cooperatives Ministry and other relevant organizations for all-round assistance including financial aids farmers need in setting up such cartels. What's more, the educative model farm in Nay Pyi Taw is providing peasants all over the country with valuable knowledge through demonstrations.

Almost definitely, new initiatives and new way of thinking and actions coupled with spiritual and material changes are the sine qua non of achieving satisfactory results.

US strategic shift to Asia-Pacific provides opportunity to improve ties with China

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb—The US military's strategic shift to the Asia-Pacific region

'Iron Dome' system moves to Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV, 20 Feb—A defence system used to protect Israeli cities from rocket attacks will be deployed in Tel Aviv for a drill, the Israeli military said on Sunday.

Known as the Iron Dome battery, the movable shield against medium-range rockets known to be used by Hamas and Hezbollah is part of Israel's multi-layered defence capability, and will be set up in the Tel Aviv metropolitan area for the first time for several days.

The military stressed the deployment of anti-rocket equipment is a part of pre-planned training exercises, although the Iron Dome has never appeared in central Israel.

"The battery is being placed in various locations from time to time," the military's public affairs unit said. Ynet News, an Israeli news agency, said on Sunday that although terrorist organizations have yet to fire rockets into the Tel Aviv area, security officials are aware the groups own rockets with the capability, and expect the city to be the main target in upcoming conflicts.

INTERNET

provides an opportunity to improve the US relations with China, Martin Dempsey, chairman of the US Joint Chiefs of Staff said on Sunday.

Speaking during an interview with the USTV news network CNN, the top US military officer said that the US military has "taken a decision to rebalance ourselves toward the Pacific" in a re-strategy move.

"I think this is more opportunity than liability to improve our relationship with China, and I am personally committed to having that as the outcome rather than get into an arms race or into some kind of confrontation with China," Dempsey said.

The Obama administration has launched with a big fanfare its "Pivot to Asia" strategic shift since late last year, arousing widespread suspicion that the US move is aimed at containing the rise of China, whose influence in the Asia-Pacific region has been rapidly increasing to counterbalance the US dominance.

During the 13 to 17 Feb visit to the US by China's Vice President Xi Jinping, the two countries reaffirmed their commitment to further boost their cooperative partnership based on mutual respect and mutual benefit. They also agreed to promote the steady and sound development of bilateral military ties based on the principle of mutual respect, mutual trust, reciprocity and mutual benefit.

Xi, in Ireland, expresses support for euro

DUBLIN, 20 Feb—Vice President Xi Jinping, in line to become China's next leader, reassured his hosts in Ireland about his country's support for the euro and the eurozone.

Xi, expected to succeed Hu Jintao this year as China's president and general secretary of the Communist Party, arrived in Dublin on Saturday after visiting the United States.

His trip comes at a time when the eurozone, of which Ireland is a member, faces a huge debt crisis with more of its members facing tough economic times and ratings downgrades. In his talks with Irish Prime Minister Enda Kenny, Xi said China attaches importance to the status of the euro and expressed optimism about the prospect of the single European currency. "We believe the European Union has the ability, wisdom and solution to push forward relevant reforms and adjust itself to overcome the current difficulties," Xi said, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

"China will continue to support, in its own way, the efforts of the EU, the European Central Bank and the International Monetary Fund in resolving (the) sovereign debt crisis in Europe." The EU is China's biggest export market, and a stable euro is seen as being good for the Communist country.

Xi said developing China-EU relations is a priority of China's foreign policy. The Irish leader was quoted as saying his country wants to build closer relations with China and would provide preferential treatment for Chinese investors in Ireland. The two leaders witnessed the signing of several cooperation documents. "I look forward to opening a new chapter in the close and warm relationship between Ireland and China," The Irish Times quoted Kenny as saying.—Internet

Karzai asks US not to negotiate with Taliban on their behalf

ISLAMABAD, 20 Feb—Afghan President Hamid Karzai has asked the US not to negotiate with the Taliban on their behalf.

"Americans cannot negotiate on our behalf with the Taliban and with us on behalf of the Taliban," The Dawn quoted Karzai, as saying.

He was quick to clarify his government's stand on the withdrawal of objection to the Taliban setting up their liaison office in Qatar.

"We only and only agreed to the establishment of office of the Taliban in Qatar... Venue of talks, actual talks between us and Taliban, should be something we decide. Our preference is Saudi Arabia or Turkey," he added.

Karzai's vision of an Afghan led reconciliation is one in which his government and the Taliban sit face to face and "talk in an environment of clear and absolute transparency where the entire Afghan nation can see the process unfolding and where Afghanistan can have certain conditions".

Earlier this week, the dialogue on peace and stability in Afghanistan between Kabul and Islamabad had reportedly faltered because of persisting differences over how to fight terrorism and questions about what role the US will play in it.

"What we are talking is how to bring peace and stability to the two countries (Afghanistan and Pakistan) and the region at large," Karzai said.

"Our dialogue is at an advanced stage, we are discussing real issues. But what we have not come to as yet are the mechanisms we need to achieve the objective of a region free of extremism, radicalisation and violence it brings on us," he added.

The other contentious issue, he said, was the role of US "as an important player" in the attainment of that goal.

Two people killed in ambush, shootout in N Philippines

MANILA, 20 Feb—Two people were killed in an ambush and shootout in northern Philippine province of Cavite early Monday morning, police said.

Citing an initial investigation, Philippine National Police spokesman Agrimero Cruz Jr said that at about 5:45 am, a certain Boy named Evangelista, a sheep farm owner, allegedly ambushed three persons on board a motorcycle while traversing along Centennial Road corner Kalayaan Street in Batundalig Village.

A victim identified as Joel Hernandez Manisi of Chut village, La Paz, Tarlac Province, died on the spot while the two other victims survived and were brought to a hospital for treatment, he said.

At around 8:20 am, the elements of the Cavite Provincial Police Office engaged the suspect in an encounter during a pursuit operation that resulted in his death, Cruz said.

The suspect was allegedly armed with an M-16 rifle and a caliber 45 pistol, he said.

Further investigation was ongoing to determine the motive of the ambush, he said.

Motorcycle linked to Iranian bombers

BANGKOK, 20 Feb—Thai police said a motorcycle found abandoned on a Bangkok street was providing more clues about the activities of a suspected Iranian terrorist ring.

The Honda, which was left parked in front of a store, was dusted for fingerprints and traced to a motorcycle shop in the city's Klong Tan area where it had been purchased by one of the five suspects in the ring.

Police said they found a sticker on the seat of the bike with the word "sejéal" on it. Sejéal comes from the Koran and is often used as a nickname for the rockets that Palestinian guerrillas have been lobbing into Israel over the years, the Bangkok Post said on Sunday.

National Deputy Police Chief Pansiri Prapawat said investigators were trying to determine if the motorcycle was to have been used in any plot to attack Israeli diplomats or other targets in the Thai capital.

The Post said five individuals had been identified as suspects in the alleged ring, including two who have apparently fled to Iran and two others captured after being injured by an explosion last week not far from where the motorcycle was found.

The fifth suspect has not been identified but police were seeking an arrest warrant, the newspaper said.

'Nodding disease' confounds experts, kills children

KAMPALA, 20 Feb — Patrick Anywar, 14, lies curled up naked in the dust and midday heat of a Ugandan village, struggling to look up at his younger brother and sister playing in front of the family home. After a minute's effort to face his siblings, Anywar's head slumps onto his chest and his emaciated body is gripped by convulsions.

Anywar is one of more than 3,000 children in northern Uganda who are suffering from a debilitating mystery ailment known as nodding disease, which has touched almost every family in the village of Tumangu. For several years, scientists have tried and failed to determine the cause of the illness, which locals say has killed hundreds of youngsters. What they do know is that the disease affects only children and gradually devastates its victims through debilitating seizures, stunted growth, wasted limbs, mental disabilities and sometimes starvation.

Anywar's mother, Rugina Abwoyo, has already lost one son, named Watmon, to the disease in 2010. Now she says she can do little but watch on helplessly as another child slips away. "Before he was walking and running like other children, but now someone always has to stay home to look after him," Abwoyo told AFP. "The disease is terrible — it does not let him drink or eat by himself."

Dogs can boost exercise rates for moms-to-be

LONDON, 20 Feb — Pregnant women who own a dog are 50 percent more likely to get the recommended 30 minutes of exercise a day by going for brisk walks, a new study finds.

Because walking is a low-risk exercise, walking a dog could be part of a wider strategy to combat obesity and improve the health of pregnant women, suggested the researchers at the University of Liverpool in the UK. The findings from their study of more than 11,000 pregnant women appear in the journal PLoS One.

"Although the higher physical activity levels of adult dog owners has already been demonstrated in the US and Australia, this is the first study of its kind to examine whether the effects also apply to pregnant women.

By not managing their weight and exercise, pregnant women risk unnecessary weight gain, as well as a difficult labor or weight problems for the child in later life," Dr Carri Westgarth, from the university's Institute of Infection and Global Health, said in a university news release. However, researchers found no association between the weight of pregnant dog owners and those without pets, suggesting that there is much more to maintaining weight than just walking a dog.

"Dog walking alone cannot reduce the numbers of obese pregnant women. We also found that some pregnant women with dogs didn't go out walking," Westgarth said.

Healthy eating, along with other forms of exercise such as hiking or swimming, are also important in preventing women from gaining too much weight during pregnancy, researchers said.

Disabled elderly say they want dignity, control

SAN FRANCISCO, 20 Feb — Two factors — a sense of dignity and a sense of control — are critical to quality of life for disabled elderly people, according to a new study that also found that most disabled seniors rate their quality of life as "fair to very good." The two factors were emphasized by 62 disabled seniors (white, black, Hispanic, and Chinese American) who were interviewed by researchers at the San Francisco VA Medical Centre and the University of California, San Francisco.

"By 'control,' these elders mean a sense of autonomy in their activities of daily living," lead author Dr Jennifer King, who was a medical student at the UCSF School of Medicine at the time of the study, said in a UCSF news release. "Because of disability, not all of them are able to do all activities on their own, but they want to feel they have some say in how those activities progress throughout the day," she explained. When the study participants were asked to rate their quality of life, 87 percent responded "fair to very good," which was in the middle of the five-point scale that ranged from "excellent" to "poor."

"These folks are not doing badly," senior investigator Dr Alexander Smith, a palliative medicine doctor at SFVAMC, said in the news release. "Their quality of life, as they rate it, is definitely higher than some might assume it would be for older people with disabilities."

Chinese automakers buy into Europe

This file photo shows a showroom of Chinese manufacturer Great Wall Motors, in Sofia. With a brand new Bulgarian plant set to start churning out cars by end-February, China's Great Wall Motor hopes to establish a foothold to expand sales across Europe, says its local partner Litex Motors.

INTERNET

SOFIA, 20 Feb — Chinese automakers have returned in force to Europe, buying up brands and plants after early efforts to get a foothold in one of the world's largest car markets failed. Great Wall Motor is the latest China entrant, with production at its plant in Bulgaria due to start Tuesday, giving it access to the European market of some 500 million people with a very competitive line up which may give Europe's established firms pause for thought.

Prices for its base Voleex C10 model, the Steed 5 pick-up and Hoover H5 four-by-four run from just 8,000 euros to 14,700 euros ($10,600 to $19,400) and the company, which has 10 sites in China, says it is aiming for production of 500,000 vehicles overseas by 2015.

Analysts said it may be surprising that Chinese firms seem so determined to get into Europe, a saturated market where car sales are declining, but there are benefits for them, especially in terms of branding and prestige. "It is a way for them to make progress in quality levels," said Yann Lacroix, analyst at Euler Hermes in Paris. In Britain, Geely Motors plans to start selling a mid-range sedan by the end of the year at a very competitive 10,000 pounds ($15,460, 12,000 euros).

US consumer prices up 0.2% in January

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb — US consumer prices rose by 0.2% in January, driven by the rising cost of clothes and petrol, the US Labour Department has said.

The figures also showed that the annual rate of inflation was 2.9% last month, down from December's rate of 3%. However, core inflation — which strips out food and energy costs — rose to an annual rate of 2.3%. Gas prices are highest ever for this time of year

NEW YORK, 20 Feb — Gasoline prices have never been higher this time of the year. At $3.53 a gallon, prices are already up 25 cents since 1 Jan. And experts say they could reach a record $4.25 a gallon by late April. "You're going to see a lot more staycations this year," says Michael Lynch, president of Strategic Energy & Economic Research. "When the price gets anywhere near $4, you really see people react."

Already, W Howard

Coudle, a retired machinist from Crestwood, Mo, has seen his monthly gasoline bill rise to $80 from about $60 in December. The closest service station is selling regular for $3.39 per gallon, the highest he's ever seen. "I guess we're going to have to drive less, consolidate all our errands into one trip," Coudle says. "It's just oppressive." The surge in gas prices follows an increase in the price of oil.

Oil around the world is priced differently. Brent crude from the North Sea is a proxy for the foreign oil that's imported by US refineries and turned into gasoline and other fuels. Its price has risen 11 percent so far this year, to around $119 a barrel, because of tensions with Iran, a cold snap in Europe and rising demand from developing nations. West Texas Intermediate, used to price oil produced in the US, is up 4 percent to around $103 a barrel. That's 19 percent higher than a year earlier.—Internet

Stonehenge inspired by sound illusion, archaeologist suggests

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb — Theories about the purpose of Stonehenge range from a secular calendar to a place of spiritual worship. Now, an archaeologist suggests that the Stonehenge monument in southern England may have been an attempt to mimic a sound-based illusion. If two pipers were to play in a field, observers walking around the musicians would hear a strange effect, said Steven Waller, a doctoral researcher at Rock Art Acoustics USA, who specializes in the sound properties of ancient sites, or archaeoacoustics. At certain points, the sound waves produced by each player would cancel each other out, creating spots where the sound is dampened.

It's this pattern of quiet spots that may have inspired Stonehenge, Waller told an audience on Thursday (16 February) in Vancouver, British Columbia, at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The theory is highly speculative, but modern-day experiments do reveal that the layout of the Stonehenge ruins and other rock circles mimics the piper illusion, with stones instead of competing sound waves blocking out sounds made in the center of the circle. In support of the theory, Waller pointed to myths linking Stonehenge with music, such as the traditional nickname for stone circles in Great Britain: "piper stones." One legend holds that Stonehenge was created when two magic pipers led maidens into the field to dance and then turned them to stone.

Waller experimented by having blindfolded participants walk into a field as two pipers played. He asked the volunteers to tell him whenever they thought a barrier existed between them and the sound.

Digital tools 'to save languages'

There's an app for everything—even an endangered language like Tuvan.—INTERNET

LONDON, 20 Feb — Facebook, YouTube and even texting will be the salvation of many of the world's endangered languages, scientists believe. Of the 7,000 or so languages spoken on Earth today, about half are expected to be extinct by the century's end. Globalization is usually blamed, but some elements of the "modern world", especially digital technology, are pushing back against the tide. North American tribes use social media to re-engage their young, for example.

Tuvan, an indigenous tongue spoken by nomadic peoples in Siberia and Mongolia, even has an iPhone app to teach the pronunciation of words to new students. "Small languages are using social media, YouTube, text messaging and various technologies to expand their voice and expand their presence," said K David Harrison, an associate professor of linguistics at Swarthmore College and a National Geographic Fellow.

"It's what I like to call the flipside of globalisation. We hear a lot about how globalisation exerts negative pressures on small cultures to assimilate. But a positive effect of globalisation is that you can have a language that is spoken by only five or 50 people in one remote location, and now through digital technology that language can achieve a global voice and a global audience."

Herschel telescope 'in last year'

The Herschel telescope has to be kept extremely cold to study its frigid targets.

INTERNET

PASADENA, 20 Feb — Herschel, Europe's billion-euro space observatory, has entered what is likely to be its last year of operation. The telescope studies the formation of stars, and has taken some remarkable pictures since its launch in May 2009. But its detectors require a constant supply of superfluid helium to keep working, and the store of this coolant has now dropped to less than 100kg.

This past week saw Herschel begin what engineers believe will be the final 365 days of its mission life. "There's quite a bit of uncertainty in all this, of course," said Dr Paul Goldsmith from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, US. "It could be 11 months, it could be 14 months, and we're naturally hoping for the latter. It's certainly true that we have enough observations proposed to go well past the year if the helium lasts that long," he told BBC News.

Dr Goldsmith has been discussing the observatory's successes during a special seminar here in Vancouver at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS). He is the US space agency (NASA) project scientist on the mission. Although principally a European Space Agency (ESA) venture, Herschel has a 6% contribution from the Americans, who provided some mission-enabling technology for two of the telescope's three instruments.—Internet

Motorola Droid 4 released; Samsung Galaxy Tab 2 announced

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb — Motorola may have hit a rough patch, but it's emerging with new devices and possibly the guidance of its new parent company, Google. The Droid 4 is one of Motorola's latest devices to hit the market, wowing with its medium size, full QWERTY keyboard, 4G support and stellar battery life. But while Motorola's playing catchup, Samsung forges ahead with plans to release a Galaxy Tab 2, ready with Android 4.0 Ice Cream Sandwich. HTC's ramping up its ICS efforts as well, with plans for an early access preview of Android 4.0 on its Sensation line of smartphones.

Motorola Droid 4

Motorola's hit several strong points with the latest Droid 4, including a sleek slide-out QWERTY keyboard that will convert any BlackBerry user. At $199 with a two-year contract, this new smartphone features a 4-inch, 960x540 LCD panel. The five-row rubber keypad is one of the best, with a well-spaced layout and backlit keys. The Droid 4 comes with support for Verizon's 4G LTE network. The battery life is also notable, though the battery itself isn't removable. The biggest downside for the Droid 4 at this time is its lack of Android 4.0 Ice Cream Sandwich.

Samsung Galaxy Tab 2

Samsung's slipped a few details about its latest tablet, the Samsung Galaxy Tab 2 (7.0). It's the ICS successor to the original Galaxy Tab model, which has faced several obstacles in gaining an ICS upgrade. The 7-inch 1024x600

PLS LCD display is accompanied by a 1GHz dual-core processor and 1GB of RAM. The Galaxy Tab 2 will also come with Wi-Fi and a 3-megapixel rear-facing camera. While there's several perks to the Galaxy Tab 2, there's also some signs that this is an entry-level device compared to Samsung's other well-fitted tablets. The main camera, for example, is fixed-focus and lacks an LED flash. The VGA resolution is also not as popular as the 1.2-megapixel or above we're accustomed to seeing, and at 10.5mm thick, it's also not the thinnest in the market.—Internet

Hi-tech cars: Driver distraction warning in US

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb — US transport safety officials have proposed guidelines to limit driver distraction from gadgets built into cars. The planned voluntary rules would cover "integrated electronic devices, including mobile phones". Officials want distracting functions to be disabled when driving. In 2010, US figures suggested that "distraction by a device or control integral to the vehicle was reported in 26,000 crashes".

The new proposals include goals to reduce the amount of inputs required to operate a device—the number of buttons to push—and reducing unnecessary visual information. There are also guidelines requiring one-handed operation and a two second limit on "off-road glances"—the time spent looking at the device. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) also wants built-in gadgets the driver can use to turn-off non-essential functions while the car is moving, and keep them disabled until the car is parked.—Internet

Why 'Android fragmentation' isn't so bad

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb — Even though Android is the most popular smartphone platform in the US, and even though there were 10 billion Android app downloads as of December 2011, many Android users are frustrated that they're still treated like a second-class app market. That's because "fragmentation" makes it more complicated to develop Android apps that will run on most Android phones. New research from Localytics claims that Android fragmentation might be becoming less of a issue.

If correct, this could start bringing more popular apps to Android phones faster—or maybe even first. But the catch is, the Android ecosystem is far more variable than the iPhone landscape. That makes it a bigger long-term risk for app developers.

Many popular consumer apps are still rolled out first for the iPhone. (Hello, Instagram?) That's because many Android phones are running substantially older versions of Android, which limits which apps they can support. Plus, Android phones come in a dizzying array of sizes, configurations, and capabilities—compared to a fairly small selection of iPhone models. Also phone manufacturers and wireless carriers tend to customize the Android interface (in "flavors" such as HTC Sense and Motorola Blur).

Localytics provides analytics tools that app developers use to monitor how people use apps. Data gathered from Localytics users during two weeks in January indicate that most Android phones now have "remarkably similar specifications." Localytics notes that this significantly simplifies the job of deploying mass market Android apps.—Internet country's nuclear facilities and other industrial sites in 2010. The Iranian State media quoted a deputy intelligence chief identified only as Ahangaran, as saying thousands of computers were infected by Stuxnet, but he did not specify whether worldwide or just in Iran.

He also said that Iran is facing difficulties in obtaining anti-malware software because of international sanctions, forcing the country to use its own experts to design the software, Fox News reports. Iran had earlier acknowledged the malicious software affected a 'limited number' of centrifuges, a key component in nuclear fuel production. Iran claimed that its scientists discovered and neutralized the malware before it could cause serious damage.

Budget panel at odds on spending benefits

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb—Top members of the US House Budget Committee predicted slow going in the coming debate over President Obama's budget proposal Sunday. Rep Paul Ryan, R-Wis., and Rep Chris Van Hollen, D-Md, both accused their colleagues on the opposite sides of the aisle of intransigence and dogmatic partisanship and blamed it for the seeming lack of progress in getting spending under control and the economy back on track.

Ryan, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that Democrats refused to trim spending to offset the extension of the payroll tax cut. "What just drives me crazy is we couldn't get the Democrats in the Senate and the White House to support cutting $100 billion over 10 years to make sure that this did not hurt the deficit," he said.

Van Hollen, the committee's ranking Democrat, countered by arguing continued slashing of government spending would end up slowing the economy down and aggravating the unemployment problem. "It [payroll tax cut] will help economic growth," Van Hollen said. "It could add up to 1 percent GDP this year. You are putting more money in the pockets of the American people, and they can go out and spend that money buying goods and services."

UNESCO to launch new Intangible Cultural Heritage Centre in southeast Europe

PARIS, 20 Feb—A new Intangible Cultural Heritage Centre in southeastern Europe based in Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, will open on Monday, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization

(UNESCO) said on Sunday.

UNESCO Director-General Irina Bokova is due to inaugurate the Regional Centre for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage in South-Eastern Europe under the auspices of UNESCO while she officially visits the country, said a UNESCO statement.

The centre to be opened in Sofia is one of six around the world that focus on intangible cultural heritage. This centre is the only one in Europe, therefore "plays a crucially important role," the UN cultural agency said. Underlining the importance of UNESCO centres and institutes in advancing the Organization's strategic objectives and priorities, the UNESCO's chief said "they amplify UNESCO's messages in societies and regions across the world and promote networking and exchange of relevant technical information."

These centres play a key role in reinforcing UNESCO's impact on education, science, culture and communication in the world." During her visit to Sofia, Bokova will hold meetings with Bulgarian President Rosen Plevneliev and other senior government officials as well as prominent Bulgarian intellectuals.

UK govt to store people's phone call, messages, e-mail details under new anti-terror plan

LONDON, 20 Feb—The British government has planned to store the details of every phone call, text message, email traffic and websites visited online as a part of its new anti-terror plans.

Under the new scheme to counter-terrorism, landline and mobile phone companies and broadband providers will be ordered to store the data for a year and make it available to the security services.

The databases would not record the contents of calls, texts or emails, but the numbers or email addresses of who they are sent and received by, The Telegraph reports.

This will be the first time that the security services in the country would have widespread access to information about who has been communicating with each other on social networking sites like Facebook. Direct messages between subscribers to websites such as Twitter would also be stored, as well as communications between players in online video games, the report said.

The plan has been drawn up on the advice of MI5, the home security service, MI6, which operates abroad, and GCHQ, the Government's "listening post" responsible for monitoring communications. Under the scheme the security services would be granted "real time" access to phone and Internet records of people they want to put under surveillance, as well as the ability to reconstruct their movements through the information stored in the databases. According to the paper, the move is certain to cause controversy over civil liberties, but would also raise concerns over the security of the records.

Access to such information would be highly prized by hackers and could be exploited to send spam email and texts. Details of which websites people visit could also be exploited for commercial gain.—Internet

Santorum leads Romney by eight points in US poll

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb—White House hopeful Rick Santorum has opened an eight-point lead over presumptive frontrunner Mitt Romney among likely Republican voters nationwide, a new poll showed on Sunday.

Thirty-six percent of those surveyed said they supported the Christian conservative, while 28 percent said they preferred the former Massachusetts governor, according to the latest results from Gallup's daily tracking poll. Less than a week ago, Romney was leading Santorum, a former US senator from Pennsylvania, by two points, putting the two candidates in a statistical tie. Former House speaker Newt Gingrich trails the two leaders with 13 percent, while veteran libertarian Texas congressman Ron Paul was not far behind with 11 percent, the poll showed.

Santorum — who surprised Romney with wins in nominating contests earlier this month in Missouri, Minnesota and Colorado — is now trying to maintain his momentum for the 28 February primary in Michigan, Romney's home turf.

The Gallup poll was conducted from Tuesday through Saturday among about 1,200 likely Republican voters.

The margin of error is plus or minus four percentage points. In late August the Republicans will confirm their candidate to face Democrat Barack Obama in the 6 November presidential election.—Internet Pyithu Hluttaw Representative at sixth day session of Pyithu Hluttaw.

MNA

Pyithu Hluttaw session continues for sixth day

Afterwards, Deputy Minister for Electric Power No. 2 U Aung Than Oo answered seven questions related to the power supply sector.

U Aung Kyaw Khin of Kyauktan constituency asked whether the ministry had a plan to install power cables to Ayemyathida Ward, Shwepyithaya Ward and Thidar Myaing Ward in Kyauktan Township.

The deputy minister replied that to install the cables to the wards, the ministry would spend estimated 48 million kyats on installation of cables and establishment of one 315-KV transformer in Ayemyathida Ward, estimated 68 million kyats on installation of cables and 500 KVA transformer in Shwepyithaya Ward.

The ministry would need over 230 million kyats to supply power to the three wards and the budget would be limited to supply power to the three wards simultaneously. Therefore, the ministry would seek annual budget for supply power to each ward.

U Win Myint of Myingyan constituency asked whether the ministry had a plan to supply power to Hsimikhon area in Myingyan Township, Mandalay Region.

He replied that there was a 66/11 KV 5 MVA sub-power station built by the Water Resources Utilization Department of the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation in Hsimikhon area. The sub-power station had transported power to Hsimikhon-1 river water pumping station through 11 KV cables, to Hsimikhon-2 river water pumping station through 3.73 MVA cables and Nganhmyar river water pumping station through 5.745 MVA cables, he said.

The 66/11 KV 5 MVA Sub-power Station was established to supply power to the three river water pumping stations which would benefit 12972 acres of farmland. However, the three stations currently used only 2.5 MW, benefiting 2059 acres and 1.5 MW was in surplus. AS the was no more farmland to be irrigated by the three stations, the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation could allow to supply the surplus power to Hsimikhon area.

Therefore, 11 KV cables would install and two 200 KVA transformers or one 315 KVA transformer would be built to supply power to the area and the work are to be carried out in self-reliance basis.

The work would be allowed if it was agreed with the rules and regulations of the Ministry of Electric Power No. 2 and the ministry would also assist in the work.

Dr Daw Aye Myint of Shwedaung Constituency asked whether there is a plan to replace 100 KVA transformer of Energy Ministry in use at Ngwarmayan village in Ngwarmayan village-tract in Shwedaung Township in Bago Region with 200 KVA transformer. The deputy minister answered: As Ngwarmayan village in Ngwarmayan village-tract in Shwedaung Township of Bago Region is close to oil storage and distribution division of the Energy Ministry, the electricity is supplied to the village from (11/0.4) KV, 100 KVA transformer which supplies electricity to the oilfield of the Energy Ministry. Following higher number of electricity consumers, reaching 201, more electricity consumption at night and oil pumps and water pumps run by the Energy Ministry, the existing transformer becomes far from meeting the demand and electricity cut took place in the village and staff quarters.

For distributing round-the-clock electricity to the village, the transformer owned by the Energy Ministry will no more be used in the 2012-2013 fiscal year and new 100 KVA transformer will be installed.

U Kyaw Soe Lay of Mohnyin Constituency said Nabar-Mohnyin-Mogaung 66 KVA Power Grid has been completed cent per cent and asked when the electricity will be distributed through the power grid, whether electricity will be supplied to village-tracts in Mohnyin and Mogaung Townships, which villages, if any, will receive electricity, and how the villages out of the project can get access to electricity. The deputy minister answered: The power grid is under construction. Nabar-Mohnyin section has been completed by 95 per cent and Mohnyin-Mogaung section by 82 per cent. Each (66/11) KV 5 MVA power station is being built in Mohnyin and Mogaung. These are completed by 50 per cent and will distribute electricity when the power grid is completed in the 2011-2012 fiscal year.

Villages nearby Mohnyin and Mogaung could get access to electricity by installing 11 KV power grids from these stations, (11/0.4) KV transformers in the villages and 400 V power grid. As in other Regions or States, these measures are to be taken by their own efforts. The Ministry of Electric Power No (2) will allow and provide technical assistances if electrification committees of the villages submit applications satisfying 24 requirements for village electrification tasks issued by the Ministry of Electric Power No (2).

The ministry is striving to supply electricity to the whole country. Apart from Kachin State, it is working simultaneously to supply electricity to Chin, Shan and Rakhine States. If the power grids are completed, Mohnyin, Mogaung, Hopang and Myitkyina will get access to round-the-clock electricity.

U Sikhamram of Khaunglanphu Constituency asked whether there is a plan to build small-scale hydropower plant three miles from Ahtam creek for supplying electricity to downtown Khaunglanphu. The deputy minister answered: The constitution states small- and medium-scale hydropower distribution tasks are to be carried out by legislation of respective Region/State. Ahtam creek lies about three miles from Khaunglanphu. Feasibility tests for building small-scale hydropower plant were conducted in 2008. Electricity can be supplied to Khaunglanphu with 41 households using electricity. Other households are scattering. Stretching low voltage power grid will have to be installed to supply electricity from three-mile distance to wider population. Solar and wind power systems should be installed under the programme of respective states.

The ministry has planned to install 30 KVA power station to distribute electricity to wider consumers in the 2012-2013 fiscal year. It will be carried out, based on fund allotment. The ministry provided oil for two hours a day to towns where electricity is supplied by generators. To distribute electricity for more hours, regional authority and local consumers have to pay the cost for oil.

U Zaw Win Aung of Myinmu Constituency asked whether electricity distribution network can be established from 33 KVA power grid of Myinmu Township in Sagaing District and ChaungU in Monywa District. The deputy minister answered: (33/6.6) KV 2 MVA power station was built in Myinmu and 33 KVA power grid was installed from Dagundine power station in Mandalay. The electricity was supplied to Myinmu through Ywathitgyi of Sagaing.

Upon completion of Ohntaw power station (Kantalu) in 2010, the electricity is supplied to Myinmu from Ohntaw (Kantalu) power station through 33 KVA power grid. It reduces the length of power grid by 20 miles and increase voltage. One (33/11) KV 5 MVA transformer replaced the (33/6.6) KV 2 MVA transformer in Myinmu in September 2010. (6.6/0.4) KV Transformers in downtown areas were replaced with (11/.0.4) KV transformers. Despite electricity cuts for various reasons, there is no cut for two or three days in a row and for the whole day. For installing new power grids, the electricity is cut in day time and the distribution resumes at night.

Myinmu is 20 miles far from 33 KV power station in ChaungU. But the main power station is in Monywa, only 37 miles from Myinmu. Power grid between Monywa and ChaungU is for ChaungU alone and small in size. To connect Myinmu and ChaungU, new 20-mile 33 KV power grid is assumed to be installed. Actually, it is needed to install 37-mile 33 KVA power grid from Aungchantha power station in Monywa. It is technically inappropriate. For installing 33 KVA power grid, the overall estimate is K 800 million. The government has to use the fund in installing power grid.

It is not necessary to install 33 KVA power grid between Myinmu and ChaungU.

U Thein Nyunt of Thingangyun Constituency submitted the proposal that the Hluttaw urged the government to establish National Anti-Corruption Commission independent and reliable by the people for taking actions against corruption in order to emerge Clean Government and Good Governance.

The date for discussion of the proposal will be announced again and those who want to discuss it are to register today evening.

At bill discussion and approval session, with respect to the proposal on “Workers dispute settlement bill”, Union Minister for Labour U Aung Kyi replied: all presentation for amending it by Bill Committees and Daw Nan Say Awa of Hpa-an Constituency are agreed upon. The proposal of U Thuang Han of Yinmabin Constituency on adding new para under para 49 in principle is agreed to. But, phrases that include in the proposal are to be amended as those in Bill Section (1) so as to make it clear.

U Thuang Han of Yinmabin Constituency presented the agreement on the amended proposal because of being reasonable one. The Hluttaw approved the amended bill with “Yes” votes.

In addition to the existing labour union laws, that bill is submitted urgently which is needed for the formation of Labour Unions soon in Myanmar in accord with the law. It is drafted in line with international standards. After it has been approved, the labour unions could settle the labour disputes in accord with the laws. Thanks to the urgent formation of labour unions, Myanmar would achieve the international recognitions regarding the Myanmar’s democratization processes. ILO would have factors to lift ban on Myanmar.

According to, Bill Committee Chairman submitted the proposal on “To fix the dates for discussions on particular projects submitted in National Planning Bill in accord with the Pyithu Hluttaw Bylaw 133 with the Union Minister for National Planning and Economic Development as the way Budget Bill was discussed in accord with Union Hluttaw Bylaw 89 (a) and submitting to obey the prescriptions described in Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Bylaws 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90 and 91 to Pyidaungsu Hluttaw, as an important proposal. It was approved with “yes” vote.

Kayin State government would manage to relocate 54 persons on the land (7.92 acres) in Ohntawkwun in Ward No. 2 of Kamamaung Township by opening dossier La/Na (39).

Dr Aye Maung of Rakhine State Constituency No. 1 asked about multipurpose transport of Kalatan River. In response, the Union Minister said that framework agreement on construction and dealing of Kalatan River multipurpose transport supportive project and protocol on facilitation of multipurpose transport of Kalatan River were signed in New Delhi on 2 April, 2008.

Thanks to the project, Sittway Jetty 6000-ton vessels can stand at, two jetties for 300-ton vessels in Sittway and Paletwa and other related port buildings would be visible in Myanmar. Moreover, Myanmar would get six 300-ton vessels and benefits of stable water course along the Kalatan River and emergence of a highway from Paletwa to India-Myanmar border.

Rakhine and Chin states would have better transport that creates chance to deal with foreign trade and then direct trade not only with India but also with other countries using international seaports, and have other benefits such as regional development along the Kalatan River, abundance of job opportunities, border trade opportunities and better transport means in the region.

According to bilateral bond between the two countries, Myanmar would provide required land plot. For the first step, 324-m-long and 139-m-wide retaining wall would be built 500-m-long land plot in parallel with the Kalatan River between Phaungtagyi port yard and Mingyi Kyauktan. After being reclaimed, the land plot would be extended to the river on which port buildings including 273-m-long and 15.2-m-wide main jetty, 136-m-long and two 9.5-m-wide approach bridges would be constructed.

In Paletwa, Inland Water Transport is making measures to construct jetties in coordination with the Ministry of Environmental Conservation and Forestry, and Public Works is also taking steps to pave a highway from Paletwa to Myanmar-India border. As there was no report concerning EIA and SIA, measures for EIA, SIA would be made in coordination with India.

There isn't any plan to remove the Sittway People's hospital, Sittway Myoma Market and Odan Ward along with Kalatan River, residences of the rural people and hospital in Kyebingyi Ward, as they are far from Sittway Port project. Besides, the project isn't near with public-owned lands, and there wouldn't be any blocks of airway due to not building high apartments in those places.

Concerning a proposal "whether or not there is any plan to conserve Pin Creek between Paletwa and Matupi Townships" presented by U Salai Khwe Yan of No. 12 Constituency of Chin State, the Union Minister said that there is a watercourse along Laymyo River from Rakhine State to Paletwa. It is needed to seek strong and weak points and natural impacts in repairing part of the watercourse.

If the cliff is removed, aqua animals will be in ruin. Such plan will make small motorboats move along the river. So, the State's budget should be spent on other sectors beneficial to region. Plans for removing of cliffs in Sinkitaung Village-tract, Lonpote above Pikon Village and Htaikbi Parauang above Awekyi Village would be reported after making field trips.

Deputy Minister for Construction U Soe

Amyotha Hluttaw Representatives at 6th day session of Amyotha Hluttaw.

Tint replied to questions of four Hluttaw representatives.

U Than Swe of Taninthayi Region Constituency No. 2 asked if there is a plan to repair Dawei-Myitta Road. In response, the deputy minister said that Dawei-Myitta Road was repaired by using annual capital fund and maintenance fund. But, due to torrential rains in this rainy season, there were flood on the road three times that damage the road in a short time.

So, motors can run smoothly more than before because damaged roads and bridges were repaired and maintained with the funds of maintenances for 2011-2012, which was caused by the floods.

Forest Department has instructed the company to construct bypass because some log-loaded trucks are now running on that road section. Local people need to make cooperation in its maintenances Taninthayi Region Government is doing the management of that road section. So, funds for upgrading and maintenances of it will be solicited in 2012-2013 fiscal year.

U Nyunt Hlaing of Ayeyawady Region Constituency No. 4 raised the question on "Is there any plan to repair on Zalun-Danubyu-Kyeinpinsae road section on Hinthada-Nyaungdon-Yangon motor road."

Regarding the question, the deputy minister replied: due to Nargis cyclone occurred in May 2008, the road was under flood. Till 31.5.2011, Road construction project special groups have carried out the maintenances and repair of road measuring 35 miles and 7 furlongs long.

It was carried out in cooperation with Seinsakaing Co. Ltd through BOT system.

Plans are under way to build Kyeinpinsae-Danubyu-Zalun motor road by construction project special group (4) of the Ministry of Construction as an all-weather one.

With respect the question of U Sai Win Maung of Shan State Constituency No. 5 on "Is there any plan to construct Muse bypass", the deputy minister replied: arrangements are being made to fix scales on both sides in addition to the old ones so as not to traffic jam and traffic contestations at Asia World Gate at the entrance to Muse. Under the supervision of Township Development Committee, Thein Than Chi Co is building two miles and three furlongs long bypass stretching from the entrance to Kyangaung.

Township Development Committee will carry out upgrade of road from Muse entrance to Yahtaik junction into concrete one out at a cost of K1685 with Thein Than Chi Co through BOT system during six months.

At present, there is no any plan to construct eight-mile-long road to Manwein gate of Muse 105 miles as Muse bypass. There are four to and fro roads at Muse gate.

At 105 mile border trade gate, pass of motor vehicles is allowed during 6 am to 9 pm daily. Traffic jams occur due to the drivers overtakes each other at the times of the gate's open and close.

With respect the question of U Har Shein Bway of Chin State Constituency No. 8 on "Is there any plan to upgrade Yaysaung strategic road stretching towards 37 mile post of Mindat-Matupi motor road", the deputy minister replied: jeep road stretching from Mile post No. 35/0 to Shwe Aung Tha Village of Htilin Township Mindat-Matupi motor road was built with the funds of border areas and national races development.

Four village roads linking to Shwe Aung Tha village in Htilin Township are village-to-village roads built by Ministry of Border Affairs.

The distance between Mindat-Matupi feeder and Shwe Aung Tha village is about 68 miles, which it takes three and half hours drives. Construction of bridges on that road has been completed. Ministry of Construction has no plan to occupy and upgrade it at present.

Member of the Government's Grantees, Pledges and Undertakings Vetting Committee U Nyan Lin submitted the committee's report and proposal to discuss the report. It was seconded by a representative. The Hluttaw approved the proposal. The Hluttaw announced the nomination of representatives who want to discuss it.

Bushfire threatens homes in Western Australia's town

SYDNEY, 20 Feb—Residents in the town of Northcliffe in Western Australia's southwest have been advised to evacuate after a bushfire escaped containment lines, authorities said on Monday.

The Department of Environment and -(DEC) said on Monday morning the fire was about 8 kilometres south of Northcliffe after breaking containment lines on Sunday.

Northcliffe, with a population of 400, has also been placed on emergency alert. The DEC said firefighters were expecting the wind to change to a more southerly influence later on Monday and the risk of fire impact to properties in the area could be increased.

"At the moment, the police have indicated to us that they have visited between 35 and 40 homes asking people to evacuate, and that's within a four-kilometre radius of the north-west corner of the fire," DEC Incident Controller Peter Keppel told the Australian Broadcasting Corporation (ABC). Around 70 fire-fighters are battling the blaze, assisted by five aerial water bombers, according to Keppel.

About a dozen people evacuated from their homes spent the night in a shelter in Northcliffe. The Northcliffe District High School has been closed for the day. The fire, caused by lightning 10 days ago, has burnt through more than 26,000 hectares of bush land and forest.—Xinhua

Small, micro-enterprises need specific, suitable support

BEIJING, 20 Feb—China has set its sights on promoting small and micro-sized enterprises (SMEs) development this year, and experts said what those enterprises need is specific and suitable support. Small firms play an irreplaceable role in fostering economic growth, increasing employment, facilitating scientific and technological innovation and maintaining social stability. However, they bear the vulnerabilities such as limited size, weak influence and the lack of resources. In face of the uncertainty of the market and economic development, small and micro-sized enterprises need more effective support from the government to survive and develop.—Xinhua

Iran halts oil sales to France and Britain

Apparent retaliation for EU crude import ban, Iran says has considered replacements for the cut.—INTERNET

TEHRAN, 20 Feb—Iranian officials said crude oil sales to Britain and France had been cut off amid a dispute over economic sanctions.

A spokesman for the Oil Ministry said Tehran didn't need the business and had new customers lined up for the barrels. "Exporting crude to British and French companies has been stopped," the unidentified spokesman said on the ministry Web site. "We will sell our oil to new customers."

Iran has warned several European nations they would also be cut off in retaliation for new international sanctions aimed at Iran's nuclear programme. The European Union had pledged to stop importing Iranian oil starting on 1 July. The British newspaper The Guardian said the move could push up the price of Brent crude, a blend of North Sea oils that is used as a benchmark for crude futures. China, India, Japan and Italy are considered the biggest customers for Iranian crude, which accounts for the lion's share of Iran's export revenues.—Internet

Trial begins Tuesday in cyber-suicide

NEW BRUNSWICK, 20 Feb—Jury selection is set to begin in the New Jersey Channel, and has brought conflicting comment from legal analysts regarding the penalty for such an offence.

Dharun Ravi allegedly used his laptop and camera to record and Internet-broadcast his Rutgers University dorm roommate Tyler Clementi with another man in 2010, leading to Clementi's suicide, prosecutors say. Charged with spying, Ravi's trial in Middlesex County Superior Court is scheduled to be televised on the truTV Channel, and has brought conflicting comment from legal analysts regarding the penalty for such an offence. Jury selection is scheduled to begin on Tuesday.

The Newark (NJ) Star-Ledger said Sunday the case crosses the lines of bullying, cyberstalking, hate crime and invasion of privacy, or it may merely be a college prank.

The trial, which is expected to last four weeks, is expected to expose the uncertainty of the justice system when dealing with what Susan Abraham, a New York law school and former New Jersey prosecutor, called "this kind of emotional bullying. Should it be treated in criminal courts, or some other way? The problem with criminalizing these postings and the things young people do on the Internet is a lot of them don't know what the rules are. Maybe they should."

Nine missing after bridge collapse

CIAMPEA, 20 Feb—Nine people in Ciampea, Indonesia, were swept away by a river after the bridge they were crossing collapsed Sunday, emergency officials said. Around 11:30 am, in the midst of a rain shower in the Bogor district of West Java, the nine victims were traversing a bamboo suspension bridge that buckled, dropping them into the strong current below, Antara news agency reported.

The weather conditions made it difficult for rescuers from the Bogor Fast Reaction Team to search for them.

Team head Budi Askomo told Antara: "We have deployed all members of the search and rescue team and prepared a rubber dingy, but due to the swift and muddy current it is difficult to rescuers to dive.

We have put a net about 1 km (about half a mile) in the river's downstream."

PACIFIC PALISADES, 20 Feb—Bill Haas clinched his fourth PGA Tour title by beating fellow Americans Phil Mickelson and Keegan Bradley in a gripping sudden-death playoff at the Northern Trust Open on Sunday.

The 29-year-old Haas sank a curling 43-foot birdie putt at the second extra hole, the driveable par-four 10th, to BERLIN, 20 Feb—Thanks to Dutchmen striker Klaas Jan Huntelaar's double, Schalke 04 staged a faultless performance on Sunday in a stunning 4-0 win over Wolfsburg, while Hannover defeated Stuttgart 4-2 with goals from three corners at the 22nd round of German Bundesliga.

In an exciting but one-sided affair, Schalke astonished the "Wolves" with two fast goals as veteran Spanish star Raul Gonzalez Blanco opened the scoring on just ten minutes, utilizing a prolonged corner at the last post, and only five minutes later, Huntelaar slotted home a cross to double the lead.

With the victory, Schalke stays on the 4th position with 44 points, one point away from record champion Bayern. Wolfsburg remains on 8th position with 27 points, seven points away from international competitions. "Today we played with passion and team spirit," commented Schalke coach Huub Stevens.

Tennis Tournament in Rotterdam. The Swiss repeated last month's Australian Open quarter-final win over Del Potro with a 6-1 6-4 victory. Federer, 30, stormed into a 5-0 lead as he dominated the opening set.

And he got the crucial break in the second when he brought the Argentine to the net before firing a forehand past him to break for 3-2.

Federer's second Rotterdam title, and his 71st on the ATP Tour, takes his head-to-head record against Del Potro to 9-2. It also maintains the 16-time Grand Slam champion's fine indoor form from 2011, which he ended with wins in Basel, Paris and London.

"Even if I had a good indoor season last year, this is a great start," he said. "It's incredible that it took me seven years to come back and defend my title, I hope the next time is not so long. But if it is, then it means I'll be playing for another seven years." Federer has now assured himself of a 12th consecutive year in which he has won at least one ATP title. Del Potro admitted: "He played much better than me today. I didn't take the break points when I had them."

Edwards wins pole for season-opening Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, 20 Feb—Carl Edwards fell bitterly short in last season's bid to win the NASCAR championship. He's starting 2012 out front.

Edwards, who lost the championship last season on a tie-breaker to Tony Stewart, won the pole for the season-opening Daytona 500, beating teammate Greg Biffle for the top starting spot during a windy Sunday qualifying session at Daytona International Speedway.

Edwards turned a lap at 194.738 mph—the fastest pole-winning speed since Jeff Gordon's lap of 195.067 mph in 1999. Biffle was second at 194.087 to give Ford and Roush Fenway Racing a sweep of the front row. "It's so neat to come down here and to be so fast and to really

Wladimir Klitschko says Chisora and Haye should be punished

MUNICH, 20 Feb—Wladimir Klitschko believes the scuffle between Dereck Chisora and David Haye has damaged the reputation of boxing—and is adamant they should be punished. The British pair clashed at Saturday night's post-fight news conference in Munich after Chisora was beaten by Wladimir's brother Vitali. "This behaviour kills the hard work of the people that have been polishing the image of the sport," said Klitschko.

"There has to be consequences otherwise boxing is going downhill fast." Wladimir Klitschko, the IBF, WBO and WBA champion, has history with both men, having beaten Haye last summer and twice pulled out of bouts with Chisora through injury. "This type of behaviour kills the hard work of former champs," he added. "And it teaches disrespect for the sport and fellow human beings." "There has to be consequences for these kinds of actions, which must never be tolerated by the boxing organizations, the media, fellow boxers and boxing fans.

Klitschko, the younger brother of Vitali, had water spat at him by Chisora in the ring just before Saturday night's fight. "It is the sport of boxing and we do not need theatre like that," he said. "The spitting of water in the ring is not right. We have to respect

Azarenka overcomes injury to top Stosur in Qatar

DOHA, 20 Feb — Top-ranked Victoria Azarenka of Belarus shook off a lingering ankle injury to win the Qatar Open on Sunday, routing Sam Stosur of Australia 6-1, 6-2. Azarenka earned her 17th straight victory and first title since replacing Caroline Wozniacki atop the rankings after winning the Australian Open. It was her third title overall in 2012. Azarenka showed no ill effects after twisting her left ankle in the semifinal against Agnieszka Radwanska on Saturday.

She broke the fifth-ranked Stosur twice to lead 4-1 in the first set, making a brief trip to the net to clinch it with a backhand volley. Azarenka cruised to victory after winning the first three games of the second set.

"It's amazing. I can't believe I could play that kind of tennis today," Azarenka said. "I knew I wouldn't be 100 percent, so I had to change and adjust. I was just surprised today that everything was going in." Fearful of further aggravating her ankle injury, Azarenka said she tried to keep the rallies short and took advantage of the windy conditions.

The ankle was wrapped during the match and Azarenka said it should be fine after a few days of rest.

PSG stay top despite Montpellier scare

PARIS, 20 Feb—Montpellier proved their Ligue 1 title credentials by holding league leaders Paris Saint-Germain to a 2-2 draw in the top-of-the-table clash at Parc des Princes on Sunday. John Utaka's header gave Montpellier a 2-1 lead with eight minutes to play but a tap-in from substitute Guillaume Hoarau two minutes from time preserved PSG's one-point lead over Rene Girard's side at the summit.

"It was a good result because it was a difficult, well-balanced match," said PSG coach Carlo Ancelotti. "The result was fair. We had problems building up play from the back and winning the ball back but the players worked hard and their reaction after Montpellier's second goal was good. "We didn't want to lose the match and their reaction was fantastic." Hoarau's goal prevented Ancelotti from tasting defeat for the first time as PSG coach, but Montpellier's surprise title challenge remains firmly on course with 14 games of the season remaining. — Internet

Hoy leaves crowd dreaming of Olympic cycling gold

LONDON, 20 Feb — Chris Hoy and Britain's cycling team rounded off the Track World Cup at London's new Olympic Velodrome on Sunday, leaving the cheering home crowd more confident than ever of gold at this year's Summer Games.

Hoy, a four-time Olympic champion, followed his victory in Saturday's kieran with a 2-0 win over Maximilian Levy in the men's sprint, overpowering the German on the home straight in the first race and keeping his line under severe pressure on the back straight in the second. Hoy's win and a silver medal for Britain's men's team pursuit outfit helped the host nation finish atop the points table at the four-day meet — which doubled as an Olympic test event at the new 6,000-seat arena.

"I've had a tough day out there and felt it in my legs," the 35-year-old Scot said. "More than the actual result, I'm more pleased about the way I rode. It's a really important step towards the Olympics. "I've really fed off the energy of the crowd. Hopefully we can do the same at the Olympics." — Internet
