FY-wise plan on Yangon-Mandalay Expressway under implementation

YANGON, 19 Feb-Yangon - Mandalay Expressway Special Maintenance Group of Public Works are taking responsibility for maintenance of the expressway financial yearwise.

The 202 miles long Yangon-Nay Pyi Taw Expressway was commissioned into service on 23 March 2008. Nay Pyi Taw-Mandalay Expressway section was put into service on 30 December 2010.

Fire preventive measures at Meiktila Markets

MEIKTILA, 19 Feb-Meiktila has three markets namely Zaygyi, Central Market and Padaukmyaing markets. Zaygyi Market comprises 1443 shops of 84 complexes, Central Market 464 shops at 44 complexes and Padaukkyaing Market, 354 shops at 15 complexes. As fire extinguishers, water tanks with 10000 gallon capacity and 7000 gallon capacity have been constructed at the markets. On 17 February, township level authorities inspected markets and viewed systematic keeping fire extinguishers and proper routes for fire trucks. Due to warnings of officials, the market families did not use electricity when they left the market at 6 pm. NLM-018

For the first phase, the expressway ws constructed with 25 feet wide each and it was two-way facility.

Due to growing number of vehicles along the expressway, traffic accidents occur 20 times on average every month. As such, the ratio of vehicles to accident is 15000 vehicles per accident, according to the Yangon-Mandalay Expressway Special Maintenance Group of Public Works.

Thanks to efforts of Public Works and authorities, installation of guard rails, concrete barriers and placing of asphalt contributed to reduction of deaths and injuries in the traffic accidents.

Therefore, Public Works of the Ministry of Construction plans to carry out placing of asphalt, installation of guard rails and concrete barriers and other safety works along the expressway for prevention against traffic accident.

Looking for Syria options, US remains cool to using force

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb — Despite a forthcoming review of options in the deteriorating Syria crisis, the White House on Tuesday signaled that President Barack Obama remains wary of any direct US involvement in the three-year-old civil war.

With peace talks between Syrian President Bashar al-Assad's government and his armed opponents having failed for now, and Russia unwilling or unable to pressure its ally Assad to cede power, US policy toward Syria appears to be approaching a crossroads.

The White House is beginning to take a new look at options in Syria, a process that could take several weeks, US officials have said.

But spokesman Jay Carney suggested that Obama is skeptical about any proposed step that draws the United States into the Syrian civil war, an outcome the US president has studiously avoided.

'We have to examine what the alternatives some might be proposing are, and whether they're in our national security interests, and whether a desire to do something about it could lead us, the United States, to take action that can produce the kind of unintended consequences we've seen in the past," Carney told a news briefing.

Thai protesters rally against PM after deadly Bangkok clashes

BANGKOK, 19 Feb Protesters seeking to oust Thai Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra rallied at her temporary office on Wednesday, but the premier stayed away from the potential flashpoint a day after five people were killed in gunbattles in Bangkok.

A senior security official said police would not attempt for now to retake more protest sites, after Tuesday's "Peace for Bangkok Mission" saw the deadliest clashes since the anti-government demonstrations began in November. Problems continue to mount for Yingluck, after an anti-corruption agency filed charges against her over a soured rice subsidy scheme that has stoked middle class anger and left hundreds of thousands of farmers, her natural

Journalist on assignment deaths total 134 last year

GENEVA, 19 Feb One hundred and thirty-four journalists and media support staff were killed while on reporting assignments last year, most of them targeted deliberately, the London-based International News Safety Institute (INSI) said on Tuesday. Of these, 65 died covering armed conflicts - primarily in Syria, where 20 were killed, and Iraq, where the death total was 16 — while 51 were killed in peacetime covering issues like crime and corruption, and 18 died in accidents.

The total was down from 152 deaths recorded in 2012, but there was an accompanying rise in assaults, threats and kidnappings directed at journalists which largely go unreported, said the INSI study, "Killing the Messenger." The institute, funded by major world news organizations including Reuters, has been issuing the report since 1996. Its main work is providing security training for journalists reporting in dangerous situations. INSI said local journalists were the main victims, with 123 of the dead killed while covering their own country. Of the 20 who died in Syria, 16 were Syrian nationals. "Most journalists were targeted, and shooting was the most common cause of death," INSI said. The report, compiled for INSI by the Cardiff School of Journalism in Wales, showed 85 of the victims were shot.—Reuters

US concerned about Japan domestic demand outlook before G-20 meet

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb US Treasury Secretary Jack Lew expressed concern about the future of the Japanese economy on Tuesday, saying the outlook for domestic demand as a driving force of the ister Shinzo Abe's goveconomy has been "clouded."Lew's comment on Japan was contained in a letter, obtained by Kyodo News, addressed to "colleagues" gathering for the Group of 20 meeting of finance ministers and central bank chiefs in Sydney later this month.

"Japan's economy has been largely driven by domestic demand over the last two years, but the outlook for domestic demand has clouded," the secretary wrote.

that Japanese Prime Min- to hearing about Japan's ernment will properly implement measures aimed at boosting growth that feature structural reforms, deregulation and tax breaks as the "third arrow" of Abe's economic recovery program dubbed Abenomics.

"It is important that the Japanese authorities remain committed to calibrating all three arrows of Abenomics so that the recovery from nearly two decades of subpar inflation remains domestic demand-led," Lew expressed hope Lew said. "I look forward progress in implementing structural reforms that will further drive domestic demand," Lew said. Abe has said he will steer the Japanese economy out of deflation by carrying out a program that has three arrows - a massive accommodative easing policy, a fiscal stimulus and the growth strategy.

WORLD US moves to revive stalled Afghan peace talks

KABUL/WASHINGTON, 19 Feb — The Obama administration is taking steps it hopes could lead to a resumption of peace talks to end the Afghan conflict, including reviving a proposed swap of Taleban detainees held at Guantanamo Bay in return for a US prisoner of war.

According to Western officials familiar with the matter, President Barack Obama's senior aides in late

USTR pledges more transparency over trade negotiations

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb-US Trade Representative (USTR) Michael Froman on Tuesday promised more transparency over trade negotiations with Asia Pacific and European Union (EU) countries.

Froman made the pledge to dismiss domestic concerns that trade deals may cause more job losses and undermine environmental standards in the United States.

Trade has been an important part of US economic recovery and has supported 1.3 million additional private sector jobs in the past four years, said Froman at the Centre for American Progress, a Washington, DC-based liberal think tank.

The Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) and the Transatlantic Trade and Partnership Investment (TTIP) negotiations would further benefit US workers, protect the environment and promote innovation, the representative argued. Xinhua

December resolved to renew attempts to arrange the prisoner exchange with the goal of jump-starting negotiations stalled since last June.

The hope is that the exchange could open the door to more substantive peace talks on Afghanistan's future. Reuters has learned that, to further the initiative, US officials also have held meetings with the government of Qatar, which has played a mediating role during several years of on-andoff peace efforts, officials said. The White House last month sent out a team of officials, including the Pentagon's chief lawyer, Stephen Preston, to Doha to ensure that the Qatari government remained willing to host the Taleban detainees who might be sent there from Guantanamo Bay, the officials said.

Government officials in Qatar reaffirmed that they would support the transfer under the same conditions as envisioned in previous discussions, the sources said. US conditions in the past have included preventing the Taliban members from travelling outside of Qatar. Under the plan, Taleban-linked militants would return US Sergeant Bowe Bergdahl, who was stationed in Paktika Province in eastern Afghanistan when he disappeared under unclear circumstances on 30 June, 2009, about two months after arriving in the country.

In another step toward restarting a peace process, Qatar provided US officials a video showing Bergdahl, which it obtained from the Taleban, to confirm he remained alive despite his more than four years in captivity. News of the video, which US officials said showed Bergdahl appearing to be in "declining health" but not gravely ill, surfaced last month, but the footage has not been made public. US officials said they believed the video was filmed late last year. The Daily Beast website reported last week that the US government had sought the video as proof Bergdahl was still alive. The site also said that a possible exchange of prisoners was part of a US-backed effort to reach an agreement with the Taleban.-Reuters

Mortar shells from Syria land in Golan Heights

JERUSALEM, 19 Feb Two mortar shells fired from Syria landed in the part of Golan Heights occupied by Israel on Tuesday afternoon, the Israeli military said.

The projectiles, which exploded in an open area in the Golan Heights near the "Syrian-Israeli interim border," caused no injuries or damage, said the army statement. Israel's Army Radio said the shells had "likely been erroneously fired into Israel" as Syrian military forces fought rebels across the border. Earlier on Tuesday, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Defence Minister Moshe Ya'alon toured the Golan, a strategic plateau taken over by Israel in the 1967 war, and visited a field hospital set up by the Israeli military a year ago to treat Syrians wounded in their country's civil unrest.-Xinhua

Opportunities growing for professional women to return as part-timers

Токуо, 19 Feb — In Japan, many women quit professional-level jobs when starting families, only to find it extremely difficult to return to similar jobs later on. Through staffing service companies, however, opportunities are expanding albeit as part-timers as small and midsize firms hire such mothers for their expertise. "Here I get to do interesting work involving management. It's almost the ideal job," said 45-year-old Masako Tanaka, who works three days a week from 10 am to 4 pm at Tokyo-based IT venture Whiteplus Inc. Tanaka's previous job was also in the information technology industry. When she first returned to work after her daughter, now 7, was born, she landed a managerial position and was in charge of operations and project

Emperor "generally healthy" 2 years after heart operation

TOKYO, 16 Feb — Emperor Akihito marked a second anniversary on Tuesday of a successful coronary-artery bypass surgery, being labelled "generally healthy" by doctors last month, the Imperial Household Agency said.

The emperor, who turned 80 in December, has osteoporosis but its progression had stopped, according to the doctors serving the imperial household. With anxiety over his heart conditions gone, the emperor can now exercise, giving a positive effect on osteoporosis, they said. The emperor had suffered osteoporosis due to the effect of hormone therapy that followed the 2003 surgery to treat prostate cancer. The latest examination showed that the condition causing brittle bones had not progressed. As doctors did not observe any abnormality in his heart, they determined that no major changes would be necessary for the emperor's public duties' for the year.

Before the heart surgery, the emperor was concerned about a possible heart attack and refrained from exercises, according to a source close to the agency. However, after finishing the rehabilitation following the surgery, he plays tennis on the weekends and walks every morning, the source said. In addition to exercise therapy, taking meals to increase bone density may have helped to halt the progression of osteoporosis, the source said. After an examination in February 2011 found hardening and narrowing of coronary arteries, the emperor underwent the surgery on Feb. 18, 2012 at the University of Tokyo Hospital by a joint team of doctors from the University of Tokyo and Juntendo University. Turkey's Gul seen approving tighter control of Internet, courts

ISTANBUL, 19 Feb — Turkey's president has signaled he will approve new laws tightening controls over the courts and the Internet, bolstering embattled Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan but deepening concerns about free speech and the rule of law.

The two bills, passed by parliament this month and awaiting President Abdullah Gul's approval, are seen by Erdogan's critics as an authoritarian response to a corruption inquiry shaking his government, a bid to stymie court cases and to stop leaks circulating online.

The new law on the judiciary will give the government more influence over the naming of judges and prosecutors, while the Internet bill will enable the authorities to block access to web pages within hours without a prior court order.

The moves by Turkey, which has been seeking membership of the European Union for decades, have raised concern in Brussels, which fears it is shifting further away from EU norms, and unnerved investors in a country whose stability over the past decade has been based on Erdogan's firm rule.

The government says the laws will further democracy by taking back control of a judiciary it sees as in hock to a powerful but unaccountable cleric bent on unseating Erdogan, and by protecting individuals' privacy on the Internet.

Police fired teargas to disperse demonstrators protesting against the Internet law in Istanbul this month, and parliamentarians debating the judicial reforms came to blows on Sunday, leaving one with a broken nose.—Reuters

Israeli military to end night arrests in West Bank

JERUSALEM, 19 Feb — The Israeli military is exploring ways to end its long-established practice of arresting Palestinian suspects in night-time raids across the West Bank, the Jerusalem Post reported on Tuesday.

The move reflects Israel's growing sensitivity to international criticism of its operations in the Palestinian territories. According to the Jerusalem Post interview with Lt-Col. Maurice Hirsch, the Israeli army's chief prosecutor in the West Bank, the military will begin to issue written summons instead of sending troops to apprehend suspects of security-related offenses.

The military has long maintained that arresting suspects at night helps avert violent clashes in Palestinian towns and villages, but the practice has long come under fire from foreign governments and international rights groups who cite ill-treatment of minors and alleged torture and abuse. "We have done daytime arrests. They resulted in wide-scale protests, gun fights and greater danger to both Palestinians and Israeli security forces," Hirsch said, adding, "If we bring a suspect to interrogation without the need for an arrest operation... that is best."The pilot program for the written summons plan comes at a time when Israel is facing growing international condemnation. The report cited a scathing UNICEF report issued late last year that slammed Israel's treatment of Palestinian minors, an unknown number of whom are detained in night-time operations.-Xinhua

Health experts warn of water contamination from California drought

SACRAMENTO, (California), 19 Feb — California's drought has put 10 communities at acute risk of running out of drinking water in 60 days, and worsened numerous other health and safety problems, public health officials in the most populous US state said on Tuesday.

Rural communities where residents rely on wells are at particular risk, as contaminants in the groundwater become more concentrated with less water available to dilute them, top state health officials said at a legislative hearing on the drought.

'The drought has exacerbated existing conditions," said Mark Starr, deputy director of the California Department of Public Health.

The state has helped about 22 of 183 communities identified last year as reliant on contaminated groundwater to bring their supplies into conformance with environmental guidelines, but the rest are still building or preparing to build systems, he said.

The contamination warning comes days after President Barack Obama announced nearly $200 million in aid for the parched state, including $60 million for food banks to help people thrown out of work in agriculture-related industries as farmers leave fields unplanted and ranchers sell cattle early because the animals have no grass for grazing. The California Farm Bureau estimates the overall impact of idled farmland will run to roughly $5 billion, from in direct costs of lost production and indirect effects through the region's economy.

Mothers' voices can help train preemies to feed

NEW YORK, 19 Feb - A pacifier-activated recording of mother singing may improve a premature baby's feeding, which in turn could lead to its leaving the hospital sooner, according to a new study. One reason premature babies sometimes have to stay in the hospital for a while is that they haven't developed the strength and coordination to nurse properly. Babies who can't feed yet stay in the neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) and rely on a feeding tube.

Doctors and nurses usually give those babies a pacifier whenever possible to help them practice sucking, which can speed up the learning process and shorten their hospital stay. From previous studies, researchers know that infants also respond well to certain types of music and that their mother's voice can help increase heart and lung stability and growth and improve sleep.

"People are finding out that the influence of parental voice in the NICU is important, so these results are not surprising," said senior author Dr Nathalie Maitre of Vanderbilt Children's Hospital in Nashville, Tennessee.

"This is yet another example that parents really do make a difference to their babies' development," she said.

The researchers studied about 100 premature babies who had been born between 34 and 36 weeks of development and were relying primarily on a feeding tube (babies are considered full term if they are born between 39 and 41 weeks). All infants got what babies usually get in the NICU, including pacifiers, skin-to-skin contact whenever possible and gradual introduction to breastfeeding. Half of the infants also received five daily 15-minute sessions with a special pacifier device that senses when the baby is sucking and plays a recording of the baby's mother singing "Hush Little Baby."

Infants in both groups gained about the same amount of weight during the five-day study, but those with the special pacifiers tended to eat faster when they could.

Under the memorandum of understanding signed on Tuesday, Dongfeng and the French state will each pay about 800 million euros ($1.10 billion) for a 14 percent stake in a reserved share sale and a rights issue, Dongfeng said in a statement published on the Hong Kong stock exchange website.

Existing shareholders will get warrants entitling them to more stock at the same 7.50 euro price as the reserved issue, a 40 percent discount to their market value, raising up to a further billion euros.

The Peugeot family will see its 25.4 percent stake and 38 percent of voting rights diluted to parity with Dongfeng and the French state, ceding control of the company it founded in 1810 as a maker of tools and coffee mills. Reuters

Antidepressant may help relieve agitation in patients with Alzheimer's disease

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb Antidepressant drug citalopram could help significantly relieve agitation in patients with Alzheimer's disease, but at the cost of slightly decreasing cognitive function and increasing heart attack risk, according to results of a clinical trial released on Tuesday.

However, the drug, sold under the brand names Celexa and Cipramil and also available as a generic medication, might be safer than antipsychotic drugs currently used to treat the condition, according to the study led by Johns Hopkins Medicine researchers that included seven other academic medical centers in the United States and Canada.

Antipsychotics are often used as first-line medications for Alzheimer's-related agitation, but the researchers said they significantly increase the risk of strokes, heart attacks and deaths.

The researchers recruited 186 patients with Alzheimer's disease who showed a collection of symptoms including emotional distress, excessive movement, aggression, disruptive irritability and disinhibition.

In the nine-week study, the patients were separated into two groups. About half took increasing doses of citalopram that peaked at 30 milligrams per day, and the rest took an identical-looking placebo.—Xinhua

France's Snecma targeted by hackers

BOSTON, 19 Feb — French aerospace engine maker Snecma, a unit of Safran, was attacked by hackers who exploited a vulnerability in Microsoft Corp's Internet Explorer, according to a computer security researcher. It was not clear how successful the hackers had been in their efforts to breach Snecma's network, according to the researcher, who has studied malicious software and infrastructure used by the hackers.

A spokeswoman for Snecma's parent, Safran, said she had no immediate comment. The researcher said the malicious software used by the hackers contained code that identified Internet domain names belonging to Snecma. The researcher declined to be identified by name as he was not authorized to publicly discuss the matter. The vulnerability in Internet Explorer surfaced last week, when California-based cybersecurity firm FireEye Inc said that hackers had leveraged a previously unknown security flaw in the Web browser to attack the website of the US nonprofit group Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Microsoft last week advised customers to upgrade to Internet Explorer 11, saying versions 9 and 10 were vulnerable to the type of attacks identified by Fire-Eye. On Tuesday, the Israeli cybersecurity firm Seculert said in a blog post that the IE vulnerability was used to attack a French aerospace company, though it did not name that company. Seculert said the attack likely began on 17 January and that it may still be going on.

According to Seculert, the attack on the aerospace company involved a different piece of malicious software than what was used against the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which suggested a different group of hackers may be involved. The malware was designed to help hackers steal credentials by infecting devices that employees, partners and third-party vendors used to remotely access the French company's network, according to Seculert.

That technique of targeting remote users has been deployed in some BlackBerry, a onetime pioneer in the smartphone industry, has been struggling to claw back market share lost to Apple Inc's iPhone, Samsung Electronics Co Ltd's Galaxy devices, and other smartphones powered by Google Inc's Android operating system.

The Waterloo, Ontario-based company's new line of BlackBerry 10 devices has so far failed to win back market share, and Chen is attempting to reshape the company and focus less on the handset segment, and more on the company's services business. Chen has stressed, however, that the handset business remains a core component for BlackBerry as the company attempts to engineer a turnaround.

Chen called on T-Mobile US to "find a way forward that allows us to serve our shared customers once again."

Hubble space telescope capable of measuring rotation of nearby galaxy

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb – US astronomers have used the Hubble Space Telescope to precisely measure the rotation rate of a neighbouring galaxy for the first time, US space agency NASA said on Tuesday. The study showed that the central part of the neighbouring galaxy, called the Large Magellanic Cloud (LMC), completes a rotation every 250 million years. It takes our sun the same amount of time to complete a rotation around the centre of our Milky Way galaxy.

"By using Hubble to study the stars' motions over several years, we can actually, for the first time, see a galaxy rotate in the plane of the sky," said lead author Roeland van der Marel of the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore, Maryland, in a NASA statement. The researchers said Hubble is the only telescope that can make this kind of observation because of its sharp resolution and its image stability.

"If we imagine a human on the moon, Hubble's precision would allow us to determine the speed at which the person's hair grows," van der Marel explained. "This precision is crucial, because the apparent stellar motions are so small because of the galaxy's distance. You can think of the LMC as a clock in the sky, on which the hands take 250 million years to make one revolution. We know the clock's hands move, but even with Hubble we need to stare at them for several years to see any movement."

For the past century, astronomers have calculated galaxy rotation rates by observing a slight shift in the spectrum, known as the Doppler Effect, of its starlight.

Another face of yours

Looking for your second half? Look for your second self? It is available here on social networking sites, matchmaking sites, dating sites, etc. Today, we spend more time on Facebook than in face-to-face conversations with our colleagues, our friends and our family. The missing link of our presence online is that we are representing ourselves. Maybe it is your second self, but it means at least it is roughly 50% percent of your life.

You have no government to regulate your presence on any social network, though its owner may reserve some privileges to control your posts there under some conditions. You have no police to arrest you for your manners there. But your use of obscene language may be subject to libel charges in some jurisdictions.

You are free on social networks to express your views or opinions on them. But anyone in these virtual worlds are actual human beings with physical presence on this real planet. We merely see any entity on social networks as mere accounts, than human beings. That's why we are witnessing that these social networks catalyzing conflicts in Myanmar and some other parts of the world. Social networks and microblogging sites now cover more than social activities. They are where you express your views openly and you establish your second self. Beware, your outlook is effected by every click.

UN Special Rapporteur on human rights holds press conference

YANGON, 19 Feb-Mr Quintana, the Special Rapporteur on the Situation of Human Rights in Myanmar, held a press conference at the Yangon International Airport on 19 February before he left Yangon.

He said his final visit to Myanmar would help to support the integration human rights elements in the negotiations for peace in Kachin ments are also needed for State. The government's the democratic transition to permission for his final visit was a good gesture to help build trust with the KIO, he added.

During his visit to Laiza, he met with the KIO authorities, including the Chairman and the Chief of Staff, who expressed their willingness to agree on a ceasefire but with guarantees of political dialogue, he said. Regarding the constitutional reform, Mr Quintana said the domestic investigasaid constitutional reform was inseparable from the process of national reconciliation and reform would need to embrace the aspirations of the ethnic communities to have a say over their own future and benefit from the resources held within their lands.

Constitutional amendproceed, he added.

He called for other legislative reforms in Myanmar to accompany constitutional reform to create an environment where the rule of law is established and human rights are upheld.

He also praised the progress Myanmar has made towards greater press freedom.

Regarding the recent conflict in Rakhine State, he tions have failed to satisfactorily address these serious allegations. The Government of Myanmar has shown a willingness to engage with the international community on key issues such as forced labour, economic development and even training in international human rights standards for the police and military, he added.

He continued to say that cooperation needs to extend to one of the most important challenges that Myanmar is facing, which is to address its long history of impunity.

If the President's recently established Investigation Commission on Du Chee Yar Tan fails to carry out an investigation that meets international standards, he will urge the UN Human Rights Council to work with the Government of Myanamr to establish a credible investigation to uncover the truth of what happened in Du Chee Yar Tan, he said.

He also praised the progress Myanmar has made in the release of prisoners of conscience. The importance of human rights standards and principles shaping the process of economic development in Myanmar needs to remain a priority concern, he said. The need to establish the rule of law underlines all of Myanmar's human rights challenges and is integral to the process of democratic transition and national reconciliation, he said.

Mr Quintana expressed his delight for important changes which he had seen in Myanmar throughout his six years on mandate.

He will submit his report on human rights in Myanmar to the UN Human Rights Council on 17 March.-MNA

National Objectives of 69th Anniversary Armed Forces Day

- To uphold Our Three Main National Causes as national policy
- To work on national security by the Tatmadaw joining hands with the government and the entire people
- To cooperate with the government in implementing rural development and poverty alleviation scheme, and
- To actively participate in restoring eternal peace and building a developed democratic nation based on the Union through peace ad stability our patriotic soldiers are regarded as very brave in foreign country,

Always ready to safeguard people's lives and National Brethren in the time of emergency,

Our beloved, respected and honourable Tatmadaw awared well to uphold the policy,

As non-disintegration of the Union, non-disintegration of the National Solidarity,

And perpetuation of Sovereignty, all in three as responsibility.

The hearts of our soldiers are as soften as silk cotton,

Very kind, very generous and very delicacy upon the captured enemy are seen very often,

But, in the battle field under one Commander's voice,

Crushed all destructive elements within the sight, like a lion fight,

Eat, cheese, butter and other luxurious drinks, soldiers of the other Nations fight, But, with a cup of water or a grip of straw or a handful fried rice, Myanmar patriotic soldiers of no fears fight.

So much so bold our soldiers for ever are, Never in History Myanmar yielded if not believe, refer later,

With the strength of State and People, Tatmadaw crushed all destructive elements tirelessly,

People of the mother land seen victories of our beloved soldiers in frequency,

Equipped with the patriotic spirit our Myanmar soldiers are,

They would sacrifice their lives for the country for ever, (In the time of danger), Again, death or victories whichever lies before our soldiers,

They would fight no matter, up to the last bullet as loyal warriors,

Reigned our Ex: Military Elders over the country for 26 years,

Met a lot of daunting challenges and obstacles by others,

Yet, our military administration never declined and even stood tall,

Protected the motherland, citizens, lives and National resources like a great wall, Like a high mountain and as a protector, military government will enter into Myanmar History, Saved the people and the country with honesty and loyalty.

Paved the ways for a modern discipline and flourishing Democratic Nation by our General and his comrades,

Prescribed 7 road maps in anticipation and sought an approval for the State,

As per Road Map Seven there emerged across the nationwide, a landslides approved Constitution,

Formed a Civilian Government in conformity with People's aspiration,

In peace, tranquility and stability whence the Military Government handed over to the Civilians Government all three powers,

There made wonders, astonishment to the Super Powers and Westerners,

For they thought a certain and definite would there be a tremendous Bloodshed while transmission.

Therefore, Myanmar stands tall in the world for not a drop of citizen's blood fell in the Nation,

Our Tatmadaw has shaped the future of Democratic Nation in Peace and Tranquility,

Therefore, the new Government and People are enjoying the fruit of Stability, So, thankful thought and gratitude are due towards Former Military Administration, Therefore, acknowledgement of thanks is MUST to military Government without hesitation.

Never my hand will hesitate to salute my beloved soldiers,

Nor, to those who already sacrificed for the Mother Land as great warriors,

My heart is captivated and equipped with the love upon Loyal soldiers,

Till may bones and flesh turned into fertilizer.

I will always salute you (my soldiers) in deep respect with my right hand,

Until my last breathe comes to meet my END.

Again, I assured you my beloved soldiers of loyalty,

From my tomb, my earnest request to Al-mighty for your nobility.

Our beloved Tatmadaw as now will stay tall forever in the International Community,

My soul from the tomb will salute and pray for your longevity,

Till my soul withered and vanished peacefully from the cemetery to Eternity LIVE BELOVED LONG MY TATMADAW.

World's oldest man reportedly living in India at 117

New Delhi, 19 Feb — The world's oldest man is reportedly living in India. Western Australia may go back to polls for Senate by-election

CANBERRA, 19 Feb — High Court of Australia Justice Kenneth Hayne ruled on Tuesday that the court was unable to declare who was duly elected as West Australia's last two senators in last September's federal election, meaning people in the state may have to go back to the polls.

The Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) petitioned the High Court, sitting as the Court of Disputed Returns, for the election to be declared void, after it lost 1,375 votes during a recount after the September 2013 election.

The initial count declared the Liberals and Labor winners of the first four of six seats. The final two seats went to Zhenya Dio Wang of the Palmer United Party and Labour's Senator Louise Pratt. But the recount narrowly gave the final two seats to the Australian Sports Party's Wayne Dropulich and the Greens' Senator Scott Ludlam.

"All parties rightly accepted that, if the court declares that Mr Dropulich and Senator Ludlam were not duly elected, and cannot declare who was duly elected, the only relief appropriate is for the election to be declared void," the judge said.

He found it was also not possible to declare just some of the seats void and not all of them.

He will hear further argument on Thursday before making a decision. What's most likely to happen is a fresh West Australia Senate election which could be held as early as 29 March.

ABC election analyst Antony Green said a fresh election "looked certain." The court decision has serious implications for the government's legislative agenda, most of which is reliant on the new Senate due to come in on 1 July.

The Abbott government has the most to lose from fresh elections. Both its third senator, Linda Reynolds, and the conservative independent Wayne Dropulich, from the Australian Sports Party, are considered vulnerable. When the new Senate sits, the government needs six cross bench votes to repeal the mining tax and the carbon tax, restore the Australian Building and Construction Commission and pass anything else Labor and the Greens oppose.

Presently, there are eight crossbenchers but the loss of possibly Dropulich and Reynolds would bring great trouble to the government.

Two Koreas prepare to hold family reunions Thursday

SEOUL, 19 Feb — North and South Korea are making final arrangements to hold reunions Thursday of families separated since the 1950-1953 Korean War, with South Korean participants preparing to cross the border to the North's Mt Kumgang resort, according to South Korea's Unification Ministry.

The ministry said 83 elderly South Koreans, accompanied by 59 family members, are due to arrive later Wednesday in Sokcho, a city located on South Korea's east coast near the border with the North, in preparation for crossing it Thursday.

The two Koreas agreed at rare high-level talks last week to hold the reunions at scenic Mt Kumgang from 20-25 February.

The 142 South Koreans will meet with their relatives among some 180 North Korean participants between Thursday and Saturday in the first stage of the reunions.

On Sunday through Tuesday, 361 other South Koreans plan to hold reunions with 88 North Korean relatives at the mountain resort.

The scheduled reunions, the first since late 2010, will come amid heightened tensions over North Korea's opposition to South Korea's annual joint military exercises with the United States, which are set to begin Monday.

Last year, the two Koreas similarly agreed on a date to hold family reunions, but just days before they were set to start, the North postponed them, blaming the South's "war drills" with the United States for ruining the atmosphere.

Singapore's number of active start-ups increases in recent years

SINGAPORE, 19 Feb — The number of active start-ups in Singapore rose by 58 percent over seven years to 39,000 in 2012, Minister of State for Trade and Industry Teo Ser Luck said on Tuesday, citing a study.

The study by the Entrepreneurship Review Committee also showed that the number of successful start-ups have increased, too, and that more youths are thinking of becoming entrepreneurs.

It is widely believed that the more small and medium enterprises an economy has, the economy will be healthier and more robust.

Teo told the parliament that the committee has recommended that the private sector play a larger role in shaping the entrepreneurship landscape. Xinhua

Philippine bourse breaches 6,200 level on positive news

MANILA, 19 Feb — The Philippine stock market breached the 6,200 level on Tuesday as local companies continue to report positive results.

The bellwether Philippine Stock Exchange index inched higher by another 0.42 percent or 26.15 points to 6,193.97, while the broader all-share index climbed by 0.28 percent or 10.60 points to 3,744.21. tive force to prop the market to a third consecutive day of advance," analyst said in his daily stock market comment. The analyst said this was bolstered by

Trading volume reached 2.60 billion shares worth 5.97 billion pesos (133.88 million US dollars) with 89 stocks advancing, 73 declining and 33 remaining unchanged. Of the six counters, only the service sector bucked the trend. "The momentum of the advance over the last eight out of the nine sessions remained intact with earnings providing the motive force to prop the marday of advance," analyst Justino Calaycay of Accord Capital Equities Corp said in his daily stock market comment. The analyst said this was bolstered by the fact that US stocks took a break on Monday as they celebrate the President's Day. "Investors have found reasons to cheer in the latest news cycle - Janet Yellen's statement on the US economy as being on track to full recovery but the numbers are still not strong enough," Calaycay said. Calaycay said investors found firmer footing after the gross domestic product output came out stronger than expected in the fourth quarter even after the country was hit by supertyphoon Haiyan. "The local economy's number is being validated by individual firms' reported earnings for the same period," Calaycay said. Stocks in the 30-company index closed mixed. Among those that picked up were Ayala Corp, Ayala Land, Inc, and Metropolitan Bank and Trust Co.

US whistleblower Snowden wins student role at Scottish university

LONDON, 19 Feb — US the university after receivintelligence whistleblower Edward Snowden has been elected to the post of student rector at Glasgow University in Scotland, one of Britain's oldest universities.

Snowden, living in temporary asylum in Russia after disclosing US government secrets on surveillance programmes and other activities, faces criminal charges in the United States after fleeing last year first to Hong Kong and then Russia.

The former National Security Agency contractor was nominated for the post by a group of students at ing Snowden's approval through his lawyer.

University officials said the computer analyst beat three other candidates in an online vote that attracted a record turnout to win the three-year role of rector at the university, which dates back to 1451.

The rector is meant to represent student issues to university officials but it has previously served a political designation, having been held by Winnie Mandela in 1987 and Israeli whistleblower Mordechai Vanunu in 2005. Chris Cassells, Snowden's spokesman for the campaign, said Glasgow University had a "proud and virtuous tradition" of making significant statements through its rectors. "Today we have once more championed this idea by proving to the world that we are not apathetic to important issues such as democratic rights," Cassells said in a statement.

Snowden, in a statement to Britain's Guardian newspaper, said he was "humbled and honoured" by the vote, describing it as a bold and historic decision in support of academic freedom.

Japanese comic character Doraemon is welcomed by girls dancing the hula at the Bishop Museum in Honolulu, Hawaii, on 15 Feb, 2014. An exhibit titled "Meet! Doraemon: Japan's Time-Traveling Cat," featuring the character, will run through 20 April at the museum.-Kyodo News

Doraemon original drawing exhibition opens in Hawaii

HONOLULU, 19 Feb — An exhibition featuring original drawings of the popular Japanese manga series Doraemon has opened at the Bishop Museum in Honolulu, Hawaii. The event, the first of its kind outside Japan, was organized by Fujiko F Fujio Museum in Japan and other sponsors to mark the 80th anniversary last December of the birth of Fujio, the late creator of the cartoon series.

It displays at least 70 original drawings of comic books, including those made into the movie "Doraemon: Nobita's Dinosaur," as well as a 129.3 centimetre-tall figure of Doraemon, a robotic cat."We want many people to know about the world of Doraemon, which make us feel uplifted when we read it," said Shunsuke Okura, deputy director of the Kawasaki city-based museum. "It is our dream to hold the same event at the Muse um of Modern Art in New York and at the Louvre Museum in Paris."

The event runs through 20 April at the museum showcasing traditional Hawaiian culture and the history of Japanese immigration. The comic series is popular in Europe and Asia. It is not widely recognized in the United States, where the series debuted last year in digital format. Kyodo News

Sharon Stone: I haven't dealt well with the ageing process

London, 19 Feb -Basic Instinct star Sharon Stone says that ageing in the spotlight has not been easy.

The 55-year-old actress, who is on her way to turn sixty, said she has had her down days, reported Daily Express.

"There was a point in my 40s when I went into the bathroom with a bottle of wine, locked the door and said, 'I'm not coming out until I can totally accept the way I look right now.'I examined my face in the magnifying mirror, and I looked at my body and I cried and I cried and I cried," she said.

Sharon Stone feels happy to overcome that phase of her life. "I'm not trying to make myself look like a girl because I'm not a girl anymore. I'm very happy about being a grown woman. I think there's a lot of sexuality and glamour, allure and mystery to being a women that you just don't have when you're young." PTI

Clooney, Damon to attend White House screening of 'Monuments Men'

WASHINGTON, 19 Feb - Actors George Clooney, Matt Damon and Bill Murray attend a screening of their new movie "The Monuments Men" at the White House on Tuesday night hosted by President Barack Obama. The film, directed by Clooney, is based on the true story of US soldiers in World War Two who rescued art masterpieces from Nazi thieves. A member of the original Monuments Men group, Harry Ettlinger, will also attend the screening, along with Robert Edsel, whose book is the basis for the film, and Sara Bloomfield, director the US Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington.

The White House has its own screening room and occasionally invites movie stars and other dignitaries to watch a new film. The "Monuments Men" has received mixed reviews from critics and came in a distant second to "The LEGO Movie" in US and Canadian box office receipts in its opening weekend earlier this month. —Reuters

2014 Sports Illustrated cover models Nina Agdal (L), Lily Aldridge and Chrissy Teigen (R) pose for a portrait in New York on 18 Feb, 2014.—REUTERS

NEW YORK, 19 Feb — Models Nina Agdal, Lily Aldridge and Chrissy Teigen were already at the top of their game, but the trio say anything is possible after gracing the cover of the Sports Illustrated 50th Anniversary Swimsuit Edition that hit newsstands on Tuesday. They joined an illustrious club of former swimsuit models, including Christie Brinkley, Heidi Klum, Elle Macpherson and Tyra Banks, with their topless cover photo that appears in the most widely read edition of the magazine. It will be seen by about 70 million readers in American Teigen, 28. But print and online.

"Doing a Sports Illustrated cover opens so many doors," said Aldridge, a 28-year-old California brunette, who landed the cover in her first shoot for the magazine.

She was already a Victoria's Secret model, the wife of Caleb Followill of the Grammy-winning band Kings of Leon, and the mother of their young daughter when she did the photo shoot last October in the Cook Islands with 21-year-old Danish model Agdal and fellow Aldridge said being chosen for the cover was a huge surprise and an amazing opportunity.

"You really can do anything," she told Reuters in an interview with her cover mates. "You can start a brand. You can build a company. It's incredible."

The group photo of Aldridge, Agdal and Teigen, smiling and arm in arm, posing in bikini bottoms while peering over their shoulders with their backs to the camera, is the first cover since 2006 to have multiple models - and only the fifth in the magazine's history.Agdal is making her third appearance in the swimsuit issue, but the 50th anniversary edition will be her first cover, along with Teigen, who has been in every issue since her debut in 2010.

Although critics deride the annual swimsuit issue, claiming it objectifies women and presents unrealistic images, Teigen believes the magazine is inclusive."There are so many different types of women in the issue. We go down the spectrum," she said.

Classy Barca all but end City's dreams of European glory

MANCHESTER, 19 Feb Barcelona virtually ended 10-man Manchester City's dreams of European glory when they dominated their Champions League last 16 first leg and finished deserved 2-0 winners at the Etihad Stadium on Tuesday. Billed as the biggest match in City's recent history, it all went wrong for Manuel Pellegrini's side after 53 minutes when defender Martin Demichelis was sent off for a last-man lunge on fellow Argentine Lionel Messi who scored from the resulting penalty to put Barca ahead.

It was the first goal he had scored in an away European tie in England -- his goal in the 2011 Champions League final against Manchester United having come at neutral Wembley -- and set the Spanish champions on the way to their first win in an away European tie in England for six matches. Their second goal came in the last minute when Dani Alves collected a pass from sub-SOCHI, (Russia), 19 Feb - Russia marched into the quarter-finals of the men's ice hockey competition at the Sochi Winter Olympics on Tuesday, joining a feel-good Slovenian team, the Czech Republic and a surprising Latvia in the last eight along with the four automatic qualifiers. Despite struggling at times with their offense, the Russians scored twice in each of the last two periods to beat Norway 4-0 and set up a quarter-final clash with Finland on Wednesday.

"It is do-or-die games right now," said Russian forward Alex Ovechkin. "I'm pretty sure everybody on Finland is going to be ready for tomorrow, and we're going to be ready as well."

Alexander Radulov and Ilya Kovalchuk each had second period goals before Radulov scored an empty netter with 67 seconds left then Alexei Tereshenko finished off the rout in the last minute.

Bobrovski Sergei stopped 22 shots for the shutout while Radulov, who also had an assist, enjoyed his best game of the competition.

Slovenia, a country with just seven ice rinks, continued their fairytale run to reach the quarter-finals in their first Olympic appearance in men's ice hockey.

Their 4-0 victory over Austria set up a semi-final with a powerful Swedish team that finished the preliminary round with the best record of the 12 competing teams.

One killed in Colombia military plane crash

BOGOTA, 19 Feb — The Colombian Air Force (FAC) on Tuesday confirmed that a pilot was killed and another aboard injured after a fighter-bomber Kfir crashed in central colombia.

The accident occurred at 16:53 local time (2353 GMT) when the FAC aircraft was on a training mission and then crashed to the ground in Norcasia, a municipality in the central Caldas department, according to Colombia's El Tiempo daily network.

The pilot was killed, and another managed to be ejected from the aircraft and was later rescued and taken to a nearby military medical unit. Investigation is underway to determine the causes of the accident.

In September 2013, a Kfir aircraft crashed near the Magdalena River in Puerto Salgar municipality, located in Colombia's central Cundinamarca department.—Xinhua

ETA likely to announce partial disarmament soon

Madrid, 19 Feb — Spanish separatist group ETA was likely to announce a partial disarmament in coming days, local media reported on Tuesday.

Anti-terrorist sources indicated the move could probably coincide with the scheduled arrival of Ram Manikkalingam, director of the International Verification Commission (IVC), in north Spain's Basque region on Friday.

ETA, which has killed more than 800 people over more than four decades, many as a result of car bombs, proclaimed a unilateral ceasefire two years ago, while the Spanish government insists on permanent dissolution and disarmament of the group.

Relations between the two sides improved after the IVC, an independent group tasked with verifying the ceasefire, held negotiations with ETA leaders last summer in the Norwegian capital of Oslo.

ETA prisoners have recently stated they accept the legitimacy of the Spanish legal system and have admitted responsibility for the deaths in their struggle for Basque independence.

The group said in early February it would not delay making "significant contributions" to the peace process while insisting on a "Basque route" to end the conflict.—Xinhua

Paris Saint-Germain crush Leverkusen 4-0 in UEFA Champions League

Berlin, 19 Feb — Three first half goals for Paris were enough to edge ten men Leverkusen in a one sided affair at outsold BayArena in Champions League's last sixteen on Tuesday.

Paris Saint Germain nearly destroyed all hopes of Leverkusen to grab a berth at the next round as a brace by Zlatan Ibrahimovic and goals by Blaise Matuidi and Yohan lowing Zlatan Ibrahimovic Cabaye wrapped up a 4-0 to double the lead into the win at the first leg on the road.

The visitors from Paris grabbed a bright start as Blaise Matuidi caught the hosts flatfooted when he utilized a through ball by Marco Verratti to beat Leverkusen's custodian Bernd Leno into the far post corner with just three minutes into the game.Subsequently Paris controlled the proceedings on the pitch although they failed to add another goal against wobbling Leverkusen.

The individual class of Paris gave Leverkusen a hard time.

Leverkusen invited the visitors to extend their lead as Emir Spahic conceded a foul play when he brought down Ezequiel Lavezzi inside the box albottom left corner at the 39th minute.

Things changed from bad to worse for the hosts as Ibrahimovic sealed his brace to triple the lead for the "Parisians" just three minutes later.

Matuidi teed up for the Swedish international, whose hammer found the back of the net at the top right corner.After the interval Leverkusen tried to make amendments to make up their weak first half performance meanwhile Paris retracted with their 3-0 lead behind.

However, all their efforts were immediately destroyed with the sent off of Spahic who booked his second yellow card at the 59th minute.

Thus ten-men Leverkusen were unable to put up some resistance since Paris were not done with the scoring.

Ibrahimovic danced Leverkusen's through defence to set up for Lucas Moura, who assisted Yohan Cabaye with the fourth goal of the night in the dying minutes of the game.

"Such a high defeat hurts. It is the third consecutive loss. However, with a man less you are chanceless against such teams like Paris," Leverkusen's director of sports Rudi Voeller said."

We have implemented all what we have planned. I am proud of my team," Paris Saint Germain coach Laurent Blanc said. Leverkusen encounter Paris for the second leg on 12th March.—Xinhua
