Plan for development of rural areas, improvement of socio-economy launched for farmers in Shan State

NAY PYI TAW, 5 Feb — Ministry of Cooperatives has sold transportation vehicles, farming machinery and machines in installments to the people in rural areas in Shan State today.

The sales of vehicles and machinery under the cooperative system and dissemination of knowledge on modern farming methods would benefit the farms and help them transforming from their traditional farming system to the modern farming system, said Vice-President Dr Sai Mauk Kham at a ceremony to bring about development of rural areas and improvement of the socio economy in Taunggyi, Shan State, today.

The Union Government is working together with respective region and state governments to carry out the tasks of development of rural areas and improvement of socio economy of the people in rural areas.

2 Koreas start preparatory talks on family reunions

SEOUL, 5 Feb — North and South Korea started preliminary talks on Wednesday on arranging another round of reunions of families separated since the 1950-1953 Korean War, according to the South's Unification Ministry.

Three officials from each side are attending the talks that began at around 10 am at the border village of Panmunjeom.

According to observers, the key point is whether the two sides can reach an agreement despite tensions over South Korea's annual joint military exercises with the United States scheduled later this month.

South Korea and the United States, however, dismissed the North's claims, saying the exercises are defensive in nature and will be held as scheduled.

Wednesday's preparatory talks had been set after South Korea last week proposed talks on holding the reunions on 17-22 February, at the North's Mt Kumgang, a resort on its east coast near the border with the South.

Earlier last month, South Korean President Park Geun Hye proposed the two Koreas hold the reunions around the Lunar New Year, which fell on 31 January.

The North then offered to resume the reunions at Mt Kumgang, "at a convenient time" after the Lunar New Year.

Family reunions are a highly emotional issue on the divided Korean Peninsula as most of the separated family members are in their 70s and 80s and have expressed a strong wish to see their relatives before they die.

The two Koreas first arranged temporary reunions for separated family members after the landmark inter-Korean summit in 2000.

They have so far held 18 reunions, bringing together more than 20,000 family members who had not seen each other since the war.

The last round of family reunions was held in 2010.

TOKYO, 5 Feb — Candidates in the upcoming Tokyo gubernatorial election have been visiting Izu Oshima Island, scarred by typhoon-triggered deadly mudslides last October, raising hopes among residents that the would-be governors' attention to their needs will stretch beyond the campaigning period.

The island, administratively part of Tokyo and located around 120 kilometers south of the capital, only has about 6,900 voters, or 0.06 percent of the electorate in the country's largest metropolis.

Since mid-January, the island, which lost 39 people in Typhoon Wipha, has been visited by Kenji Utsunomiya, 67, the former head of the Japan Federation of Bar Associations, former health minister Yoichi Masuzoe, 65, former Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa, 76, and Former Air Self-Defence Force chief Toshio Tamogami, 65.

All four — the best known among the 16 candidates — expressed willingness to place priority on disaster mitigation measures in their meetings with local residents.

"I don't remember an election like this," said Hitoshi Kurata, 67, a local taxi driver. He said he has never seen candidates either for national or Tokyo gubernatorial elections visiting the island. "I appreciate that they came to look at the current situation of the island, and I'm also glad to be able to hear directly what they have to say about their policies," he said.

In an attempt to clean up the debris left by mudslides, dump trucks are still busily passing up and down roads on the island.

Piles of rubble and damaged homes remain in some districts. Many islanders say there is still much to be done for reconstruction. "The disaster happened recently, so I want to choose someone who can give priority to reconstruction and to disaster mitigation," said

Fukiko Maeda, 78, who is in the tofu making business and was listening to the speech of a candidate. "I'm here to see whether candidates are just giving a performance or not."

Hitoshi Kono, 65, an unemployed man, was asked about phasing out nuclear power, a key issue for some of the candidates in the race. "Grand things had better be left to the state. I want to pick someone who solves Tokyo's problems one by one." In late January, temporary housing estates for 46 households were completed on the grounds of an elementary school that has been closed.

New Zealand navy Pacific disaster drill to involve 14 nations

WELLINGTON, 5 Feb — Five military ships and about 600 military personnel from 13 nations will join New Zealand forces this month in an exercise to test New Zealand's readiness to help its Pacific neighbors after a natural disaster, the New Zealand Defence Force (NZDF) announced on Wednesday.

The exercise to be held in Auckland and the Hauraki Gulf, in the upper east of the North Island, from 17 February to 7 March and would include forces from Australia, China, France, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Singapore and the United States, said a statement from the NZDF.

The Royal New Zealand Navy was organizing the Western Pacific Naval Symposium (WPNS), which would be the largest naval exercise hosted by New Zealand in decades, it said.

The training scenario was set in the fictional and remote South Pacific island nation of the Barclay Islands after a devastating 8.9-magnitude earthquake and a powerful tsunami.

Key shipping channels into the capital would be cut off and mines and explosive remnants dating from World War II would litter coastal waters.

The scenario would see a multinational task force led by New Zealand personnel deployed to create new shipping routes to undamaged coastal areas so that humanitarian aid and disaster relief supplies could be delivered.

The company said it had made contact with eight miners, who had managed to flee to a refuge bay at a depth 1,700 meters. The whereabouts of the remaining nine miners was unknown, a company spokesman said.

Rescue teams had been sent underground but access to the affected area has been hampered by smoke and a subsequent rock-fall, the spokesman added.

South Africa's gold mines are among the deepest in the world.

Car bombs near Baghdad's Green Zone kill nine

BAGHDAD, 5 Feb — Three car bombs exploded near Baghdad's heavily-fortified "Green Zone", home to the prime minister's office and several Western embassies, killing nine people early on Wednesday, security sources said.

The blasts came a day after two rockets were fired into the Green Zone, and are likely to heighten concerns about Iraq's ability to protect strategic sites as security deteriorates across the country.

Two of Wednesday's car bombs were parked opposite the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and killed five people, the sources said.

The other car was driven by a suicide bomber who blew himself and the vehicle up outside a restaurant close to a checkpoint one street away from the Green Zone, killing four people, the sources added.

Another explosion near Khullani Square in central Baghdad left four others dead.

Jordan cares about outcomes in Palestinian-Israeli peace talks

AMMAN, 5 Feb — Jordanian Prime Minister Abdullah Ensour on Tuesday voiced the country's concern of possible surprises to Jordanians when it comes to the outcomes of peace talks between the Palestinians and Israel, the state-run Petra news agency reported.

"Until the moment, Jordan is informed about the peace talks and the Palestinians voiced commitment to continue to keep us informed in this regard," the Premier said.

"There is nothing to be afraid of at present, but there have been concerns lately that there might be surprises to Jordanians," he said.

It is of great importance that the Palestinians continue to inform Jordan about all proposals discussed, said Ensour, adding that Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas pledged to keep Jordan informed in this respect.

Meanwhile, the premier said Jordan will not accept any violation of the rights of Jordanians of Palestinian origins, saying they have the right for return and compensation.—Xinhua

US intelligence chief warns of global crises, threats

WASHINGTON, 5 Feb — Director of US National Intelligence James Clapper said on Tuesday that the nation has never been beset by more crises and threats from around the world than it now faces. The long list of global threats included terrorism, sectarian violence and radical extremism, Clapper said during a House hearing on worldwide threats.

"And there are many other crises and threats around the globe to include the spillover of the Syria conflict into neighboring Lebanon and Iraq, the destabilizing flood of refugees in Jordan, Turkey and Lebanon — now about 2.5 million people, essentially one of the largest humanitarian disasters in a decade," he said.

Clapper also mentioned the implications of the drawdown in Afghanistan, the deteriorating internal security posture in Iraq, the growth of foreign cyber capabilities, the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and aggressive nation-state intelligence efforts against the United States.

The intelligence community was also threatened by the fallout from leaks by former contract employee Edward Snowden, Clapper said. Though he did not want to dwell on the debate about Snowden's motives, the US intelligence chief said he did want to address the damage caused by his disclosures. "As a consequence, in my view, this nation is less safe and its people less secure," he said.

"What Snowden has stolen and exposed has gone way, way beyond his professed concerns with so-called domestic surveillance programmes. As a result, we've lost critical foreign intelligence collections sources, including some shared with us by valued partners."—Xinhua

US Senate approves five-year farm bill

WASHINGTON, 5 Feb — The US Senate gave final congressional approval on Tuesday to a long-delayed five-year farm bill that provides food for the needy and subsidies for farmers and sent it to President Barack Obama for his expected signature.

The Senate voted 68 to 32 to pass the legislation which is more than a year overdue after the Republican-led House of Representatives approved it by 251 to 166 last week. The sweeping bill would cost the federal government about 96 billion US dollars a year, and about 80 percent of the money would go to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Programme (SNAP), commonly known as food stamps.

Among the most significant changes to farm subsidies in the new farm bill would be the elimination of a long-standing federal program called direct payments, which are paid to farmers 5 billion dollars a year whether they grow crops or not.

The bill also strengthens crop insurance as an essential risk management tool to protect farmers from weather disasters and market volatility and make up for the loss of those payments. The approval of the farm bill was believed as a bipartisan achievement for a divided US Congress, which made some important reforms for the future development of US agriculture.—Reuters

St Petersburg NGO becomes latest victim of Russian foreign agent law

ST PETERSBURG, 5 Feb — A foreign NGO in Russia's northern capital St. Petersburg was forced by local authorities to register as a 'foreign agent' Tuesday under the terms of a controversial federal law brought into force in 2012.

The Institute for Development of Freedom of Information (IDFI)'s Russian partner, Freedom of Information Foundation, has been asked to register as a foreign agent after evidence was gathered by local prosecutors concerning the foundation's foreign funding sources and alleged political activities, including "attempting to shape public opinion," local media reported. The IDFI spokespeople rejected the decision and promised to appeal.

As of July last year, 22 NGOs across Russia were officially registered as foreign agents, and the number has grown since September after a number of NGOs were suspected of sharing sensitive information concerning Russia's internal affairs with visiting G20 delegates in St Petersburg, including US President Barack Obama, local media reported.

Russia's foreign agent law is designed to prevent NGOs from pursuing the agendas of foreign governments on Russian soil. Although not initially enforced, President Vladimir Putin made it clear in a speech on Valentine's Day last year that the law was to be taken seriously.—Xinhua

Japan faces "disadvantages" without collective self-defence

TOKYO, 5 Feb — Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Wednesday Japan faces "disadvantages" through refraining from exercising the right of collective self-defence, expressing a strong desire to lift the self-imposed ban on its exercise.

He told a Diet committee the country can exercise the right "if the government comes out with a new constitutional interpretation. It does not necessarily require us to revise the Constitution." Japan has said it has the right to come to the defence of an ally under armed attack but cannot exercise it because of constraints under the pacifist Constitution that forbids the use of force as a means to settle international dispute.

"We have faced disadvantages" through being unable to exercise the right, Abe said at the House of Councillors' Budget Committee. Abe has underscored his intention to enhance Japan's defence capabilities with an eye on beefing up the security alliance with the United States amid threats such as North Korea's nuclear and ballistic missile development programmes.

A government panel of experts is now discussing the issue and is expected to take the position that engaging in collective self-defence does not go beyond the nation's right to defend itself. Such a conclusion could be submitted to Abe as early as April before the government determines by the end of June whether to change its current interpretation of the Constitution, some officials said.

Canadian politicians charged with expenses fraud

OTTAWA, 5 Feb — Canadian police have laid charges against one suspended senator and another former senator with fraud and breach-of-trust over their living and travel expenses.

The two senators—Patrick Brazeau and Mac Harb—will appear in court at a later date to face the charges, Gilles Michaud, assistant commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) told reporters at a news conference here on Tuesday.

Brazeau, suspended from Senate last November, was found to have improperly claimed nearly 50,000 Canadian dollars (about 45,085 US dollars) in housing expenses.

He was Canada's youngest-ever senator when Conservative Prime Minister Stephen Harper appointed him to the unelected upper chamber at the age of 34 in late 2008.

Meanwhile, retired senator Harb, had repaid 231,000 dollars (208,296 US dollars) of improperly claimed expenses to the Senate before his resignation in August last year.

Harb's lawyer Sean said Harb is prepared to respond to "any and all allegations" in court and will plead not guilty, while Brazeau told local media last November that he would have preferred to have been charged so that he could offer an answer to the allegations that had swirled around him for months.

The RCMP began last year its investigation into the Senate spending scandal, which has rocked Parliament Hill and touched the Prime Minister's Office.

Brazeau and Harb are among the four senators that police have investigated regarding improper housing and travel expenses claims.

The other two senators—former television news broadcasters Pamela Wallin and Mike Duffy—were also suspended from Parliament's Red Chamber along with Brazeau last November.

The RCMP has not laid charges against them yet.

A Senate committee determined each of the four had claimed tens of thousands of dollars in expenses that they were not entitled to, and then passed its files to the RCMP.

Charlie Angus, ethics critic of the New Democratic Party, the official opposition party, called the RCMP's announcement a "very sobering day for Canadian political life."

"It raises questions about the political judgment of the prime minister of this country who appointed Patrick Brazeau despite numerous red flags being raised about him," Angus said.

Hokkaido reactor needs construction work to satisfy new regulations

TOKYO, 5 Feb — Nuclear regulators said on Tuesday that one of the reactors owned by Hokkaido Electric Power Co does not satisfy Japan's new nuclear regulations, prompting the operator to decide on additional construction work for the facility.

The work required for the No 3 unit at the Tomari nuclear power plant "will not finish in several months," the utility said, indicating that the Nuclear Regulation Authority's ongoing safety assessment process could be prolonged and resumption of the reactor significantly delayed.

The No 3 unit is one of 16 reactors for which applications for NRA safety checks have been submitted since new safety requirements were introduced in July last year reflecting the lessons learned from the 2011 Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant disaster.

The problem with the No 3 reactor relates to the emergency system that cools the interior of the reactor's primary containment vessel by spraying water from a ring-shaped pipe. The No 3 reactor only has one pipe, but the NRA said in a meeting with officials of the utility in December that they should be prepared for cases in which the pipe breaks and cannot function.

Hokkaido Electric Power has insisted that such an event is extremely unlikely. But the NRA rejected the utility's claim, saying the new safety criteria "should be strictly applied."

The No 3 unit is a pressurized water reactor and is the only one of the PWRs undergoing safety checks that does not have double-layered spray pipes, according to the NRA.

All 48 commercial reactors in Japan are currently offline amid lingering safety concerns in the wake of the Fukushima nuclear crisis. To resume operation, reactors have to first satisfy the new regulations.

International court to decide future of Kenyan president trial

AMSTERDAM, 5 Feb — The fate of the politically fraught trial of Kenyan President Uhuru Kenyatta could be decided on Wednesday, when prosecutors at the International Criminal Court plead for more time.

Kenyatta's lawyers hope the case will be thrown out, putting an end to a trial that has driven a wedge between African countries—which criticize the ICC for targeting their continent—and the court's Western backers.

The Kenyatta trial is crucial to the ICC, which has secured only one conviction and suffered a string of collapsed cases since it was set up 11 years ago. Kenya says the court risks destabilizing east Africa if it presses on with the charges.

Western countries, while keen to back the ICC, are also anxious to maintain relations with Kenya, seen as a key ally in the battle against militant in neighbouring Somalia.

Kenyatta is charged with crimes against humanity during the violence that swept Kenya six years ago, when 1,200 died and thousands were driven from their homes. He denies the charges.

ICC prosecutors say he orchestrated the clashes, but their case has been weakened by the withdrawal of a string of witnesses since charges were first brought four years ago.

The trial had been due to start on Wednesday, but was postponed for a fourth time last month when prosecutors said another witness had withdrawn, and requested more time to gather evidence.

Prosecutors say their witnesses have been blackmailed or intimidated into withdrawing.

In a 31 January court filing, prosecutors said a "climate of fear" had weakened their case against Kenyatta, and said judges should rule that Kenya was in breach of its obligation to help the court's investigators.

"Several individuals with information relevant to the case refused to agree to be included on the prosecution's witness list due to fears that they or their family members would be targeted," prosecutors said in the filing.—Reuters

EU plans to offer visa waiver for Colombians

BOGOTA, 5 Feb — The European Union (EU) confirmed on Tuesday it plans to waive visa requirements for Colombian citizens who want to visit the 26 member countries of the Schengen Area.

"Today's decision reaffirms the political will of the EU to remove the visa requirement for Colombians and it is the green light to start the legislative process that will allow (the measure) to be implemented soon," EU Ambassador to Colombia Maria Antonia van Gool said on Tuesday on the website of the EU delegation in Colombia.

"It is an illustration of the mutual trust and willingness to continue working together. Unfortunately we cannot give an exact date yet as to when (those citizens) will be able to enter without a visa to the Schengen countries because it is still necessary to carry out legislative and institutional measures," Van Gool added. As European Parliament elections are coming up on 22-25 May, "there will be some months when the parliament does not meet, which could affect the speed of the process ahead of us," said Van Gool.

Tunisia police kills suspected assassin of opposition leader

TUNIS, 5 Feb — Kamal al-Qadqadi, the main suspect of last year's political assassinations, has been killed by Tunisian security forces during a police raid that targeted a house in the northern suburb of Raoued, announced interior minister Lotfi Ben Jeddou on Tuesday.

According to the ministry of interior, security forces launched intensive operations Monday afternoon in Raoued, killing six other "terrorist elements."

A national guard officer died during the armed clashes while another one was injured and transported to a hospital to receive medical treatment.

Mohamed Ali Aroui, spokesperson for the ministry of interior, said during a press conference Tuesday that the militants who were killed by the security forces are among the most dangerous terrorist elements of Ansar al-Sharia, a group the government categorized as a banned terrorist organization last August after Tunisian authorities accused it of involvement in the assassination of parliament member Mohamed Brahmi last July and prominent leftist politician Chokri Belaid in early February.—Xinhua

Toyota says expects record annual profit, maintains outlook

TOKYO, 5 Feb — Toyota Motor Corp (7203.T) raised its operating profit forecast for the financial year by 9 percent to a record 2.4 trillion yen ($23.7 billion) as the yen, which has fallen against the dollar by some 9 percent this financial year, buoys profits of the export-oriented car maker. The world's best-selling automaker said on Tuesday it now expects to post 2.4 trillion yen in annual operating profit, up from its previous forecast of 2.2 trillion yen and higher than its pre-Lehman crisis record of 2.27 trillion yen from six years ago.

The revision was almost in line with the 2.44 trillion yen estimated by 23 analysts. For the

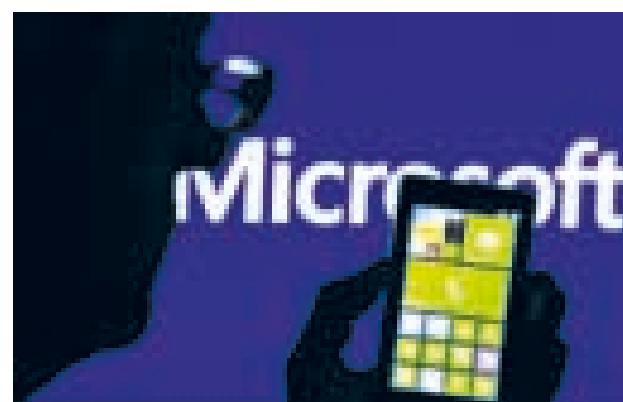

October-December third quarter, Toyota posted 600.5 billion yen in operating profit, above the average estimate of 575.9 billion yen and nearly five times what it posted a year ago. Toyota kept its crown as the world's best-selling auto maker for two years in a row in 2013, beating rivals General Motors (GM.N) and Volkswagen AG (VOWG_p.DE) after having sold 9.98 million vehicles together with group companies Daihatsu Motor Co (7262.T) and Hino Motors Ltd (7205.T). In 2014, it plans to sell 10.32 million vehicles globally.—Reuters

New Microsoft CEO faces challenges in mobile, investor relations

SEATTLE, 5 Feb — As Microsoft Corp prepares to unveil insider Satya Nadella as its new chief executive, investors and analysts are weighing how effective the 22-year veteran will be in re-igniting the company's mobile ambitions and satisfying Wall Street's hunger for cash.

The world's biggest software firm faces a slow erosion of its PC-centric Windows and Office franchises and needs to somehow challenge Apple Inc and Google Inc in the new realm of mobile computing. At the same time, some investors are campaigning for retrenchment and a bigger cut of the company's massive cash pile.

Most agree that Nadella's background in creating Microsoft's Internet-based — or 'cloud' — computing services makes him a safe pair of hands to take the company forward, but there remains a question over his ability to make Microsoft a hit with consumers, or with impatient shareholders. "He is the right person to drive safe, right down the middle of the fairway, and continue Microsoft's strengths," said Rajeev Chand, managing director and head of research at tech investment bank Rutberg & Co. "What we don't know is will Nadella help with the consumer revival, or with the mobile revival. Mobile is an open hole in his back-ground."

FDA launching major anti-tobacco campaign aimed at youth

WASHINGTON, 5 Feb — A major new anti-tobacco campaign will be launched in the United States next week aimed at vulnerable teenagers at risk of becoming addicted to cigarettes.

The $115 million campaign by the Food and Drug Administration will target the 10 million people aged 12 to 17 who are open to trying cigarettes or who are already experimenting with them and are in danger of becoming regular smokers, the FDA said.

The campaign is the first of several scheduled to be launched over the next two years that will target at risk, rural, gay, African American, and American Indian youth. The goal of the campaigns is to reduce the number of youth cigarette smokers by at least 300,000 within three years, the FDA said. The first, called "The Real Cost" campaign, will launch on 11 February and targets marginalized youngsters who may be starting to turn to tobacco as a way of coping with poor or stressful lives, Mitch Zeller, head of the FDA's tobacco products division, said at a media briefing on Monday.

The ads will appear in print and on TV and radio as well as on billboards and at bus stops, addressing typical teenage issues such as concerns with appearance and the desire to strike out and become independent. One series of ads features a bully who demands money.

A print ad shows a small, greasy-haired bully standing inside a school locker yelling, "Outside

Now, Punk." The tag line says: "You wouldn't take it from a tiny bully, but when you're hooked on tobacco, you're taking it from a cigarette." Another series of ads focuses on the cosmetic damage cigarettes can cause, especially to the skin and teeth.

Lockheed launches civil version of C-130J military transport plane

WASHINGTON, 5 Feb — Lockheed Martin Corp (LMT.N) on Monday launched the civil variant of its C-130J Super Hercules military transport plane, the LM-100J, saying it expected to sell about 75 of the planes to mining and energy companies, and other commercial and government customers in coming years. Lockheed said it had asked the US Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to certify the LM-100J, which will mirror the four-engine C-130J military workhorse, but without military avionics and communications equipment.

"The significance of that kickoff is that we're expanding the capability of the C-130 enterprise into the commercial arena. That opens up a different market to us," said Jack Crisler, vice president of business development for Lockheed's air mobility, special operations and maritime programmes.

Crisler told Reuters that Lockheed hoped to land an initial order for the new LM-100J aircraft this summer but declined to provide more details. He said the turboprop plane, aircraft would be priced in the mid-$60-million range.

Lockheed, the Pentagon's No 1 supplier, is looking to adjacent markets and foreign orders for its weapons to offset weaker US and European defence spending.

Sharp lifts forecast on orders from Chinese smartphone makers

Tokyo, 5 Feb— Sharp Corp lifted its full-year earnings forecast on Tuesday after receiving strong orders from Chinese makers for smartphone panels, putting it on firmer footing to secure the full-year net profit it needs as a condition for a $4.6 billion bank rescue. Japan's largest display maker raised its full-year operating forecast for the year to 31 March to 100 billion yen ($988 million), up from a previous forecast of 80 billion yen, although it left its net profit forecast unchanged at 5 billion yen.

The net forecast compares with expectations of 8.82 billion yen, the average of the most accurate analysts' expectations according to Thomson Reuters Starmine. The company, which also makes solar cells and TVs, cited strong orders for its small to midsize panels used in smartphones and tablets as it reported a 5.8 percent rise in operating profit for the October-December quarter to 47.6 billion yen, exceeding expectations of 35.42 billion yen, according to the average of five analyst estimates on Thomson Reuters Starmine.

Sharp, which racked up a net loss of 545 billion yen in the year through March 2013, has been trying to diversify its client base away from Apple Inc, which it supplies with small and midsize panels for the iPhone and iPad. The company said it had achieved high run rates at its display plants in Japan during the last quarter - a key operating target in its recovery efforts — and managed to boost the proportion of small to midsize panels at its Kameyama 2 factory in Japan to 30 percent of capacity as it shifts away from larger panels used in the struggling TV sector.—Reuters

DuPont adds weather, new trading to precision farming programme

KANSAS CITY, 5 Feb — DuPont Pioneer, the agricultural seed unit of DuPont, said on Tuesday that it signed a deal with DTN/The Progressive Farmer to provide weather and market information to farmers, along with new grain trading capabilities, all accessed through mobile devices. "Our customers are running small businesses. Production in the field is really important as well as the business side. So this is just another step to being able to address key needs," said DuPont Pioneer Director of Services Joe Foresman.

Foresman said financial terms of the deal are not being released. Branding, packaging and pricing decisions for the offerings are still being determined, he said. DuPont Pioneer customers will have access to an exclusive network of weather stations, including those positioned on growers' farms, for real-time local information, as well as environmental conditions in other regions and forecast data, said Foresman. DuPont and DTN also will combine technologies from both companies to offer farmers electronic grain trading capabilities, officials with both companies said.

The announcement comes three months after DuPont inked a deal with farm machinery company Deere & Co that provides farmers a wireless transfer system for their data. DuPont is racing rival Monsanto Co. to capture market share in the burgeoning "precision agriculture" arena, turning farm-related data into new profit streams by incorporating analytics on an array of data points, including soil types, fungicide application timing, weather patterns and pest management.

Monsanto on 1 November completed its nearly $1 billion acquisition of The Climate Corp, a weather data and modeling technology company. That followed Monsanto's purchase in 2012 of Precision Planting Inc.

Aussie teens receive top science award

CANBERRA, 5 Feb — How dangerous is texting or making calls on your mobile phone while driving? Thanks to 14-year-old Conroy Cheers from Melbourne we may all soon know. Australia's top science body, the Commonwealth of Scientific and Industrial Research Organization (CSIRO), announced on Tuesday that Conroy was named as one of the winners of the BHP Billiton Science and Engineering Awards in Melbourne.

Conroy's first place in the Investigations category of the awards was for developing a method to measure the risks of texting while driving, and also making hands-on and hands-free voice calls. Using a readily available driving simulator, Conroy 'drove' the streets texting friends, calling his family and measured how his driving was affected.

Conroy hopes the process will allow people to experience firsthand the dangers of texting while driving. "I have loved science and engineering in any size or shape, for as long as I can remember," Conroy said.

"I always get excited at the prospect of 'making stuff', and also enjoy riding my bike and reading.

My ambition is to become a scientist or an engineer, perhaps in the field of nanotechnology." Winner in the Engineering section was 18-year-old Ethan Buston from Wollongong, New South Wales. Ethan created the SMART (Stroke Management with Augmented Reality Technology) system — a camera-based augmented reality system that aims to aid the recovery and increase the safety of stroke patients. By manipulating what they can see, a clearer visual picture is provided to the patient.

Sony in talks to sell PC business to investment fund

BANGALORE, 5 Feb — Sony Corp is in talks to sell its poorly performing personal computer business to investment fund Japan Industrial Partners for up to 50 billion yen ($490 million), the Nikkei daily reported. Under the plan being discussed, Sony would sell its PC business to a new company to be established by the fund and have a small stake in the new firm, the Nikkei reported.

The sale of the PC business would result in disposal losses that would push Sony into a net loss for the first time in two years for the year ending on 31 March, the Nikkei said. Japanese broadcaster NHK reported on Saturday that Chinese technology company Lenovo Group was in talks about a possible joint venture to take over Sony's loss-making Vaio PC business overseas.

Sony said the NHK report was inaccurate but acknowledged that it was looking at various possibilities for Vaio. Lenovo declined to comment. Sony has said it plans to revise the product and manufacturing strategy for the Vaio unit as smartphones and tablets chip away at it PC business.

Lenovo shares dive on Sony PC buy report, downgrades

HONG KONG, 5 Feb — Shares in Lenovo Group Ltd slumped more than 16 percent on Tuesday after a weekend media report said the Chinese personal computer maker was in talks with Sony Corp about a possible joint venture to buy Sony's loss-making Vaio PC business outside Japan.

Speculation about the Sony joint venture comes after a hectic two weeks of deal making by Lenovo, with the Chinese company launching $5.2 billion worth of overseas acquisitions, partly funded by its own stock. Lenovo's announcement last week that it will buy Google Inc's Motorola Mobility handset unit for $2.9 billion surprised some investors and triggered a raft of analyst downgrades. Lenovo declined to comment on Tuesday. Sony has said the media report is inaccurate, but acknowledged it was looking at various possibilities for Vaio.

Promises for better services

Myanmar has granted telecom licences to two international telecom firms while the government-run Myanma Posts and Telecommunications, which has been the only telecom service provider in our country, is preparing to switch to a public corporation. More competitions are expected to be seen in the market, hopefully with far better services.

Qatar-based Ooredoo and Norway-based Telenor emerged winners in the hotly contested tender last year. They have made different promises since they entered the promising Myanmar market. Less than five years ago, a mobile SIM card was a privilege. The situations have changed now, but not much. Only one-digit percent of the population can only have access to telecommunications services.

Expecting any telecom services with specific promises is day-dreaming in the country where most industries are ruined by the lack of competition. Now, the competition comes from abroad. The companies have promised better services at relatively lower rate. They do not become the reality yet, but the progress is the promises.

We were total strangers to promises. It is the positive turning point. We expect more promises in various sectors of the country. We expect promises from service providers, promises from politicians and others. We will wait and see whether they fulfill their promises or not and we decide which one or whom to choose.

US discusses Afghan troop levels; Kabul holds talks with Taliban

WASHINGTON/KABUL, 5 Feb — US President Barack Obama met his senior military commanders to discuss the American presence in Afghanistan as officials in Kabul confirmed President Hamid Karzai's government has been holding secret talks with Taliban insurgents.

The United States said it welcomed any talks that would bring peace to Afghanistan. "It's important to note here that we've long strongly supported an Afghan-led reconciliation, which would, of course, be Afghans talking to Afghans," State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki said. "So the notion that we wouldn't support that dialogue is inaccurate."

She added that the United States was not in discussions with the Taliban. In Kabul, Karzai's spokesman confirmed a New York Times report that the government was holding talks with the Taliban in the hope of persuading them to make peace.

"I can confirm that ... Taliban are willing more than ever to join the peace process," Aimal Faizi said. "Contacts have been made and we are also in touch with them." A member of Afghanistan's High Peace Council also confirmed that talks had taken place, but was measured in his assessment of their success.

"Talks took place in Dubai three weeks ago between government officials and Taliban who flew from Doha, but we are still waiting to see the result," he told Reuters.

Two rockets hit Baghdad's Green Zone, car bombs kill 10

BAGHDAD, 5 Feb — Rockets hit Baghdad's heavily fortified "Green Zone", home to the prime minister's office and several Western embassies, on Tuesday and car bombs elsewhere in the capital killed 10 people, police and medical sources said.

One soldier was killed in the rare attack on the Green Zone, which is likely to heighten concerns about Iraq's ability to protect strategic sites as security deteriorates.

The car bombs struck mostly Shi'ite districts, including Shurta, in the southwest of Baghdad, where four people were killed in a crowded market, the police and medical sources said.

A car bomb in south Baghdad's al-Maalif neighbourhood killed two people and three died in a blast in the Bayaa quarter.

In Taji, north of the capital, an explosion near a police patrol claimed another life, police said.

Iran strives to restore normal condition to snow-hit area

TEHERAN, 5 Feb — Iran's troops, relief workers and governmental organs are struggling to restore normal condition to northern part of the country which has encountered unprecedented heavy snowfall and cold weather in the past days.

The governmental administrative organs, Red Crescent workers and armed forces have been dispatched to the north of Iran to help people who have been cut off power and water supply following the heavy snowfall in the past few days, Interior Minister Abdolreza Rahmani-Fazli told reporters after a meeting of Iran's Supreme Council for Management of Crisis on Tuesday.

So far, power current has been restored to about 95 percent of the cities in the north of the country, Rahmani-Fazli said, adding that relief efforts are continuing in Gilan and Mazandaran Provinces in the littoral Caspian Sea.

Also, oil ministry is planning to supply fuel for the region in the face of natural gas shortage, he said.

Farmers and herders who have undergone loss and damage to their properties will be compensated after an assessment of their damages, he added.

The Iranian minister did not elaborate on the casualties and fatalities of the snowfall which started five days ago, but the locals expressed concerns about entrapped people on the roads, far-off villages and remote areas.

US sharply curtails drone strikes in Pakistan

WASHINGTON, 5 Feb — The United States has cut back sharply on drone strikes in Pakistan after the Islamabad government asked for restraint while it seeks peace talks with the Pakistani Taliban, the Washington Post reported on Tuesday.

The Post quoted a US official as saying, "That's what they asked for, and we didn't tell them no." The newspaper said there had been a lull in such attacks since December, the longest break since 2011.

The newspaper said the Obama administration indicated it would continue carrying out strikes on senior al-Qaeda officials if they were to become available or to thwart any immediate threat to Americans.

Reuters was not immediately able to confirm the report. The Post quoted a senior Obama administration official as denying an informal agreement had been reached, saying, "The issue of whether to negotiate with the Pakistani Taliban is entirely an internal matter for Pakistan."

While some Pakistanis welcome the strikes, saying they kill fewer civilians and are more effective against Taliban militants than traditional military operations, others argue the strikes still cause civilian casualties, terrify residents and violate Pakistani sovereignty.

Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has said he wants the drone strikes to end.

The Post said the current US pause came after a November strike that killed Pakistani Taliban leader Hakimullah Mehsud.

That attack took place a day after Pakistan's foreign policy chief Sartaj Aziz was quoted as saying the United States had promised not to conduct drone strikes while the government tries to engage the Taliban in peace talks.—Reuters

China passenger plane tumbles on landing gear fault, no casualties

ZHENGZHOU, 5 Feb — A passenger plane with 44 people aboard nose-dived to the ground during taxiing due to a landing gear fault in central China's Zhengzhou city, airport sources said on Tuesday. All the 37 passengers and seven crewmen were safe, authorities said.

The home-made Xizhou-60 plane tumbled at around 6:29 pm on Tuesday as it was landing at the Xingzheng International Airport in Zhengzhou, capital of Henan Province.

Flight Joy1533, operated by Joyair, was flying in from Taiyuan, capital of north China's Shanxi Province. It was to fly to Hefei in Anhui Province after the stop in Zhengzhou.

All people aboard were evacuated after the accident. The airport was closed after the accident and resumed operation at around 10:30 pm. A total of 114 inbound and outbound flights were delayed, said an airport source.

The front landing gear withdrew accidentally as the aircraft was sliding, causing the nose of the plane to touch the ground, but all people aboard were safe, said an official with the Civil Aviation Administration of China, central and south China bureau.

Work safety authorities have launched an investigation into the accident.

Volcanic ash from Mount Sinabung to reach southwest Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, 5 Feb — A thin layer of ash from Mount Sinabung, a volcano in the western island of Sumatra, is expected to arrive in parts of south-west peninsula Malaysia by Wednesday morning, local media reported on Wednesday. The affected areas could include coastal regions of Negri Sembilan, Malacca as well as Muar, Batu Pahat, Pontian and Kulaijaya in Johor, said Muhammad Helmi Abdullah, director of National Weather Forecast Centre.

He said currently there was not too much ash and it may cause a little haze. An advisory about the volcanic ash had been sent to the aviation industry, he added. The Meteorological Department said in a statement on Monday that volcanic ash from Mount Sinabung could be blown towards the southern states due to a northwesterly wind that is expected to persist until Thursday.

It said the flight operations may be affected and the visibility could be reduced. An official from the Department of Civil Aviation said that flight operations throughout Malaysia were currently unaffected, and the standard operating procedures would be implemented if the visibility would be reduced.

According to Mokhtar Abdul Majid, director of Johor Baru's state Department of Environment, the air quality there will be closely monitored and they had found no problem with the air quality as of 5:30 pm on Tuesday. Fifteen people have been killed by impacts of Sibanung volcano eruption that has been ongoing since four months ago. All of those killed were hit by hot clouds following the eruptions in locations already declared unsafe zones by the authority. The latest eruption happened over the weekend.

Moro rebels in S Philippines deny links with Al-Qaeda

COTABATO, (Philippines), 5 Feb — The rogue group Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters (BIFF) on Tuesday denied that it is working with foreign terror group Al-Qaeda as it gears up to launch attacks against government troops in southern Philippines.

BIFF spokesman Abu Misry Mama said there is no evidence supporting the claim of the Philippine military that two Al-Qaeda members were captured in their camp in Maguindanao Province.

Based on its intelligence report, the military said the BIFF was cod-dling a terrorist, Malaysian Zulkifli Bin Hir, who is also known as Marwan.

There is a bounty of 5 million US dollars on Zulkifli over his involvement in the 2002 bombing in Bali, Indonesia, which left 110 foreign nationals dead.

"We don't have foreigners in our organization. That's a big lie. I think (the military) keep on telling we have foreigners to justify the use of their intelligence funds," said Mama.

The Philippine military launched "Operation Darkhorse" against the Moro rebels on 26 January to arrest BIFF members involved in various crimes such as kidnapping and murder. The military operation left 52 BIFF members dead and 49 others wounded.

Soldiers also overran four BIFF camps and a makeshift improvised explosive device factory in the towns of Ganta, Shariff Saydona, and Mustapha in Maguindanao.

The BIFF, which broke away from the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF), has opposed the ongoing peace talks between the Philippine government and the MILF.

Long-awaited bus service runs on one-month trial in Cambodian capital

PHNOM PENH, 5 Feb — A fleet of 10 buses began on Wednesday a one-month public transport service trial along a single road on Monivong Boulevard in capital Phnom Penh.

The daily service, which costs passengers 1,500 riel (about 0.37 US dollars) for a single trip, will run from 5:30 am to 8:30 pm from the Old Stadium roundabout in the north to Chbar Ampov terminal in the south, stopping 36 times along the 7-km route, according to an announcement.

Each bus can accommodate 35 passengers.

Phnom Penh Governor Pa Socheatvong said the operation of the bus service would help ease traffic jams and improve public order.

"The bus service will reduce increasing traffic congestion in the city and contribute to better public service," he said at the introductory ceremony of the bus service Wednesday. "People will get benefit from this service because the fare is cheaper than other transport services."

The public transit system has been initiated by the Japanese International Cooperation Agency (JICA).

Such service was operated on trial in Phnom Penh Municipality for the first time in 2001, but caught no public interest.

MANILA, 5 Feb — Operatives of the Philippine National Police (PNP) arrested on Tuesday 10 South Korean nationals suspected to be involved in an illegal online gambling operation in the Philippines, a police official said on Wednesday.

PNP Anti-Cyber Crime Group chief Senior Supt. Gilbert Roa said the suspects were nabbed after police raided a posh condominium in Taguig City in the Philippines' capital region of Metro Manila.

Roa said police recovered assorted passbooks, assorted mobile phones, identification cards, assorted documents, laptops, network devices, telephone sets, desktop computers and assorted cards believed to be used in their illegal activities.

He said the suspects are believed to be operating an illegal online gambling business patronized by Korean bettors who make payments online or via credit card.—Xinhua

Justin Bieber gets March trial date in drunk driving case

MIAMI, 5 Feb — Justin Bieber has a trial date next month in Miami for his recent arrest on charges of driving under the influence, resisting arrest and driving with an invalid license.

The 3 March date for the three misdemeanors was set on Tuesday (February 4) by an automated court system. Justin Bieber's attorneys have filed a written plea of not guilty. Initial trial dates are often delayed.

The 19-year-old pop star was arrested on January 23 in Miami Beach after what police called an illegal drag race between two sports cars driven by Justin Bieber and R&B singer Khalil Amir Sharieff.

Sharieff was arrested on a charge of driving under the influence.

Breath tests showed Justin Bieber's blood alcohol content below the .02 threshold for underage drivers. Police say a toxicology test detected marijuana and Xanax in his system.

Justin was previously released after being arrested on a bond of $2500.

For 'Monuments Men,' George Clooney gets surprise German gift

LOS ANGELES, 5 Feb — For the most ambitious of his five films as director, George Clooney assembled a top-shelf cast of fellow actors to play art experts tasked with retrieving artistic treasure stolen by the Germans during World War Two.

There is one person, though, who is not a Hollywood A-lister, not listed in the credits and who may play a big role in the box-office success of "The Monuments Men": an elderly German recluse who hoarded more than 1,400 artworks stolen by the Nazis and valued at 1 billion euros ($1.3 billion).

When actor Bill Murray heard the news in November of the vast trove art discovered in the Munich apartment of Cornelius Gurlitt, he was glad the release of "The Monuments Men" had been delayed by a few months to February.

"This story has had time to resonate and travel around the world, so more people will be aware of the situation," said Murray, who plays a Chicago architect recruited late in the war for a middle-aged Allied unit on a mission sanctioned by US President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The film opens in North America on Friday and will make its international premiere Saturday at the Berlin International Film Festival.

Co-star Matt Damon calls the real-life, contemporary illustration of the 70-year-old problem of Nazi-looted art "fortuitous for the film," but hardly surprising.

"I wasn't surprised at all given what I learned making the movie about all the artwork that is out there that has not been recovered," said Damon, who plays a New York museum director.

Clooney, who also co-wrote and stars in "The Monuments Men," says "it's great that it came out."

German authorities found Gurlitt's cache in 2012, and Clooney calls the recent disclosure of The trio of Priyanka, Ranveer and Arjun is promoting their upcoming movie Gunday extensively.

Priyanka Chopra: Ranveer Singh, Arjun Kapoor are true friends

MUMBAI, 5 Feb — Actors Ranveer Singh and Arjun Kapoor, who act as friends in their forthcoming film Gunday, are also good friends off screen, says co-star Priyanka Chopra.

The movie, set to release on 14 February, is directed by Ali Abbas Zafar.

"It's amazing to see their friendship. I have done a lot of two-hero films and you can make out whether it's true friendship or just show off," the 31-year-old, accompanied by Ranveer and Arjun, said on a dance reality show.

"But these two are actually good friends which is nice to see, especially in a two-hero film, made the film for Ali also very easy," she added.

However, Priyanka says the two are poles apart in real life.

"They are poles apart, very different people. They are completely opposite to their characters in the film. Ranveer is instinctive, Arjun is calm and steady and thinks before doing something. But they both know how to have a lot of fun," she said.—PTI

For Clooney, "The Monuments Men" is "by far, by far" his most ambitious project in a career directing smaller films like "The Ides of March" and "Good Night, and Good Luck."

"I guess it is probably double the budget of any film I have ever worked on, and certainly in scope and size it is a lot bigger," said Clooney.

The film cost $70 million to make, shared by Sony Corp and 21st Century Fox, and is forecast to bring in $24 million in its first weekend in Canada and the United States.—Reuters

Malaysia fines 17 players for match-fixing

KUALA LUMPUR, 5 Feb — Malaysian soccer authorities have found an entire lower league team guilty of match-fixing in the latest scandal to blight the country's corruption-riven competitions.

The Football Association of Malaysia (FAM) on Wednesday confirmed a report in the Star that said 17 players from Kuala Lumpur FA, competing in the country's third-tier FAM league, had been fined 5,000 Malaysian ringgit for match-fixing.

Another five players and three team officials from Kuala Lumpur were handed life bans and fined in December.

The 17 were given lighter punishment because they had been "victims of circumstance," the Star quoted FAM disciplinary committee chairman Taufek Abdul Razak as saying.

"Our investigations revealed that the players had no option ... they were threatened with physical harm by the bookies," Taufek said.

"The players have pleaded guilty and appealed for leniency. So, we decided to fine them because they fixed the matches under duress.

"The players wanted to report to the authorities but feared for their safety.

In fact, some of the players were beaten up for not following the orders of the bookies."

The Star said another five officials at the club, which has suffered back-to-back relegations from the top and second-tier leagues, were expected to be charged with match-fixing.

The paper did not say which games had been fixed. FAM declined to comment further when contacted by Reuters on Wednesday.

Fulham suffer extra-time FA Cup loss to Sheffield United LONDON, 5 Feb—Fulham's abject season reached a new low as third-tier Sheffield United snatched a last-gasp winner in extra time to dump the Premier League side out of the FA Cup 1-0 in a fourth round replay on Tuesday.

United, who are second-bottom in League One, struck through substitute Shaun Miller's header in the 119th minute at Craven Cottage to set up a fifth round home tie with Preston North End or Nottingham Forest who meet in a replay on Wednesday.

Fulham, who prop up the standings and are four points adrift of the safety zone, made wholesale changes to the team that slumped 3-0 at home to Southampton in the league on Saturday but the reshuffle did not pay off on a rainy night in west London.

Nadal recovering well from back complaint, tests show

MADRID, 5 Feb — Rafa Nadal is recovering well from the back problem that wrecked his Australian Open final last month and plans to start training again on Thursday in his native Mallorca, his team said on Tuesday.

World number one Nadal lost to Swiss Stanislas Wawrinka in the Melbourne final, preventing the Spaniard drawing level on 14 grand slam singles titles with American Pete Sampras.

Nadal had more tests in Barcelona on Monday and his team said in a statement they were "satisfactory and showed favorable progress".

"The player began gym work today and a decision on when he is able to start competing again will depend on his adaptation on the court in coming days," they added. Nadal is due to play in a clay event in Buenos Aires starting on 10 February, followed by a tournament in Rio de Janeiro, also on clay, and the hardcourt Masters events at Indian Wells and Miami.

Swansea sack manager Laudrup after league slump

LONDON, 5 Feb — Swansea City have sacked their Danish manager Michael Laudrup with the Welsh club having dropped into a Premier League relegation battle after a dramatic slump in form that has left them two points above the drop zone.

Laudrup, who said that winning the League Cup last season ranked among his proudest moments because Swansea are such a small club compared to the European giants like Real Madrid and Juventus he once played for, now finds himself out of a job.

"It is a decision we have taken reluctantly," said

Swansea chairman Huw Jenkins. "But it's a decision made in the best interests of Swansea City Football Club and our supporters.

"It is the first time in nearly 10 years that the club has parted with a manager in this way, but we had to remove the constant uncertainty surrounding the club and Michael's long-term future with us," he said on the club website (www.swansea-city.net).

Swansea's 2-0 defeat at West Ham United on Saturday was their sixth in eight league games, a run which has left the 12th placed team battling to avoid the drop as they prepare to host fellow strugglers and local rivals Cardiff City on Saturday. Swansea said their club captain Garry Monk, who came on as a substitute in their League Cup triumph against Bradford City at Wembley, will take over as head coach alongside first team coach Alan Curtis for the foreseeable future.

The 49-year-old Laudrup's departure will come as a surprise to many pundits with the promising coach having continued the precise passing game championed by Roberto Martinez and then Brendan Rodgers, who the Dane replaced as manager in June 2012.

Mickelson eyes record-tying fifth Pebble Beach win

LOS ANGELES, 5 Feb — Phil Mickelson returns to one of his favourites venues for this week's Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, bidding for a record-equalling fifth victory before taking a short break from the PGA Tour for family time. The American world number four claimed the most recent of his four titles in the picturesque surroundings of Pebble Beach Golf Links in 2012, and has been largely encouraged by his form so far this year. He tied for second at the European Tour's Abu Dhabi Championship in his first start of 2014 and, though he withdrew after the second round of the Farmers Insurance Open the next week due to back pain, believes he is close to his best. "My game is not far off, even though the score says that it is," Mickelson told reporters, referring to his closing level-par 71 at last week's Phoenix Open where he tied for 42nd.

"It was just a fraction off. My irons were what I struggled with but I drove the ball well, short game wasn't bad, putting wasn't bad. I have to go back to work on my iron play. "The back feels great and I'm looking forward to Monterey (this week)."

Two years ago, Mickelson charged to victory by two shots at Pebble Beach after firing a flawless eight-under-par 64 in the final round and he has long relished competing in the pro-am celebrity event staged on the beautiful Monterey Peninsula.

"It's one of my favourite places to play golf," said the five-times major champion. "It's just a special week. We play three of the most amazing golf courses on tour and all combined in one week."

The $6.6 million event will be played on three courses: the hosting Pebble Beach Golf Links and its sister venues Spyglass Hill and Monterey Peninsula Shore.

US continues urging Cambodian ruling, opposition to resume talks over row

PHNOM PENH, 5 Feb—The United States renewed Wednesday its call for Cambodia's ruling and opposition parties to resume talks over post-election dispute, spokesmen for both sides said.

Scot Marciel, visiting Principal Deputy Assistant to the US Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, made the push during a meeting with Cambodian Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Hor Namhong. "Again, the US encouraged both parties — the ruling Cambodian People's Party (CPP) and the opposition Cambodia National Rescue Party (CNRP)— to return to the negotiating table and talk about how to begin implementing reforms that are necessary for the benefit of the Cambodian people," Sean McIntosh, spokesman for the US Embassy in Phnom Penh, told reporters after the meeting.

According to spokesman for the Cambodian Ministry of Foreign Affairs Koy Kuong, Scot Marciel told Hor Namhong that the US did not side with any party and always supported nonviolent demonstrations in Cambodia. "Scot Marciel urged both sides to resume negotiations in order to seek a peaceful solution to the issue," Koy Kuong told reporters. "He also encouraged the two parties to settle their differences by themselves."

Hor Namhong said the ruling CPP's door is still open for negotiations with the opposition over the dispute. He reiterated that the opposition CNRP should join the National Assembly if it really wanted to debate towards an electoral reform or a re-election.

According to the nation's constitution, the National Assembly cannot be dissolved before a five-year term ends, Hor Namhong said, adding that the opposition's demand for a re-vote or an early election needs to be amended in the constitution. "If there is any amendment to the constitution, it is necessary for both sides to sit down and debate in the National Assembly," he said. "So the opposition should join the National Assembly to debate on these matters." Political row between Prime Minister Hun Sen's ruling CPP and the CNRP, led by longtime opposition leader Sam Rainsy, has persisted since July's election results showed that the CPP won 68 parliamentary seats and the CNRP got 55. Claiming serious irregularities, the CNRP refused to accept the results and has boycotted parliament and held many protests — some of them turned violent — to demand the resignation of Hun Sen and a re-vote.

Mourinho hails rallying call by Chelsea masseur McCulloch

LONDON, 5 Feb — Jose Mourinho hailed a pep talk given to the players by masseur Billy McCulloch after Chelsea wrecked Manchester City's 100 percent home record in the Premier League this season with a 1-0 win at the Etihad Stadium.

Manager Mourinho was widely praised for his tactical masterplan after Branislav Ivanovic's first-half goal secured maximum points for his side on Monday night but the Portuguese was quick to salute the contribution of the masseur.

The wise-cracking McCulloch joined the club in 2001. He is popular with the players, providing a constant source of entertainment behind the scenes at Stamford Bridge, and issued a rallying call before the game against City.

"I didn't speak. It was Billy the masseur," Mourinho told reporters after third-placed Chelsea joined City on 53 points, two behind leaders Arsenal.

"He was screaming ... so much I didn't understand him. The players were clapping - okay, let's go. It was Billy's team talk."

"The last time I spoke to the players was at midday," said Mourinho. "I'm serious, Billy was fantastic. I didn't understand but it looks like the players understood."

Chelsea ended City's run of scoring in 61 consecutive home league games since 2010 as Manuel Pellegrini's team failed to find the net at the Etihad for the first time this season.

The Londoners stifled midfield dangermen David Silva and Yaya Toure with their pressing approach and were also dynamic on the counter attack with Eden Hazard, Willian and Ramires leading the way.

Belgian international Hazard was a constant threat and showed why he is starting to draw comparisons with world greats like Lionel Messi and Cristiano Ronaldo.

"He needs to keep his feet on the ground," Mourinho said of the 23-year-old Chelsea winger. "He still has to improve but he is probably the best young player in the world with legs to go there (to the level of Messi and Ronaldo)."

"Give him time and them." Willian, (Andre) Schurrle, (Mohamed) Salah too. Give them time. They need good results and this result is very important for Gary Cahill, who shone in central defense alongside captain John Terry, described it as a "huge performance" by Chelsea.

"We worked hard. In the second half everyone put in a shift and that's what you need to do when you go there," said the England international.

"Everybody's aware of their home form this season but we put in a great performance and overall I felt we deserved to win the game."

"Obviously they put pressure on us at times. They started the game really well, in the first 10-15 minutes we had to weather the storm but then we came into the game and our attacking players created a lot," said Cahill.

"We hit the woodwork three times, had a few flash across the box and could have had more."
