Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker Thura U Shwe Mann hears reports on respective sectors presented by townselders at Khabaung Hall in Toungoo.—MNA

NAY PYITAW, 8 Jan—In meeting with local people at Khabaung Hall in Toungoo of Bago Region yesterday, Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker Thura U Shwe Mann said he was there to coordinate matters in attending to the needs of locals, urging them to make reports frankly and correctly.

Toungoo District Deputy Commissioner U Kyaw Thet and townselders from Yadeshe, Toungoo, Htantabin, Pyu, Kyaukkyi and Ottwin made reports on requirements in transport, education, health and education sectors, and the deputy ministers and officials made clarifications on the reports. The Region Chief Minister explained ongoing developmental tasks and works to be done in the region.

Also present at the meeting were Pyithu Hluttaw Committee Chairmen U Soe Tha and U Thein Swe, Bago Region Chief Minister U Nyan Win and region ministers, deputy ministers and officials, region Hluttaw representatives, departmental officials and members of social organizations.

In his concluding remarks, the Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker said that development of a certain region called for peace and stability and stressed the need to perform respective tasks effectively and efficiently. He called for mass participation in peace process while the President, the Commanderin-Chief of Defence Services and KNU Chairman General Mutu Sae Phoe and members are striving with goodwill to make the peace process a success. He said he was very delighted to see officials concerned were coordinating the requirements of the local people. While national building endevours were in progress, malpractices, mob rule and violence under the pretext of democracy would undermine national development tasks, thereby harming public interest. He said a democracy could be established within the framework of laws and rules and regulations. Strict adherence to laws could bring about the Rule of Law. Only when the Rule of Law prevails, will the nation see peace and stability and develop. He called for active participation of the people on the mature consideration.

After the meeting, the Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker and party cordially greeted those present. — MNA

Indonesia makes bid for Myanmar rice

Indonesia has made an offer to buy 300,000 tons of rice from Myanmar, according to an official of the Ministry of Commerce.

"Indonesia has a plan to buy many tons of quality rice from Myanmar. They would then increase the amount. We also have the plan to increase the rice export," the official said.

Myanmar's rice export to Indonesia reached the peak during the period between 2001-2002 fiscal year to 2005-2006 fiscal year. The demand for Myanmar rice in Indonesia market is on the increase. Though, Myanmar could not export rice to Indonesia n beyond 2005-2006 FY due to various reasons.

Myanmar could only export 2125 tons of rice to Indonesia in first three quarters of 2011-2012 FY from April to December, according to official statistics of the commerce ministry.

But Myanmar exported 1.01 million tons of rice in the same period in 2012-2013 FY. If that rate continues, Myanmar's rice export would hit 1.2 million tons, a record high in 46 years.

YESB ready to supply 500 megawatts electricity for upcoming 2013 summer

YANGON, 8 Jan-According to the chairman of Yangon City Electricity Supply Board, arrangements have been made for supply of more than 500 megawatts electricity needed for upcoming summer in 2013 from the projects being implemented by the Ministry of Electricity.

By calculation based on the maximum electricity consumption during the previous summer, it is estimated that a demand for electricity will be 2060 megawatts during the summer in 2013. As only 1551 megawatts can be supplied from the national electricity grid, covering 75 per cent of the total electricity consumption, plans are underway to meet an increased demand for electricity.

Obama picks Hagel for defence, Brennan for CIA

WASHINGTON, 8 Jan— President Barack Obama Monday nominated on former Republican Senator Chuck Hagel as his next defence secretary and counterterrorism adviser John Brennan to head the CIA, potentially setting up at least one Senate confirmation battle and establishing a tough tone to start his second term.

Obama moved ahead with the picks despite concerns raised by senators on both sides of the aisle about them. Hagel has made controversial comments about Israel and gays while Brennan faces questions over his views as a CIA official in the Bush administration on the use of so-called enhanced interrogation techniques, widely considered torture, on terrorism suspects. "I hope that the Senate will act on these confirmations promptly. When it comes to national security, we don't like to leave a lot of gaps between the time that one set of leaders transitions out and another transitions in. So we need to get moving quickly on this," Obama said in announcing them.

Friendly leaders to visit Venezuela as show of support for Chavez

CARACAS, 8 Jan-Venezuela's National Assembly president Diosdado Cabello announced on Monday that heads of state from friendly nations will visit Venezuela to show their support for its ailing President Hugo Chavez.

Cabello said several "friendly" leaders will travel to the capital Caracas to show their support on Thursday, 10 January, the day Chavez was scheduled to be sworn in as president for another six-year term.

"Friendly presidents, heads of government, and prime ministers are coming to Venezuela to show their solidarity with Commander Hugo Chavez, with the people and with the Constitution," Cabello told reporters at a Press Conference at the headquarters of the ruling United Socialist Party of Venezuela (PSUV).

Cabello, accompanied by Vice President Nicolas Maduro, did not say who the presidents will be in Caracas on that day. Cabello also called on Chavez supporters to attend a mass rally in front of the presidential palace on Thursday to counter the destabilizing" criticism from conservative opposition forces, who maintained that postponing the president's swearing in ceremony goes against the Constitution.

Opposition groups are planning their own show of strength, by calling for a "civic strike."

Opponents of Chavez say a failure to take office on the designated day will lead to a power vacuum.

Apple bid for Samsung sales ban faces skeptical court

SAN FRANCISCO, 8 Jan—Apple Inc faces long odds in its attempt to overturn a US appeals court ruling that threatens to undermine its smartphone patent war against Samsung Electronics Co Ltd. Apple has asked the full Federal Circuit Court of Appeals to revisit an October decision by a three-judge panel of the court, which rejected its request to impose a sales ban on Samsung's Galaxy Nexus smartphone ahead of a trial set for March 2014.

In that ruling, the Washington DC-based appeals court raised the bar for potentially market crippling injunctions on product sales based on narrow patents for phone features. The legal precedent puts Samsung in a much stronger position by allowing its products to remain on store shelves while it fights a global patent battle against Apple over smartphone technology.

Apple hopes the full Federal Circuit, made up of nine active judges, will reverse the panel's findings. But legal experts say the specific legal issues involved are not likely to be controversial enough to spur full court review. Furthermore, the three judges who issued the ruling were unanimous, whereas the Federal Circuit tends to review a case "en banc" with all of the active judges-when an earlier ruling showed a split.

The Federal Circuit fight comes after Apple won a $1.05 billion verdict last year against Samsung in a California federal court. The same trial judge will preside over the legal battle surrounding the Nexus phone, which involves a patent not included in the earlier trial. The fight has been widely viewed as a proxy war between Apple and Google Inc. Samsung's hot-selling Galaxy smartphones and tablets run on Google's Android operating system, which Apple's late co-founder, Steve Jobs, once denounced as a "stolen product." Google has not had much luck in obtaining injunctions against

NASA's Kepler telescope finds 461 potential new planets

CAPE CANAVERAL, 8 Jan -NASA's Kepler space telescope has uncovered another 461 potential new planets, most of which are the size of Earth or a few times larger, scientists said on Monday. The announcement brings Kepler's head count to 2,740 candidate new worlds, 105 of which have been confirmed.

"Two years ago we had around 1,200 candidate planet objects. A year later, we added a significant number of new objects and saw the trend of huge numbers of very small planets ... twice the size of Earth and smaller," Kepler astronomer Christopher Burke told a News conference webcast from the American Astronomical Society conference in Long Beach, California.

collected over 22 months of Kepler telescope observations, the proliferation of smaller planets continues. The new targets include what appears to be a planet about 1.5 times bigger than Earth circling its sun-like parent star in a 242-day orbit-a distance where liquid water, believed to be necessary for life, could exist on its surface. In related research, astronomers have determined that about one in six sunlike stars have Earth-sized planets circling their parent stars closer than Mercury's 88-day day orbit around the sun.

The goal of the Kepler mission, which began in 2009, is to determine how many stars in the Milky Way galaxy have an Earthsized planet orbiting in so-called habitable zones, where water can exist on its surface.

"You need very specific conditions to have liquid water. You can't have your planet too close to your star where it's too hot. You can't have it too far away for the planet conditions to be too cold. We're trying to find these planets in this very specific habitable zone," said Burke, who is with the SETI Institute in Mountain View, California.

The Kepler telescope works by tracking slight decreases in the amount of light coming from 160,000 target stars caused by a planet or planets passing by, or transiting, relative to the telescope's point of view. Earth-sized planets located about where Earth orbits the sun would take 365 days to circle their parent star. Those located closer, in Mercury-like 88-day orbits, transit more frequently. Scientists need at least two and preferably three or more cycles to determine whether an apparent transit is real or some other phenomena.

"In order to catch several transits of an Earth analog, you have to wait for one more year to get another transit. It's simply too early to call," said astronomer Francois Fressin, with the Harvard-Smithsonian Centre for Astrophysics.

The Kepler roster also boosts the number of multi-planet systems. Of the 2,740 objects, 299 are in dual-planet systems, 112 are in triplets, 44 are part of four-planet systems, 11 systems have five planets and one system has six planets.

SEQUL. 8 Jan-Samsung Electronics, the world leader in mobiles and memory chips, said it likely earned a quarterly profit of $8.3 billion, as it sold close to 500 handsets a minute and as demand picked up for the flat screens it makes for mobile devices, including those for rival Apple Inc products.

That run of five straight record quarters may end January-March in on weaker seasonal demand, though a strong pipeline of smartphones—the South Korean group's biggest earner-and improving chip prices have eased concerns that earnings growth could slow this year, powering Samsung shares to record levels last week. The stock dipped 1.1 percent on Tuesday, in a Seoul market that was down 0.4 percent.

"Investors are a bit concerned that Samsung's momentum may slow in the first half. The smartphone market is unlikely to sustain its strong growth as advanced markets are nearing saturation despite growth in emerging countries," said Kim Sungsoo, a fund manager at LS Asset Management.

Banks have to pay up, despite win on liquidity rule

LONDON/WASHTINGTON, Jan-Banks have won a victory in their battle to dilute tough rules on liquidity, but they will still have to find trillions of dollars to ensure their funds do not run out in a crisis. Heavy lobbying by banks over the past two years has bought them time, but not freedom from requirements that they lock up big new buffers cash globally from 2015. And while some critics are blasting the Basel Committee for backing off the strictest aspects of the liquidity rule, other prominent reform voices are reluctant to say that it means a global commitment to tough new rules is falling away.

"It is a phase-in. It should be understood not as a repudiation of capital requirements but as phaseins that are reasonable," said former US Representative Barney Frank, who coauthored the 2010 Dodd-Frank legislation of financial reforms. The Basel Committee of banking supervisors, representing most of the world's capital markets, surprised banks on Sunday with concessions on #### a planned new liquidity rule to enable them to withstand market squeezes. Banks and some regulators said the original draft, the first of its kind, was too harsh, tying up vast pools of cash at a time when credit is needed to aid struggling economies.

Basel is giving banks an extra four years to comply with the rule by 2019 and include a wider range of risky assets in the buffer. Regulators defended the change, with Bank of England Governor Mervyn King saying on Sunday that a strong disincentive will be built into the changes. Banks will have to set aside more capital if they choose to pad out their liquidity buffer with the riskier assets such as bonds backed by home loans, or shares. Dwight Smith, a partner at the law firm Morrison Foerster in Washington, DC, also noted that banks will have to sell off assets periodically to test their liquidity, and will face other restrictions on how they can count lower-quality assets in the buffer. "It's not like it's suddenly open season on all this," Smith said.

Obama to host Afghan president at White House

WASHINGTON, 8 Jan-US President Barack Obama will host Afghan President Hamid Karzai at the White House on Friday, the White House announced on Monday.

Obama looks forward to "discussing our continued transition in Afghanistan, and our shared vision of an enduring partnership between the United States and Afghanistan," it said in a statement.

Karzai's visit comes as the Afghan national security forces are preparing to take over security after the NATO-led forces' scheduled withdrawal in 2014. Some are expecting that the visit can lead to the inking of a long-term security partnership between the two nations The talks between the United States and Afghanistan on the socalled Bilateral Security Agreement (BSA) formally began in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, on 15 Nov, 2012.

The controversial agreement, if signed, would guarantee the presence of US military at least for several years in Afghanistan, a contentious issue that has been opposed by some in Afghanistan and its neighbours. The deal could also allow US economic and military aid to Afghanistan.

Some 100,000 NATOled troops, with over 60,000 of them American soldiers, are presently stationed in Afghanistan to fight the Taleban-led insurgency.

Afghanistan is expected to have 350,000-strong national security forces including national army and police by 2014. But some observers believe these are not enough to deal with security threats in the wartorn country. —Xinhua

WASHINGTON, 8 Jan-US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton returned to her office on Monday after a month-long absence due to illness and received a warm welcome from her staff. The top American envoy received a standing ovation from 75 senior staff members present when she walked in the room, wearing a "brilliant pink jacket," State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland said.

Deputy Secretary of State Thomas Nides presented Clinton with a gift from the staff in a big box, telling his boss that "As you know, Washington is a contact sport." In the box were a football helmet with the State Department seal, a football jersey with "Clinton" imprinted on the back and number "112" on the front, which symbolizes the number of countries that she has visited as secretary of state since taking office four years ago, Nuland said. "And she loved it. She thought it was cool," the spokeswoman said at a regular news briefing. Clinton, 65, is the mosttraveled US secretary of state as she has traveled over 950,000 miles and spent some 400 days on her plane.

She returned home on 7 December from a European tour suffering from a stomach virus, followed by a concussion sustained when she fainted and hit her head as a result of dehydration. She was hospitalized in New York for three days late last month after a blood clot was found in a vein in her head.

She has stated her intention to step down at the start of President Barack Obama's second term in

The board faulted the State Department for the attack on the US consulate in Benghazi, Libya on 11 September last year, in which Ambassador Christopher Stevens and three other Americans were killed, saying "management deficiencies" at high levels of the agency resulted in inadequate security posture in the mission.

Nuland said Clinton will reschedule her appearance for a congressional hearing on the attack, which was slated for 20 December but canceled later due to her poor health.-Xinhua

Argentine warship returns home after detention in Ghana

BUENOS AIRES, 8 Jan. -Argentine warship Libertad entered the country's waters on Monday after being seized in Ghana for more than two months due to a legal dispute, the Argentine Defence Ministry said.

The warship received protocol salute from Uruguayan warships when passing through Uruguay's waters, the ministry said, adding that an Uruguayan airplane guarded Libertad in the Rio de la Plata waters.

The Libertad continued sailing southwestward at 7.5 knots and was expected to arrive at the Mar del Plata navy base, 400 km southeast of Buenos Aires, on Wednesday, where it would be welcomed by President Cristina Fernandez, it added.

Seized at the eastern Tema Port of Ghana on 2 Oct, the naval school ship was on a "good-will mission" with 220 crew members and 110 students aboard. Some students came from Argentina's Naval Military School and others were from Uruguay and Chile.

The move to embargo the ship was sparked by a claim by creditor NML Capital Limited over a so-called "vulture fund," which is suing Argentina over its 2002 bond default.

A Ghanaian judge rejected Argentina's request to release the warship, as the South American country refused to pay 20 million US dollars as bail.- Xinhua

US calls Palestinians' name change "bad idea"

WASHINGTON, 8 Jan— The United States on Monday called it "a bad idea" to rename the Palestinian National Authority to State of Palestine, insisting the statehood can only be achieved through a negotiated settlement with Israel.

"Our policy on continuing to call it the Palestinian Authority, until such time that there is a negotiated agreement for a state with borders, will not change," State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland told reporters at a regular Press briefing. "Well you can't create a state by rhetoric and with labels and names," she added. "You can only create a state, in this context, through bilateral negotiations.' Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas issued a decree on Sunday, ordering the use of the name of State of Palestine on all official stamps including identity cards, driving licenses, official documents, passports and official letterheads.

It was the first official step taken toward statehood since the UN General Assembly granted the Palestinians an upgraded status of a non-member observer state in November last year. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Sunday expressed his opposition to the move, saying a Palestinian state can only be born through a peace treaty with Israel.

Nuland said US special envoy David Hale would be in Jerusalem for meetings on Monday night, and he will see Abbas the next day.

"We're certainly going to tell them that it's a bad idea and it doesn't change anything for the Palestinian people," she said. " And if they really want to change things for the Palestinian people, they need to get back to the table."

Resolve water, food and energy insecurity

Nations worldwide are facing the challenge of dealing with increasing demands for water, food and energy as the global population is on the increase all the more. Critical linkages between those sectors, such as the relations between world food prices and national biofuel policies, the effects of climate change on agriculture and water availability, and the demand for cooling water in electricity production, have increasingly highlighted the need for integrated planning and governance.

This is currently, however, a widespread lack of academic training and tools to support such integration. It is in the public interest that these factors are made known to all the stakeholders including policy makers, NGOs, private sector, academic and research institutions.

Continually increasing energy and food demands are driving a marked change in land use in the nation, especially in the cultivation of rice, sugarcane and rubber. As the long-term national energy policy is ongoing, there is a trend of local farmers altering their food cropping regimes and switching to either rubber or other perennial crops.

Meanwhile, we need to have broader perspectives on development challenges from shared experiences on cross-sectorial collaboration in different contexts. Towards this end, a better understanding of the availability and functions of an analytical platform for water-energy nexus as well as its application in modeling scenarios to address challenges related to food, water, energy and climate change is to be ensured.

And only when there is cooperation between the stakeholders who have an interest in understanding and learning about the analytical framework and actual experience with cross-sectorial collaboration, will the issue of water, food and energy insecurity be resolved practically.

State Sangha Vinicchaya (Judicial) Committee

The members of the Sangha Orders residing in the Republic of the Union of Myanmar are like the sons of the Buddha, who consequently succeeded Maha Thera Kassapa of the First Buddhist Synod.

When the first rivers namely, Ganda, Yamuna, Aciravati, Sarabu and Mahi flow into the ocean, their respective names disappeared, and then they received the one name, ocean. Similarly, the respective names of four castes also disappeared when they were ordained as BNhikkhus. They are regarded as the sons, as well as the disciples of the Buddha. According to the Fourth Wonder of the Sasana, the members of the Sangha received only the name of the sons of Sakya.

Therefore, all the members of the Sangha are united under the Rules of Vinaya expounded by the Buddha. In this way, members of the Sangha Orders have consequently to carry out the benefits of the Sasana. To settle peacefully the disputes of the Vinayadhammakamma Adhikarana, the following four main principles were drawn up and passed by the State Central Working Committee of the Sangha of All Orders of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar. They are:-

1. These procedures of the Settlement on theVinayadhamma-kamma Adhikarana Disuptes Act shall be applicable to the members of the Sangha residing in the Republic of the

Extradited al Qaeda suspect pleads not guilty in US court

NEW YORK, 8 Jan—A Pakistani man accused of taking part in an international al Qaeda plot to attack targets in the United States and Europe pleaded not guilty to terrorism charges during his first US court appearance on Monday in New York.

Abid Naseer, 26, was extradited on Thursday from Britain to Brooklyn. New York. He is facing up to life in prison on charges including providing material support to al Qaeda and conspiring to use a weapon of mass destruction in connection with an alleged plot to bomb a city center in Manchester, England.

The charges against

Naseer are also connected to an alleged Al Qaeda plot in 2009 to bomb the subway system in New York City, US prosecutors said. Two men, Najibullah Zazi and Zarein Ahmedzay, have pleaded guilty to planning the attacks and a third man, Adis Medunjanin, was sentenced to life in prison after his conviction last year for taking part in the plot.

During a brief court appearance in Brooklyn federal court, Naseer, wearing a bright blue t-shirt and black sneakers, pleaded not guilty to the charges through his court-appointed lawyer. The judge ordered Naseer to be held in detention without bail. His next court appearance is scheduled for March 7.

Naseer is one of a dozen men, mostly students from Pakistan, who were arrested in Britain in 2009 on suspicion of plotting to bomb a city center in Manchester. British authorities conducted daylight raids on the suspects' homes after Britain's most senior counter-terrorism official was photographed openly carrying details about the operation. British authorities said they found large quantities of flour and oil in the suspects' homes, as well as highlighted surveillance photographs of public areas in Manchester and a map of the city center.—Reuters

PORT-AU-PRINCE, 8 Jan-A recent advisory by the Obama administration warning that Americans were victims of murder and kidnappings in Haiti could unfairly hurt efforts to get the earthquake-crippled nation back on its feet, Haiti's government officials said on Monday.

"Haiti is one of the safest destinations, not only in the Caribbean, but in all of Latin America," Prime Minister Laurent Lamothe said in a Press Conference, flanked by several other cabinet members.

advisory issued on 28 December said: "US citizens have been victims of violent crime, including murder and kidnapping, predominantly in the Port-au-Prince area. No one is safe from kidnapping, regardless of occupation, nationality, race, gender or age."

This stern warning came at a time when violent crime for the year, especially murder and kidnapping, had in fact begun to decline, Haitian officials said.

The most violent month in Haiti last year was July, when 136 murders were reported by the Haitian National Police. That number sharply declined in the following months. The highest number of kidnappings for 2012 came in October, with 21 reported cases, but it fell to only 9 cases in December.

The US State Department travel advisory undermined Haiti's attempts to rebuild its tourism industry and lure foreign investment in the wake of the January 2010 earthquake that decimated the capital city, Lamothe complained.

"With the meager resources that the state has, we're investing in tourism," he said, suggesting that Haiti had been unfairly singled out by the Obama administration. "Other countries have problems, too," he said. Though it has long endured a reputation as a dangerous, lawless place, Haiti is in fact safer than its neighbor, the Dominican Republic, in terms of homicide.

Haiti's murder rate in 2011 of 6.9 per 100,000 residents was dwarfed by that of neighboring Dominican Republic, which had a rate of 24.9 for the same period. Jamaica had a murder rate of 40.9 for 2011.-Reuters

US Patriot missiles arrive in Turkey

Beijing, 8 Jan— US cargo planes carrying parts of Patriot missiles have landed at Incirlik airbase in Turkey. The surface-to-air missiles are to be deployed to protect the country from any spillover of Syria's civil war.

Turkey formally asked NATO for the missiles in November to bolster security along its border with Svria.

About 400 US personnel and equipment will ar rive in Turkey over the next several days.

They will man two of six Patriot batteries promised by NATO. The Dutch military shipped its Patriot missiles on Monday, while the two German batteries are being deployed to other parts of southern Turkey.

Japan to map out new defence programmes by end of 2013

Токуо, 8 Jan — The Japanese government decided on Monday to suspend two current defence programmes to pave the way to map out new programmes by the end of 2013, local media reported late Monday. The government will first come up with a temporary defense programme in a recent cabinet meeting and map out the new programs by the end of this year. Japan's Kyodo News Agency reported.

The two programmes, namely the National Defence Programme Guidelines and the Mid-Term Defence Programme, were approved by the government led by the Democratic Party of Japan in December, 2010, aiming at strengthening Japan's defensive and vigilant capability in its in his political pledges that southwestern waters.

The defence guidelines focused on Japan's long-term basic defense policy, while the midterm programme aimed at beefing up the country's Self-Defence Forces (SDF).

Meanwhile, Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) headed by Prime Minister Shinzo Abe also approved a plan in favor of drawing new defence programmes.

Abe, who became Japan's Prime Minister on 26 December last year, said he will upgrade the SDF to a national army and lift the ban on Japan's use of collective defence right.

The National Defence Division of the ruling party agreed on Monday increase defense to expenditures by about 120 billion yen (about 1.37 billion US dollars) in the next fiscal year from 4.71 trillion yen under the initial budget for fiscal 2012, Kyodo said.

The LDP and its key ally, the New Komeito Party, took 325 seats in the 480-seat lower house in general election held on 16 December last year, suggesting the ruling party could pass its budget plans in the Diet although they were vetoed in the upper house. The Japanese government also decided on 5 Jan to draft an annual budget to increase the country's defense spending for first time in 11 years in fiscal 2013.—Xinhua

Thailand urged to upgrade qualities of accommodation for tourists

BANGKOK, 8 Jan-Thai authorities have been urged to see to it that condominiums, apartment houses and other lodgings available to tourists throughout the country will be of higher quality than today, a leading tourism businesswoman has said.

Piyaman Techapaibul, president of the Tourism Council of Thailand, called on the Ministry of Tourism & Sports as well as other agencies government concerned to have those places and accommodations for tourists improved international standards because, she said, today's tourists from around the world have more money to spend and prefer quality lodgings as well as quality services and accommodations at those places. She said varied condominiums and apartment houses which may have been renewed or refurnished to serve as hotels for tourists are known to be of inferior quality than those which have originally opened as hotels or guesthouses.

"Added by condos and apartment houses currently opening for daily rent, the number of lodgings tourists throughout for the country has increased over the years, but not the qualities.

Many of today's tourists are so affluent and selective and upgraded to meet that they'd prefer quality earned from tourist industry by 2015, compared to about one trillion baht (33.3 billion US dollars) this year.

Thailand's most favourite destinations for tourists include the worldrenowned beach resorts of Pattaya and Phuket, the Andaman Sea archipelagos of Krabi and Surat Thani and the capital city of Bangkok.

The council leader made her comments in response to news reports that the government might deregulate businesses of running condominiums and apartment houses to the extent that they might not only serve as a place which collects monthly rent from the tenants but as a hotel where guests pay the room rates on a daily basis.

ZURICH, 8 Jan—Barcelona striker Lionel Messi was awarded the FIFA Ballon d'Or prize for the fourth time in a row here on Sunday.

The 25-year-old Argentine beat team-mate Andres Iniesta and Real Madrid rival Cristiano Ronaldo to the prize for the Player of the Year. It was a record fourth successive trophy for the Argentina star, an unprecedented feat in the history of world football.

"To tell you the truth this is really quite unbelievable," Messi said. "The fourth award that I have won is just too great for words. I want to recognize my teammates at Barcelona, especially Andres. It is with great pride that I am beside you today and that you play and train with us." Spain coach Vicente Del Bosque claimed the FIFA Coach of the Year award. The Euro 2012-winning coach showed characteristic modesty in claiming that the award was recognition for everyone who had helped Spain to claim a record third major championship in a row last summer.

a new labor deal in place the National Hockey League (NHL) was back in business on Monday, but some teams may find it easier to hoist a Stanley Cup than win back disillusioned fans. Having dragged fatigued fans through a fourth work stoppage in 20 years, most recently a 113-day lockout that ended with a tentative deal on Sunday, NHL officials and players are unsure what reception awaits them when the season begins next week. "The face painters are going to come back, they have never really abandoned the sport," David Carter, executive director of USC's Sports Business Institute, told Reuters. "What the NHL has lost is the ability to cultivate casual fans. "The last couple of years, with the momentum the league had built, I thought they really began Fans of the NHL are often described as North America's most avid but the league has regularly put that loyalty to the test in recent years as it sought concessions from players while working out new collective bargaining agreements. As a result, the NHL has lost 2,365 games to labor disputes over the last two decades, more than North America's three other major sports leagues combined.

The hardcore fans have grown numb to the lockout noise, ready to return whenever a deal is struck, but it is the casual observers who have already moved on that the league must now work to entice back.—Reuters

National race detainees given necessary health care services

NAY PYI TAW, 8 Jan — According to a tip-off that local national races were being detained by battalion (371) of Khun Hsan Ton Hong column of SSA (Ywet Sit) at an illegal detention building near a road to Nam Moh and Kontee villages in Namhsam Township of Shan State (South), a local military column found a 18 feet long, 10 feet wide and seven feet high building with two cells roofed with CI sheets and fortified with wooden fence, 150 yard from the road while they combed the area on 5 January.

Members of the Tatmadaw column found four detainees who were chained together with five national race guards in the building. They rescued them and set fire the building. Five national race guards were sent back to their villages and four detainees were taken to the local battalion where they were being given necessary health care services.

SSA (Ywet Sit) group constructed the detention building on 25 December with the contribution of labour and construction materials of nearby villages. The investigation revealed that the villagers were detained at the building as they failed to take part in Shan New Year festival on 14 December in Lwe Taing Hlyan.
