Pyidaungsu Hluttaw session continues for 19th day One proposal discussed, three new proposals submitted

NAY PYI TAW, 6 March—The Pyidaungsu Hluttaw session continued for the 19th day at Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Hall of Hluttaw Complex, here, at 10.15 am today, attended by Speaker of Pyidaungsu Hluttaw U Khin Aung Myint, Speaker of Pyithu Hluttaw Thura U Shwe Mann and 548 Pyidaungsu Hluttaw representatives.

They discussed one proposal and submitted three new proposals.

Five Hluttaw representatives discussed the proposal urging the Union government to amend provisions in PWD Code and PWA Code and to reprint the books on amended proposals presented on 24 February by U Myo Myint of Mandalay Region Constituency No. 6.

U Aye Mauk of Mahlaing Constituency said that not only matters related to original departments and enterprises but also that of Directorate of Water Resources Utilization under the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation and Hydropower Implementation Department under the Ministry of Electric Power No. 1 are to be described in the code.

U Kyi Tha of Gwa Constituency discussed that if all departments abide by PWD and PWA codes after asserting, amending and cancelling the provisions, such activities will be designed to practise the systemic spending of public's money.

Daw Tin Nwe Oo of Dagon Myothit (North) Constituency noted that it is necessary to amend the Civil Account Code, Fundamental Rules & Regulation and manuals of departments in addition to PWD and PWA codes in conformity with the present era, adding more provisions and enacting new laws.

U Sai Kyaw Myint of Mongnai Constituency discussed effectiveness of auditing at a time when the Audit Commissioner's Office was operated and necessarily asserting rights, authority and accountability of auditors into PWA Code.

Daw Khin Waing Kyi of Yangon Constituency No. 1 said that as the acts drawn in the colonial period are not in conformity with present era, terms, monetary value and measurements in the acts should be necessarily amended, subtracted and renewed.

With regard to the proposals, Union Minister for Construction U Khin Maung Myint explained that Public Works, Irrigation Department, Hydropower Implementation Department and some government organizations related to engineering works use the PWD and PWA codes as reference.

Reinforce traffic rules for road safety

Road safety measures deserve a serious attention for safety of those using roads and those commuting daily in busy cities where traffic accidents are usually rife. There are also traffic accidents in district cities and towns nation-wide with an increase in the number of automobiles and motorcycles.

Traffic accidents including head-on collisions often stemmed from high speed, overtaking, reckless driving and driving under the influence. Although the authorities concerned are reinforcing traffic rules, making surprise-checks and giving educative talks, traffic accidents are still common, resulting in the death of both drivers and passengers. Thus, anything that keeps road safety on the front burner is good, meaning that road safety undertakings cannot be shouldered lightly or taken for granted.

To reduce the road accidents, every citizen is to strictly abide by traffic rules and use zebra-crossing and overpass when they cross the roads. Meanwhile, it is needed to deal with bumper-to-bumper traffic and congested traffic, and to enable road users to walk in convenience on platforms.

It is learnt that there has been an increase in traffic accidents caused by motorcyclists in Nay Pyi Taw as the city's motorcycle population is increasing day by day. The authorities concerned are trying to reduce the frequency of road accidents but to no avail.

Therefore, the entire people are to join forces on multiple fronts to get things moving in tackling the road accident since the initiative involves the public participation. Only then will the move to reduce traffic accidents be possible.

Obama, Netanyahu fail to iron out differences over Iran

WASHINGTON, 6 March—US President Barack Obama and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu failed to iron out their differences over Iran's nuclear programme at their high-profile meeting which ended here on Monday.

The White House

offered nothing new in its statement after the meeting, which, as Obama put it, came at a critical time.

The statement said that at the meeting that lasted several hours, Obama just repeated what he had said in the past days in his speech and interview, indicating his failure to persuade the Israeli leader to hold off a proposed preemptive military strike on Iran's nuclear facilities at least in the coming months.

"The two leaders agreed to consult closely going forward," the White House statement said.

China to further improve strategic partnership with Russia: foreign minister

BEIJING, 6 March—The Chinese government is prepared to work closely with Russia to bolster their comprehensive strategic partnership of coordination, Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi said on Tuesday.

China will increase mutual political support with Russia and enhance bilateral cooperation and coordination in regional and international affairs, Yang said at a Press conference on the sidelines of the annual parliamentary session.

Following incumbent Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin's victory in the country's presidential election on Sunday, Chinese President Hu Jintao has sent a congratulatory message to Putin, Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Weimin said on Monday. Yang said China will ensure the success of high-level contacts and mutual visits between the two countries this year. According to the mechanism of annual exchange of visits by Chinese and Russian heads of state, Russia's president will visit China in 2012.

China will intensify practical cooperation between the two countries, in fields such as economy and trade, energy, science and technology, infrastructure and at local levels, said Yang.

"We are confident that with the joint efforts of the two countries, the China-Russia comprehensive strategic partnership of coordination will achieve even greater results," the foreign minister said.—Xinhua

Two Thai soldiers wounded in bomb blast in restive south

BANGKOK, 6 March—Two soldiers of teacher protection unit were seriously wounded by a bomb which went off on Tuesday morning while they were patrolling on foot on Kuwa-Thamnob road in Krong Pinang District of southernmost Yala Province.

The two soldiers, identified as Sgt. Maj Preecha Kongpakdi, 52, and Lance Corporal Thongchai Boonchuay, 23, were badly injured as shrapnel penetrated their heads and torsos. They were later admitted to Yala Hospital.

Police preliminary investigation showed that perpetrators detonated an Improvised Explosive Device (IED), which was hidden in a garbage dump on the roadside when nine soldiers of the teacher protection unit were patrolling on Kuwa-Thamnob road.

The police said the IED could weight from 3 to 5 kg but could not tell how it was detonated. Separatist insurgents were blamed for the incident.

Since the resurgence of insurgency in January 2004, over 11,000 violent incidents have happened in the southernmost provinces of Yala, Pattani and Narathiwat. Altogether over 5,200 people, mostly villagers, have been killed in violent incidents instigated by suspected secessionists in these Muslim-dominant provinces which were once independent sultanate of Pattani before being annexed by predominantly Buddhist state in 1909.—Xinhua

Suicide bomber kills two at Bagram Airfield

KABUL, 6 March—A suicide bomber killed two civilians in Afghanistan Monday in what officials called a revenge attack for the accidental burning of Korans by US troops.

The bomber died in the attack, which also left two civilians injured, at the entrance to Bagram Airfield, Afghan Interior Ministry spokesman Sediq Seddiqi said.

A spokesman for the International Security Assistance Force identified the two injured people as members of the NATO-led ISAF.

CNN quoted a Taliban spokesman as saying 12 US troops and nine Afghans have died in the latest chapter of its "revenge campaign."

A US investigation determined the Koran burnings last month were inadvertent and the result of the books having been defaced by prisoners attempting to get messages to each other.

US President Barack Obama apologized and promised disciplinary action against those responsible.

At least 30 Afghans have been killed in protests over the Koran burning, and officials have speculated some of the six killings of US military personnel since then were motivated by outrage over the incident.—Internet

'Qaeda fighters' kill 27 police in west Iraq

BAGHDAD, 6 March—Suspected Al-Qaeda gunmen, some wearing army uniforms, raged through a western Iraq city Monday in a pre-dawn shooting spree that killed 27 policemen, including two officers killed execution-style.

The assault, launched at about 2:00 am (2300 GMT on Sunday), saw insurgents dressed in military uniforms simultaneously attacking two checkpoints in the east and west of Haditha before storming other security posts and raiding the homes of the two officers.

US State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland condemned the killings, telling reporters: "These attacks are again a blatant attempt by extremists to undermine the progress that Iraq is trying to make."

Monday's violence, the deadliest in Iraq since 23 February, comes just weeks before an Arab League party Samajwadi and the incumbent BSP have a tight race, according to polls and TV projections. Study links heavy diesel exhaust to lung cancer

WASHINGTON, 6 March — There's new evidence that exposure to exhaust from diesel engines increases the risk of lung cancer. Diesel exhaust has long been classified as a probable carcinogen.

But the 20-year study from the National Cancer Institute took a closer look by tracking more than 12,000 workers in certain kinds of mines—facilities that mined for potash, lime and other nonmetals. They breathed varying levels of exhaust from diesel-powered equipment, levels higher than the general population encounters.

The most heavily exposed miners had three times the risk of death from lung cancer compared to workers with the lowest exposures, said the study released Friday by the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. But even workers with lower exposures had a 50 percent increased risk, wrote lead author Debra Silverman, an NCI epidemiologist. "Our findings are important not only for miners but also for the 1.4 million American workers and the 3 million European workers exposed to diesel exhaust, and for urban populations worldwide," Silverman wrote.

She pointed to some highly polluted cities in China, Mexico and Portugal that in past years have reported diesel exposure levels that over long periods could be comparable to those experienced by miners with lower exposures. Litigation from some mining companies had delayed release of the study findings.

A separate industry group not involved in that litigation said on Friday that the study looked back at mines using decades-old equipment, and there's far less pollution from diesel engines today. "Diesel engine and equipment makers, fuel refiners and emissions control technology manufacturers have invested billions of dollars in research to develop and deploy technologies and strategies that reduce engine emissions, now ultimately to near zero levels to meet increasingly stringent clean air standards here in the United States and around the world," said Allen Schaeffer of the nonprofit Diesel Technology Forum.—Internet

Taking vitamin E linked to osteoporosis

TOKYO, 6 March — Japanese scientists say they have found a link between consumption of vitamin E and the degenerative bone condition osteoporosis, in a study likely to shed new light on the use of supplements. Researchers found that giving mice increased doses of the vitamin to a level similar to that found in supplements caused the animals' bones to thin. The mice developed osteoporosis after eight weeks on the diet, which had levels of vitamin E significantly higher than those found in a mouse's natural diet, according to the study, published in the journal Nature Medicine.

The team, led by Shu

Takeda of Keio University, said vitamin E stimulates the generation of bone-degrading cells, which normally work with bone-forming cells to maintain bone strength. Osteoporosis is a disease that causes the thinning of bone tissue and loss of bone density over time. It often affects older people, particularly women, who may become more prone to bone fractures. Vitamin E is found naturally in various foods including vegetable oil, nuts and some leafy vegetables. It is also a popular health supplement as an antioxidant, and is widely believed to enhance health and slow problems related to ageing. The study called for greater research into how enhanced levels of vitamin E affect human health.—Internet

Study finds many asthmatics do well on food-allergy tests

WISCONSIN, 6 March — People with asthma fare better on a type of food-allergy test called a "food challenge" than non-asthmatics, new research suggests. Food challenges involve people suspected of having a food allergy eating small amounts of the food orally to see if they have an allergic reaction. If there is no reaction, the person eats increasing amounts of the food to determine if they can safely eat it.

In the study, researchers from the Medical College of Wisconsin and the Children's Hospital of Wisconsin reviewed the charts of 105 patients with food allergies who ranged in age from 9 months to 74 years old. About three-quarters of the patients had asthma. About 21 percent of those who didn't have asthma failed food challenges, meaning they had a reaction such as hives, cough or wheezing after being exposed to the food. Less than 13 percent of the asthmatic patients failed the food challenge.

"A diagnosis of asthma was not associated with a higher food-challenge failure rate, which suggests that food challenges should be encouraged in this population," senior study author Dr Monica Vasudev said in a news release from the American Academy of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology (AAAAI).

The study was scheduled to be presented 4 March at the AAAAI annual meeting in Orlando, Fla. Data and conclusions should be viewed as preliminary until published in a peer-reviewed journal. The study authors noted that doctors and patients may be worried that having asthma means having an elevated risk of allergic reactions.

Making a new product takes lots of time, money

This product image provided by Procter & Gamble Co, shows Tide Pods, three-chamber liquid unit dose pods. INTERNET

NEW YORK, 6 March — It took eight years, 450 product sketches, 6,000 consumer tests and hundreds of millions of dollars for Procter & Gamble to create something that it hopes will be destroyed in the wash. Tide Pods are palm-size, liquid detergent-filled tablets that are designed to be tossed in the washer to take the measuring cups—and messiness—out of laundry. P&G says the product, which hit store shelves last month, is its biggest innovation in laundry in about a quarter of a century.

Tide Pods aren't the sexiest of inventions, but they illustrate how mature companies that are looking for growth often have to tweak things as mundane as soap and detergent. The story behind Tide Pods provides a window into the time, money and brainpower that goes into doing that. P&G, the maker of everything from Pampers diapers to Pantene shampoo, has built its 175-year history on creating things people need and then improving them. (Think: Ivory soap in 1879; Swiffer Sweeper in 1999.) Each year, the maker of everything from Pampers diapers to Pantene shampoo spends $2 billion on research and development. The company also rolls out 27 products annually, or more than two a month, worldwide.

The focus on innovation has paid off. P&G says 98 percent of American households have at least one of its products in cupboards, broom closets or bathrooms. And while about 15 to 20 percent of all new products succeed, P&G has claimed a 50 percent success rate.

Four of the top 10 new consumer products in 2010 were made by P&G, according to research firm SymphonyIRI.

China cuts growth target to 7.5% in 2012

BEIJING, 6 March — China expects economic growth of 7.5% this year as it looks for more sustainable expansion, prepares for a change in leadership and rides out a global slowdown. Premier Wen Jiabao unveiled the target at the start of the annual National People's Congress. Despite setting a target of 8% growth over the past eight years, China has regularly grown more quickly. This has caused problems including high inflation and a widening wealth gap. Last year, China's gross domestic product (GDP), or annual economic output, grew by 9.2%. In 2010 gross domestic product grew 10.4%. Chinese leaders have said that economic stability is a priority for the country this year, ahead of its planned change of leadership in the autumn. "I wish to stress that in setting a slightly lower GDP growth rate, we hope... to guide people in all sectors to focus their work on accelerating the transformation of the pattern of economic development and making economic development more sustainable and efficient," Mr Wen said.

Analysts said a stimulus package introduced after the 2008-2009 global financial crisis had contributed to bubbles in the property market and high inflation. High consumer prices, especially the cost of food, have previously caused unrest in China. Inflation was 5.4% in 2011, higher than the government target of 4%. The target for 2012 was also set at 4% by Mr Wen.

Spain wilts in driest winter for 70 years

MADRID, 6 March — February is barely past but already Spanish farmers are on drought alert as reservoirs shrink, crops wilt and brush fires crackle after the country's driest winter in 70 years. Spain is used to fires in the summer, but this year they have come early, ravaging woodland, while the general dryness stunts crops and leaves farm animals without grass for grazing. Brush fires have already swept across 400 hectares in the wooded northwestern region of Galicia.

'Twisted' waves could boost capacity of wi-fi and TV

NEW YORK, 6 March — A striking demonstration of a means to boost the information-carrying capacity of radio waves has taken place across the lagoon in Venice, Italy. The technique exploits what is called the "orbital angular momentum" of the waves - imparting them with a "twist". Varying this twist permits many data streams to fit in the frequency spread currently used for just one. The approach, described in the New Journal of Physics, could be applied to radio, wi-fi, and television.

The parts of the electromagnetic spectrum that are used for all three are split up in roughly the same way, with a spread of frequencies allotted to each channel. Each one contains a certain, limited amount of information-carrying capacity: its bandwidth. As telecommunications have proliferated through the years, the spectrum has become incredibly crowded, with little room left for new means of signal transmission, or for existing means to expand their bandwidths. But Bo Thide of Swedish Institute of Space Physics and a team of colleagues in Italy hope to change that by exploiting an entirely new physical mechanism to fit more capacity onto the same bandwidth.

Obama told a pro-Israel group in Washington that the United States and Israel were cooperating closely on security matters and that two nations were not drifting apart.

“So if during this political season you hear some question my administration’s support for Israel, remember that it’s not backed up by the facts,” Obama told the American Israel Public Affairs Committee. “Remember that the US-Israel relationship is simply too important to be distorted by partisan politics.”

Obama said the latest turmoil in the Middle East made it more important for Washington to keep talking to all of the different players and urge them to reach an accommodation with Israel, and for the Israelis to continue looking for ways to keep the lid on regional tensions.

“As hard as it may be, we should not give in to cynicism or despair,” Obama said. “The changes taking place in the region make peace more important, not less. And I have made it clear that there will be no lasting peace unless Israel’s security concerns are met.”—Internet

Pakistan tests missile

ISLAMABAD, 6 March— Pakistan has test fired a missile that has a range of 180 km and can carry conventional and non-conventional warheads, a media report said on Monday.

Pakistan successfully tested the surface to surface Hafz-II ballistic missile that has a range of approximately 180 km, reported Geo News.

It can carry conventional and non-conventional warheads, said a statement issued by Inter Services Public Relations.

Pakistan in April last year successfully test-fired a short-range, surface-to-surface nuclear capable missile.

Nasr, a ballistic missile of Hafz series, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead can hit targets up to 60 km.

Barely two months before that, it tested a nuclear-capable cruise missile, Hafz-VII, with a range of up to 600 km.

Pakistan has been developing an arsenal of missiles.

India and Pakistan, which have fought three wars since their partition in 1947, regularly test-fire missiles to display each other’s capability.

Pakistan’s missile repertory includes Hafz ballistic missiles and its variants, Ghaznavi short-range ballistic missile, Ghauri and Shaheen medium and intermediate range ballistic missiles, Babur cruise missiles and Bakhtar-Shikan anti-tank guided missile, most of which have been developed with China’s help.—Internet

Large amount stolen from South African coffers

CAPE TOWN, 6 March— A total of 346 million rand (about 46 million US dollars) were stolen from the state coffers in the past financial year, according to a report published on Sunday.

The report, tabled by the Public Service Commission (PSC) to Parliament this week, blamed civil servants for the stealing. The commission came to the conclusion after probing financial misconduct in 39 national departments and nine provincial governments. A total of 1,135 cases of financial misconduct were committed by civil servants during the 2009/2010 financial year, according to the report published by Sunday Times.

Of these 998 were found guilty, the report said.

This figure was the highest recorded in five years—representing a staggering 346 percent growth compared with 100 million rand (about 13 million dollars) in 2008/2009.

The PSC slammed the government for not robustly pursuing criminal prosecution.

“Failure to institute criminal action... may encourage acts of financial misconduct to continue to be on the rise,” said the report.

President Jacob Zuma pledged in his State of the Nation address last month that the government would take tougher action against corruption.

One of the measures is to review the entire state procurement system to ensure better value for money from state spending. “To further improve security, the Department of Home Affairs, signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the banking industry, to roll out the online fingerprint verification system in all participating banks, to assist in fraud prevention and detection,” Zuma said.

The government would work with the business and social organizations to implement anti-corruption programmes, he said.—Xinhua

2,000 Chinese awarded for reporting online porn

BEIJING, 6 March—Over 2,000 people in China have been awarded for reporting internet and mobile phone pornography to the authorities in 2011.

More than nine million yuan (around 1.5 million) were awarded to a total of 2,129 people, Xinhua reported.

People who offered important tip-offs were awarded 1,000 to 10,000 yuan.

Four organizations — China Internet Illegal Information Reporting Centre, 12321 Internet Obscene and Trash Information Reporting Centre, Internet Illegal Conduct and Crime Reporting Centre, Reporting Centre of the National Office Against Pornographic and Illegal Publications — handled 1.26 million tip-off cases from December 2009 when they began soliciting public information till the end of 2011.

The organizations asked people for greater social engagement in the ongoing crackdown against the spread of pornography through internet and mobile phones.

Previously unknown Mozart piece discovered in Austria

VIENNA, 6 March—A previously unknown musical piece by Mozart was discovered inside an eighteenth century music book in Austria, local media reported on Saturday.

The Mozart Foundation in Salzburg reported that the piano piece was discovered in a music book from 1780 in the western state of Tyrol, according to the Austrian Independent newspaper.

University lecturer Hildegard Herrmann-Schneider, from the institute for Tyrolean music research at Innsbruck University, discovered the handwritten piece while gathering pieces for the international organization “Répertoire International des Sources Musicales,” which catalogs music sources around the world.

Experts and the ‘Stiftung Mozarteum’ have confirmed that the piece was written by a young Mozart and the work will be presented on 23 March in the “Tanzenmeistersaal” in the house of Mozart in Salzburg.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was born in Salzburg in 1756 and is known around the world as one of the most prolific musical composers of the Classical era. As one of the most important figures in music history, he was also known to have influenced Ludwig van Beethoven and many others.—Internet

However, terms and monetary values in some provisions are not conformity with present management systems. Thus, these provisions should be cancelled, amended and subtracted. He said that he would like to take exceptions of the provisions.

The Agency Transaction in Para 10 of the Chapter II of PWA Code is to be amended in conformity with the current period. As the Accountant Commissioner was not appointed, all the works were not carried out under control of his subordinate accountants and accountancy staff at different levels are working under supervision of the departmental heads, the provisions concerning accountant commissioner and regional accountants of PWD Code and PWA Code are to be necessarily cancelled, amended and replaced. Moreover, as there was no treasury, the provisions on treasuries and auditing the accounts are to be amended in line with the existing banking system. He said that it is necessary to cancel the paragraphs from 416 to 424 on London Stores in the Chapter XII of the PWA Code, amend provisions on management for government-owned buildings, issuance of furniture, handing over of buildings, renting the building, fixing rental rate and taxation in the Chapter (III) Public Buildings of PWD Code in conformity with the present situations, and to amend provisions from paragraph 475 to 480 in Takavi Works of Chapter XV of PWD Code. Furthermore, he said that it should amend the provisions in Chapter (II) Contract and Agreements of the PWD Code, abide by order and directives issued by the Union government and amend provisions concerning British colony Indian government paragraphs 422, 447 and 461 in PWD Code Volume I.

Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Joint Public Accounts Committee is to cooperate with subject-wise experts from the Office of the Attorney-General of the Union, the Office of the Auditor-General of the Union and ministries concerned to carry out amendment, subtraction, assertion and republishing the law books. He said he supported the proposal and urged the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw to put the proposal on record.

In taking decisions, as the 'yes' votes were the majority, the Hluttaw approved the proposal.

Next, U Zaw Myint Pe of Mandalay Region Constituency No. 5 submitted the proposal urging the Union government to amend Social Security Board of the Ministry of Labour as an economic organization of the Union government. As the social security fund was paid into the combined account of the Union from 1963 to January 2012, Dr Myint Kyi of Yangon Region Constituency No. 8 the proposal urging the Union government to refund the remaining money to the social security board. U Myint Tun of Bago Region Constituency No. 10 submitted the proposal urging the Union government that as savings or input savings that have been paid to the State for over 50 years are own money of the respective people. Thus, the savings are to be refunded to respective farmers. Moreover, Section 5/1953 of Agricultural Bank Law should be cancelled and farmers are to be allowed to save money of their own accord.

It was reported that the Hluttaw representatives wishing to discuss the proposals are to enlist their names after today's session.

Today's session came to an end at 11.50 am and the 20th day session will be held at 10 am on 9 March.—MNA healthy and educated youths and to actively participate in the education reforms which can help the students to be in correct thought and belief.

In his discussion, U Win Maung of Mandalay Region constituency No. 2 stressed the need for active participation of employees of the Ministry of Education and teachers from the basic and higher education level in implementing tasks of the 30-year National Education Promotion Plan as part of efforts for reforming education system to promote skills of teachers and to education system. The plan had been implementing since 2001-2002 fiscal year and the plan included two sectors basic education sector and higher education sector, he added. Besides, the long-term plan also included tasks to be carried out by Myanmar Department, Myanmar Academy of Art and Science and Myanmar Examination Board, he said. He suggested to do practically approach to the new curriculum for the students as it was drawn meeting the international standard and the ASEAN standard.

U Zon Hlal Htan of Chin State Constituency-2 said like the neighbouring countries trying for their human resource development, Myanmar needs to do so in a practical way. Rural areas have few primary assistant teachers and they are found to have been unable to train their students skillfully. The Education Ministry should seek ways how to help rural schools. Schools should arrange for students to be able to learn the entire lessons only at school without dependency on tuitions. Changes and reforms should be made after learning education systems of other countries.

Regarding the proposal, Union Minister for Education Dr Mya Aye said for education promotion, pre-on-job teachership courses are being conducted at institutes of education and education colleges and teachers are assigned duties after completing their courses. Moreover, plans are being made for teachers to do teacher capacity building courses to improve their skills. In summer, school management courses and subject upgrading courses are conducted. Measures are also being taken for opening more basic education schools, for facelift of old schools and building new ones.

In 2011-2012 academic year, 57 high schools, 80 high schools (branch), 76 middle schools, 187 middle schools (branch), 176 primary schools and 36 primary schools (branch) were opened. The ministry spent K 17513.325 million as ordinary expenses and K 25202.866 million as aggregate expenses in the 2011-2012 academic year on repairing schools and building new schools. The ministry is cooperating with parents and the public and providing furniture, school equipment, lab equipment, teaching aids and media gadgets.

To develop child-centred approach-CCA, the ministry is continuing the plan of child friendly school-CFS in cooperation with UNICEF. The CCA plan has started since December, 2004 in collaboration with JICA and it has been launched in 60 townships.

For CCA to cover the whole country, plans are underway to launch it 93 township in 2012-2013, 89 townships in 2013-2014, 73 townships in 2014-2015 and 64 townships and other 30 township with little progress totalling 94 in 2015-2016. In 2015-2016 academic year, primary assistant teachers from all 330 townships will be able to teach their students with the use of CCA.

To appoint a teacher for a class, the number of primary level students must be at least 140 and above as the primary school level has five grades. As there are about primary 20000 schools with less than 140 students each, it is necessary to appoint about 60000 teachers with at least three each for those schools. Although multi-grade teaching is still practised in primary schools with small number of students, students' skills can be developed through CCA.

In 2011-2012, pre-on-job teachership course training school appointed 1282 trainees as junior assistant teachers and 7164 as primary assistant teachers totalling 8446. Plans have been made to appoint 512 trainees as JATs and 2722 as PATs. So, the proposal should be put on record, said the Union Minister.

As U Khin Maung Yi of Ayeyawady Region Constituency-6 said that the proposal should be recorded, the Hluttaw decided to put it on record.

Next, U Bo Yal of Kayah State Constituency-3 submitted the proposal on 'urging the Union Government to prioritize the opening of a new border trade camp in Kayah State for regional development'. The Hluttaw agreed to accept and discuss the proposal and announced to enlist the representatives wishing to discuss the proposal.

Today's session went into recess at 3.50 pm and the 11th day session will be held at 10 am on 8 March.

At the session, one bill was approved, one proposal discussed and recorded and one new proposal submitted.

The trainees and members of Fire Services Department exercised fire drill with the use of foam from the fire engine to put out the fuel fire.

Altogether 32 trainees are attending the course that will last two weeks.

Private banks open foreign exchange counters

MANDALAY, 6 March—With the aim of ensuring smooth exchange of money for tourists in Mandalay, enabling tourists to legally exchange foreign currency, systematically operating mutual interest in foreign currency market, eradicating illegal exchange of foreign currency and stabilizing rate of foreign exchange, Central Bank of Myanmar allowed private banks in Mandalay to trade foreign currency under the rules and regulations.

In Mandalay, Myawady Bank, Inwa Bank, Kanbawza Bank, Cooperative Bank and Myanma Industrial Development Bank exchange US dollar, Euro, Singapore dollar and FEC with Myanmar currency kyats.

In daily exchange of currency, customers face difficulties in refusing exchange of creasing notes, smeared notes and worn-out notes and exchanging about 200 US$ in maximum.—Thiha Ko Ko (Mandalay)

78-year-old man shot two doctors dead in Germany

BERLIN, 6 March—A 78-year-old man on Monday entered into a local clinic in Kaiserslautern, west Germany as he opened fire and shot two doctors to death, then took his own life.

The shooting took place around 15:30 local time (1430 GMT) in a medical clinic in the small town with some 4,600 inhabitants, when the shooter was said to have repeatedly shot at the two general practitioners.

The killer then fled the site before the police followed up to his house, local police spokesman said.

Besieged in his house, the suspect opened fire again and hit a police officer, who was badly injured.

A unit of special police surrounded the house of shooter and found the body of the old man, who had committed a suicide with a gunshot.

Local police would hold a joint press conference with the prosecutor on Tuesday morning to provide further details.—Internet

Thousands flee Australian town as flood fears grow

SYDNEY, 6 March—Thousands of people fled their homes in Australia's southeast Tuesday as fears grew that a levee holding back the swollen Murrumbidgee River would burst. Floods have hit three eastern states this week, sweeping two men to their deaths after they attempted to cross waterways in cars while inundating hundreds of homes and causing millions of dollars in damage.

More than 8,000 people were ordered to evacuate in the New South Wales town of Wagga Wagga where the Murrumbidgee is predicted to peak at 10.9 metres (36 feet), right on the levee's limit. "The levee may hold, it may not hold," State Emergency Service deputy commissioner Dieter Geske told the Seven Network as the river rushed towards a level not seen since 1844. "Should the levee fail and the water enters the CBD, and other areas in Wagga Wagga, then people need to be in the evacuation centre, not in their homes or businesses." Wagga Wagga has been hit by several significant floods since the earliest European settlement in the 1840s, and officials said residents had responded well to the latest evacuation order.

"I knew where my house lies—if the levee were to overflow my street, it was pretty quickly going to go—so I went," Melina Skidmore told state broadcaster ABC.—Internet

Man who crushed car pays for replacement

The Florida man who crushed a teenager's car in the parking lot of an off-road park said he wrote a $6,500 check to get the girl a new vehicle.

Norman Nowling, who was charged with felony criminal mischief after he used his "monster van" with 5-foot tires to crush the Toyota Corolla Saturday at Charlotte County's Redneck Yacht Club, said he gave the check to Amanda Kent's stepfather Tuesday to cover the costs of buying a new vehicle, WBBH-TV, Fort Myers, Fla., reported on Wednesday.

A nest of fossilized dinosaur eggs is displayed in Beijing on 28 Feb. 2012. The nest, estimated to be at least 65 million years old, was returned to China after being smuggled to the United States. The case set an example for China and US cooperation on law enforcement, and will be a basis for further action against fossil smugglers.

City blocks chicken-killing art project

Officials in Lawrence, Mo., said they will not allow a local woman to display and then butcher chickens as part of an art project.

Assistant City Attorney Chad Sublet said legal codes prohibit the harming or killing of domesticated animals within city limits and the only chickens allowed to be kept in the city are domesticated poultry for egg production, The Kansas City (Mo) Star reported on Wednesday.

Amber Hansen, a Lawrence artist, had sought to display five live chickens in a sculpture resembling a chicken coop for one month then slaughter and serve the birds as part of 21 April community potluck. She said the project, titled "The Story of Chickens: A Revolution," was aimed at getting people talking about food consumption.

Karen Davis, president and founder of United Poultry Concerns, applauded city officials for blocking the project. "We feel this project and our response to it has helped Amber even though the original project has been blocked," Davis said. "We also feel that she has been introduced to a sensibility about animals that maybe she hadn't been exposed to before."

Professors propose simplified calendar

A pair of professors at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore said they want to do away with leap years in favour of an all new calendar.

Astrophysicist Richard Conn Henry and economist Steve Hanke said their proposed calendar would feature 364 days to a year with an extra "mini-month" week added at the end of December every five or six years to compensate for the lack of Leap Years, The Christian Science Monitor reported on Wednesday.

The professors said their calendar would ensure holidays and birthdays always fall on the same day of the week and make things easier on both individuals and businesses when it comes to subjects such as calculating interest.

The men said their calendar would be split into 91-day quarters that would total 12 months, eight of which would have 30 days and the rest would have 31.

"Our plan offers a stable calendar that is absolutely identical from year to year and which allows the permanent, rational planning of annual activities, from school to work holidays," Henry said.

Janet Jackson refuses 'X-Factor'

LOS ANGELES, 6 March—Singer Janet Jackson has refused to be on the judge's panel of next season of US' show "The X-Factor" due to busy schedule.

"(I'm) very flattered that 'X-Factor' let me know that I was being considered for next season, but it just wouldn't be possible," online.com quoted her as saying.

Jackson is currently preparing for her upcoming Number Ones Up Close and Personal Tour as well as role in a Tyler Perry movie. Britney Spears and Fergie are still reportedly being considered to join Cowell and LA Reid on the show.

Taylor Swift 'has a crush on Tim Tebow'

WASHINGTON, 6 March—Taylor Swift was spotted looking at Tim Tebow "like a little puppy dog" when the two had dinner with three other friends at Toscanova in Los Angeles recently.

The 22-year-old singer has previously dated stars like Taylor Lautner, Jake Gyllenhaal and Joe Jonas.

Taylor Swift

"There were no public displays of affection between Taylor and Tim, but she surely looked happy to be there," Contactmusic.com quoted a source as telling US weekly.

"Yes, she has a crush on him. She is a massive fan, but I don't think he sees her that way," another insider added.

However, the 'Mean' hit maker is said to have embarked on a "friendship" with the 24-year-old hunk, rather than a romance.

"They actually have been speaking a lot about the Bible and Christianity. Right now it's on the friendship tip—even though that frustrates her," the source added.

The blonde beauty recently confessed she loves writing about her relationships and the ways they change, as she grows older.

"I really love to go back to human interaction and the way we make each other feel. But that at 22 is different than it was at 18 or 19 when I made my last album at 16 and 17 when I made 'Fearless'. As you grow, you change in the way you process emotion," she said.

Katy Perry approached for film on Paul Potts

Katy Perry

LONDON, 6 March—Katy Perry has been asked to star in a new movie about opera singer Paul Potts.

Film bosses are preparing to start work on a biopic telling the life story of the Potts, who found fame by winning Simon Cowell's reality TV show 'Britain's Got Talent' in 2007.

Movie mogul Harvey Weinstein, who is backing the project, wants either Perry or superstar Adele to play Potts' wife, and the 'I Kissed a Girl' hitmaker seemed "genuinely interested" in the job. "I was talking to Katy about a new project, a possible dramatic role in the Paul Potts movie, which will be shooting in England soon. We'd really like someone like Katy or Adele to play the role of Potts' wife, and Katy seemed genuinely interested," Daily Express quoted him as telling the New York Post.

He revealed that he had spoken to Perry about taking the part during a pre-Oscars party in New York in February.

Brad Pitt gets strict with kids

LONDON, 6 March—Actress Angelina Jolie has revealed that her partner Brad Pitt has become stricter with their six kids.

The Oscar-winning actress raises Maddox, 10, Pax, eight, Zahara, seven, Shiloh, five, and three-year-old twins Knox and Vivienne, together with Pitt. While Jolie said she has always been strict with the kids, Pitt has become more disciplined with kids, than he was before.

"I used to be the tougher parent but since the birth of the twins, Brad's had to play bad cop more often. It also depends on which of the children we are talking about," okmagazine.com quoted her as saying.

"Brad has always had this incredible bond with Mad, who's very smart, and Brad loves teaching him about history and art and culture—it's an amazing thing to watch them together. I think I'm a little closer to the girls, maybe, but he's always making them laugh. The children are usually very well-behaved though," she added.

Keanu Reeves had 'meltdown' on turning 40

WASHINGTON, 6 March—Keanu Reeves has revealed that he suffered a 'meltdown' when he turned 40 but he has now come to terms with getting older.

Keanu Reeves

The 47-year-old actor found it difficult to adjust when he reached the milestone age and admitted he is embarrassed by how he reacted at the time.

"I had the classic 40 meltdown, I did. It's embarrassing. It was pretty funny. But then I recovered. To me, it was like a second adolescence. Hormonally, my body was changing, my mind was changing, and so my relationship to myself and the world around me came to this assault of finiteness," Contactmusic.com quoted him as saying.

The 'Speed' star also found it difficult to come to terms with leaving his youth behind.

"It was also the end of the projection of my younger self. I came to the place where I thought, 'I don't know where I am anymore but where have I come from and what am I doing?'" he said.

Director Scott to film 'Japan in a Day'

TOKYO, 6 March—Director Ridley Scott says the "Japan in a Day" project, to record life one year after the earthquake and tsunami, aims to help affected areas recover.

The project is a collaboration between the Scott Free production Scott runs with his brother Tony and Fuji TV, the Hollywood Reporter said on Saturday.

Japan's Fuji TV will distribute 200 cameras to people in the disaster-affected areas to record their lives 11 March, the one-year anniversary of the earthquake, tsunami and nuclear crisis at Fukushima.

"What will be wonderful about Japan in a Day will be the window into the life of Japanese people today," Scott said, "having coped with enormous natural tragedy, economic unease and the task of rebuilding their spirit, we will no doubt have some very powerful stories emerging."

"As a filmmaker I'm

obsessed with truth. There has to be truth in storytelling otherwise movies simply don't work," Scott said.

The videos will be uploaded to a dedicated Web site, www.youtube.com/JapanInADay, then the best videos will be combined with Fuji TV footage and edited into a film to be released theatrically in Japan this fall and then internationally.

"I hope that 'Japan in a Day' offers people the incentive to put a voice to their thoughts and supports their determination to move on from their experiences in a positive way," Scott said.

Newton joins Chelsea coaching staff

Former Blues midfielder links up again with Roberto di Matteo

LONDON, 6 March — Former Chelsea midfielder Eddie Newton has returned to the club as part of the Blues coaching staff. Newton joins the backroom team under interim boss Roberto di Matteo until the end of the season, following the departure of manager Andre Villas-Boas. The 40-year-old Newton, who worked under Di Matteo at both West Brom and MK Dons, made his Chelsea debut in 1992 and stayed with the club until 1999.

He scored in the 1997 FA Cup final, when Di Matteo created history with the quickest goal in a Wembley final as Chelsea beat Middlesbrough 2-0. Newton joins Steve Holland, who remains assistant first-team coach and goalkeeping coach Christophe Lollichon. Japanese equestrian makes Olympics at 70

FRANKFURT, 6 March — He is not riding off into the sunset. Hiroshi Hoketsu is simply riding, and that's just how he likes it. Hoketsu first went to the Olympics in 1964 when he was 23 and the games were in his native Tokyo. Now nearly 71, Hoketsu will be going to the Olympics again — not to watch, but to compete. He qualified last week for the individual dressage competition on Japan's Olympic team for London this summer. He will be Japan's oldest Olympian again, reprising his role from the Beijing Games four years ago. "This time, I am very pleased to have qualified, particularly because my horse had a little accident last year," Hoketsu said by phone Monday to The Associated Press. "She was not in very good condition." The horse is Whisper, a 15-year-old mare. "A little bit old, but still a good age," Hoketsu said. The same seems true for the rider as well. Although the team selection hasn't been announced officially, Hoketsu has no doubt he will be competing in the individual event. He plans to ride in a few competitions as he prepares for London. "We didn't try for the team event," he said from his home in Aachen in western Germany. But he qualified for the individual at an international dressage competition in France last week. — Internet

McIlroy trades clubs for racquet in NY exhibition

NEW YORK, 6 March — Golf's new world number one Rory McIlroy tried his hand at a different sport on Monday, winning a rally against Maria Sharapova during his girlfriend Caroline Wozniacki's tennis exhibition. Dane Wozniacki summoned McIlroy from his courtside seat at Madison Square Garden and handed him the racquet in a lighthearted moment before the final game of her match, which she lost 6-3 6-4.

McIlroy resisted at first but then placed the tennis ball down on the blue surface, addressed it as if hitting a golf chip shot, then picked it up and started a friendly rally with the number-two ranked Sharapova. After trading some gentle shots, the Russian sent an overhand long to the delight of the crowd and McIlroy quit while he was ahead, scurrying back to his seat. McIlroy, who rose to the top of the world rankings after winning the Honda Classic in Florida on Sunday, told reporters at the BNP Paribas Showdown it was "nice to take a little break from golf."

The Northern Irishman, who was besieged by autograph hunters during changeovers, acknowledged he was not quite ready to eclipse Wozniacki in the world rankings. "Another couple of years," said the curly-haired 22-year-old. Wozniacki said she did not send McIlroy candy or flowers after his Sunday victory. "I don't want his head to become too big, so no," she joked. American Andy Roddick finished up the program by beating Roger Federer 7-5 7-6. — Internet

Sharapova beats Wozniacki in exhibition at MSG

NEW YORK, 6 March — Maria Sharapova beat Caroline Wozniacki in an exhibition at Madison Square Garden on Monday — though she lost the only point she played against Wozniacki's boyfriend, top-ranked golfer Rory McIlroy. With the Dane a game away from losing 6-3, 6-4, she invited McIlroy onto the court just hours after he won the Honda Classic in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., to ascend to No 1 in the world for the first time. Andy Roddick beat Roger Federer 7-5, 7-6 (7) in the night's second exhibition at the BNP Paribas Showdown. Roddick was 2-21 in his career against Federer.

"I'm obviously in Roger's head," Roddick joked after winning in his first appearance at the Garden. "I think Jeremy Lin wanted me to win tonight," Roddick added. In jeans and a sweater, McIlroy showed off a one-handed backhand, and Sharapova hit his lob wide. Asked if he was surprised, McIlroy said with a smile: "I've won a few off Caroline."

Wozniacki has been ranked No 1 for 67 weeks in her career, though she's currently down to No 4. McIlroy knows he'll need to stay on top for "another couple of years" to catch his girlfriend in that stat.

Hiddink makes winning start with Anzhi

MOSCOW, 6 March — Dutch coach Guus Hiddink made a winning start in his new post as coach of bigspending Russian Premier League club Anzhi Makhachkala with a 1-0 win away at Dynamo Moscow on Monday in their first match after the winter break. Anzhi's Brazilian midfielder Jucilei da Silva scored the only goal of the match but it failed to affect their league position as they remain seventh in the table with 55 points from 33 matches, 11 points behind leaders Zenit St Petersburg.

Dynamo are third on 58 points. "First of all I'm happy to come back to Russia and to start with a win here," Hiddink said. "I think we deserved that win as we created several good scoring chances in the first-half. "I'm happy we managed to clinch all three points in such a hard match as the hosts Dynamo were playing very aggressively tonight." Dynamo were in control from the start pinning Anzhi back but failed to score an early goal. Anzhi relied on counter-attacks and in the 18th minute star striker Samuel Eto'o missed a great chance to break the deadlock after a mix-up in the Dynamo defence as his shot from 12 metres out could only hit the woodwork. After the break both sides failed to conjure up many scoring opportunities until the 69th minute, when Jucilei opened the scoring firing home a rebound after a freekick by Mbark Bousoufa.

Jaime Alguersuari joins BBC Formula 1 line-up

LONDON, 6 March — Former Toro Rosso driver Jaime Alguersuari is joining Radio 5 live as an expert summariser to complete the BBC's Formula 1 team for 2012.

Alguersuari joined Toro Rosso in 2009 and, at the age of 19, became the youngest driver in F1 history.

"It will be interesting to look at the action from a different angle and bring that excitement and insight to listeners," said Alguersuari.

"It promises to be an exciting season and I can't wait for it to start."

BBC Radio 5 live controller Adrian van Klaveren added: "We're delighted to have Jaime on board, his engaging personality makes him a great addition to 5 live for the 2012 F1 season. "We are going to make the most of Jaime's first-hand experience right now knowing he could well be driving for one of the teams again in the near future." 65 killed in Madagascar storm: weather agency

MADAGASCAR, 6 March—Tropical Storm Irina has killed at least 65 people in Madagascar, most of them residents of the Ifanadiana district in the southeast of the island, weather authorities said on Monday.

Three people were also reported missing, according to the national bureau of natural catastrophes (BNGRC), which did not provide any other details. Earlier it was reported that only one person had been killed when the storm passed over Madagascar last week before lashing the coasts of South Africa and Mozambique, where at least one person was killed. "A tree fell on a house and the roof collapsed," killing an elderly man in Mozambique's southern Gaza province, said Rita Almeida, spokeswoman for the national disaster agency. In the South African city of Durban, beaches were closed as waves reached three-metre (16-foot), municipal spokesman Thabo Mofokeng said. Ships were ordered to remain in port. Irina was the second killer storm of the season. Tropical cyclone Giovanna left 35 people dead and many more injured.—Internet

14 burnt to death, dozen injured in southwest Nigerian bus collision

OSUN, 6 March—Fourteen people were burnt to death while 12 others were seriously injured on Monday in a road accident that occurred near Ilesa, southwest Nigeria's Osun State, according to the country's Federal Road Safety Corps (FRSC).

State sector commander of the FRSC Sunday Maku who disclosed this reporters in Osogbo, the state capital, said the victims, including two drivers, were burnt beyond recognition when two buses had a head-on collision and caught fire.

He said one of the buses was coming from Akure and heading to Ibadan, both in the south west region of the country, while the other was moving in the opposite direction.

He identified the two buses as a white Toyota Hiace Bus and a Volkswagen wagon with white and orange colour. "Twelve adults, including eight males and four females who were seriously injured, were rushed to Wesley College Hospital in Ilesa for treatment," he said. He blamed the incident on over speeding and dangerous overtaking.—Xinhua

150 people killed in dump blast in Brazzaville Congo

KINSHASA, 6 March—At least 150 people are reported to have been killed following huge explosions at an arms dump in Congo's capital Brazzaville. The force of the blasts was felt several miles away in the city of Kinshasa, across the border in the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Hundreds more people are reported to have been injured in the explosions. The BBC's Thomas Hubert, in Kinshasa, says residents of east Brazzaville fled when the blasts began. He says the explosions started shortly after 08:00 local time (07:00 GMT) and continued into the early afternoon, causing panic in both cities. Although Congo has suffered coups and a civil war in the past, it has been largely peaceful since the 1990s. A European diplomat in Brazzaville told AFP news agency: "We count at least 150 dead in the military hospitals and around 1,500 injured, some of them seriously." A doctor in the French embassy in Brazzaville, who visited local hospitals, said about 500 people had been injured. State radio, citing Defence Minister Charles Zacharie Bowao, said the explosions had been caused by a fire in the arms depot in the Regiment Blinde base in the riverside neighbourhood of Mpila. Mr Bowao appeared on national TV to urge calm in Brazzaville and across the Congo river in Kinshasa. "The explosions that you have heard don't mean there is a war or a coup d'etat," he said. "Nor does it mean there was a mutiny. It is an incident caused by a fire at the munitions depot."

Witnesses said troops and police had sealed off the area. Didier Boutsindi, of the presidential office, said many people were trapped in the wreckage of a collapsed church.—Internet

Tenth day session of Amyotha Hluttaw in progress.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 6 March — The third regular session of the first Amyotha Hluttaw continued for 10th day at Amyotha Hluttaw Hall at the Hluttaw Building here this afternoon.

It was attended by Speaker of Amyotha Hluttaw U Khin Aung Myint and 191 representatives of Amyotha Hluttaw.

During the meeting, member of Amyotha Hluttaw Bill Committee U Myint Tun clarified the report of the bill committee regarding the discussion of the representatives over foreign investment bill.

The Hluttaw approved the bill paragraph by paragraph. Joint-Secretary of the Myanmar Investment Commission Deputy Minister for Rail Transportation Thura U Thauang Lwin submitted a proposal to approve the Foreign Investment Bill and the Hluttaw approved the amended bill.

Six representatives discussed the proposal urging the Union Government to promote the education system submitted by U Khin Maung Yi of Ayeyawady Region constituency No. 6.

In his discussion, U Nyan Lin of Ayeyawady Region Constituency No. 3 suggested to systematically select the primary teachers as the primary level is the most important level for the education system, to give more encouragement to the child-centered approach teaching system, to review the examination system. He also discussed matters related to improvement of skills of English and seconded the proposal.

U Sai Thant Zin of Shan State Constituency No.4 seconded the proposal and suggested to train the students to become good citizens through examination tests, to include the practical teaching system that is in conformity with the current era and to produce teachers who can handle the child-centered teaching system.

Dr Myint Kyi of Yangon Region Constituency No 8 discussed the teaching and role of teachers, stressing the need for the child-centered teaching system and for the obligation of teachers to practically encourage the students to be interested in the environmental conservation and sports.

In his discussion to second the proposal, U Nu of Yangon Region Constituency No 10 stressed the importance of the role of teachers who were participating in the teaching system that can shape a modern and developed nation and urged the teachers to value their role of nurturing the future generation so that they can become intellectual and intelligentsia. The current 30-year education plan has set a target to help all citizens to complete the basic education primary level by 2005, the middle level by 1015 and higher level by 2030, he said. He also suggested that it is important for the basic education schools to nurture the students to become fit and
