Farmers in Pwintphyu Township earn ample income

PWINTPHYU, 3 March—Farmers living in villages across Pwintphyu Township, Magway Region, reaped a great profit by storing paddy harvested in the monsoon period. Paddy brokers rushed to those villages and offered a good price for the products.

Farmers living on the east bank of Mone Creek which flows into the mighty River Ayeyawady put approximately 5000 acres under paddy, beans and pulses, sesame, garlic and onion. Climate change is to be blamed for the decrease in crop output last year. But storage system of the farmers helped them increase their income. "Last year the paddy yield stood at 75 to 90 baskets per acre but the price fell but though the paddy output dropped by 60 to 70 basket per acre this year we eared over K 800000 per 100 baskets. We can say it's a handsome profit." Said a villager. He recounted his experience that he stored the paddy waited for a good price for two kinds of paddy - the special one gets 820000 Kyat per 100 baskets to 830000 Kyat and the ordinary one gets 750000 Kyat per 100 baskets.—Zwe Htet Shin

Japan, N Korea hold Red Cross meeting in China

SHENYANG, (China), 3 March — The Red Cross societies of Japan and North Korea held a meeting on Monday in Shenyang, northeastern China, with government officials from the two countries participating.

Japanese Foreign Ministry officials plan to hold informal talks with their North Korean counterparts on the sidelines in the hope that the contact will lead to resuming bilateral negotiations suspended since November 2012, a month before Prime Minister Shinzo

Abe returned to power.

In the Red Cross meeting, the two organizations were to discuss the possibility of retrieving the remains of Japanese who died around the end of World War II in what is now North Korea.

The meeting brings together Osamu Tasaka, director general of the International Department at the Japanese Red Cross Society, Keiichi Ono, director of the Northeast Asia Division of the Japanese Foreign Ministry, Ri Ho Rim, secretary general of the North Korean Red Cross Society, and Ryu Song Il, chief of the Japanese affairs section at the North Korean Foreign Ministry.

The North Korean Red Cross Society requested the meeting. Since the North's Foreign Ministry has decided to send officials to the meeting, Japan was prompted to do the same. Speaking to reporters Sunday, Tasaka said he does not believe the abduction issue will come up at the Red Cross meeting. There is speculation, however, that it may be taken up if Ono and Ryu meet on the sidelines.—Kyodo News

At least 11 killed in brazen attack on Pakistani court

ISLAMABAD, 3 March — Gunmen burst into a court in a busy shopping area in the center of the Pakistani capital on Monday, killing at least 11 people in a brazen attack likely to shatter any prospect of meaningful peace negotiations with Taliban insurgents.

A loud explosion reverberated across central Islamabad just after 9 am, followed by bursts of gunfire. Police said at least 30 were wounded. A judge was among those killed.

"There was a blast, then there was a lot of gunfire. Gunmen were spraying bullets at everyone," said Faisal Ali, a businessman who witnessed the attack.

No one immediately claimed responsibility, but the attack is likely to show that the central Taliban leadership, which declared a month-long ceasefire over the weekend, is not fully in control of its operations.

Taliban fighters stage frequent attacks around the country, but such assaults are rare in Islamabad, the leafy and hilly seat of Pakistan's government.

Broken glass and charred human remains littered the site of the blast at the F8 market area as residents and police rushed around in bloodstained clothes. A severed leg lay atop the rubble.

Pools of blood and severed body parts were scattered on the floor of several offices. Police said gunmen fired at random targets in the area after the initial court explosion.

Police blocked entry and exit points to the area, a maze of narrow, dusty streets lined with one-room shops and offices.

Camouflaged commandos knocked on doors and secured street corners as they combed through the area for more militants.

"There is one policeman among the dead," local police station head constable Mohammad Yousaf told Reuters.

"We also have unconfirmed reports that two lawyers have died. There is a lot of chaos on the scene right now and things will become clearer soon."

The Taliban, a fragmented group consisting of dozens of smaller bands of militants, said this weekend they would observe a one-month ceasefire to try to revive peace talks and called on all groups to observe it.

Ceremony held for 384 staff joining Nuclear Regulation Authority

TOKYO, 3 March — The Nuclear Regulation Authority on Monday held an initiation ceremony for 384 staff joining from the now-defunct Japan Nuclear Energy Safety Organization to support the NRA with their technical expertise.

The JNES was abolished Saturday and absorbed into the NRA, which is a new organization created in the wake of the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant disaster in 2011.

With the intake, staff at the regulatory body doubled to around 1,000.

NRA Chairman Shunichi Tanaka said during the ceremony that he has "high expectations" for the engineers, especially after the nuclear crisis taught the country the importance of expertise among regulators to strictly monitor nuclear safety.

"We have learned through the Fukushima Daiichi accident that regulators' lack of expertise led them to be captured" by the nuclear industry, Tanaka said, referring to a phrase used in a report on the nuclear accident.

Masashi Hirano, a 62-year-old former JNES official, told reporters after the ceremony that he will work hard to improve the NRA's technical capabilities.

Putin builds up armour near Crimea, Russian assets plummet

KIEV (Ukraine), 3 March—Ukraine said Russia was building up armoured vehicles on its side of a narrow stretch of water near the Ukrainian region of Crimea after President Vladimir Putin said he had the right to invade his neighbor, prompting a sell-off in Russian assets.

Ukraine mobilized for war on Sunday and Washington threatened to isolate Russia economically after Putin's declaration, provoking Moscow's biggest confrontation with the West since the Cold War.

The Russian central bank raised its key lending rate 1.5 percentage points after the rouble fell 2.5 percent to an all-time against the dollar at the opening of exchange trading on Monday, while the MICEX index of Moscow stocks tumbled 10 percent to 1,294 points. Russian gas monopoly Gazprom, which supplies Europe through Ukraine, was down more than 13 percent.

Ukraine's Prime Minister Arseniy Yatseniuk, head of a pro-Western government that took power when former president Viktor Yanukovich, a Russian ally, fled on February 21 after three months of street protests against his rule, said Putin had effectively declared war on his country. A Ukrainian border guard spokesman said on Monday that Russian ships had been moving in and around the Crimean port city of Sevastopol, where the Russian Black Sea Fleet has a base, and that Russian forces had blocked mobile telephone services in some parts of Crimea.—Reuters

Japan hopes for peaceful outcome to Russia-Ukraine confrontation

TOKYO, 3 March — Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe expressed hope on Monday for a peaceful resolution to the escalating confrontation between Russia and Ukraine.

“Japan strongly hopes that the situation in Ukraine will be settled in a peaceful manner,” Abe told a meeting of the government and ruling parties. He added Tokyo “strongly urges all the parties concerned to behave with self-restraint and responsibility, to observe the relevant international laws, and to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine.”

His comments came after the Group of Seven nations on Sunday condemned Russia’s intervention in Ukraine and decided to call off preparations for the Group of Eight summit slated to be held in Sochi later this year.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Yoshihide Suga told a Press conference earlier in the day that “under the current situation, we cannot hold any meaningful discussion even if we get together” at the scheduled summit.

The G-7 leaders said in a statement that they had agreed not to return to the G-8 process “until the environment comes back where the G-8 is able to have meaningful discussion.” The statement was released as a US senior government official said Russia, a G-8 member since 1997, has already effectively taken control of Ukraine’s Crimea region.

Incumbent re-elected in Ishigaki mayoral race

NAHA, (Japan), 3 March — The incumbent mayor of Ishigaki, Okinawa Prefecture, was re-elected Sunday, defeating a former mayor. Independent Yoshitaka Nakayama, 46, who was endorsed by the Liberal Democratic Party and the New Komeito party, won 15,903 votes against 11,881 garnered by Nagateru Ohama, 66, also an independent, according to the municipal election board. The LDP, headed by Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, strongly supported Nakayama, keen to see his re-election after an LDP-backed candidate lost the mayoral race in Nago, also Okinawa, in January.

The main issue in the Ishigaki mayoral race was how to deal with security for Japan’s remote southwestern islands. Nakayama indicated after winning the race that he is ready to discuss possible deployment of the Self-Defence Forces in Ishigaki. Ohama, meanwhile, argued during the campaign that a local referendum should be held before accepting the deployment, saying, “Our island is incompatible with the SDF.”—Kyodo News

Japan’s Holocaust museum to honour Anne Frank’s memory

HIROSHIMA, 3 March — A memorial museum in western Japan will host an exhibit memorializing the 85th anniversary of Anne Frank’s birth.

The Holocaust Education Centre in Fukuyama, Hiroshima Prefecture, will host the exhibition from 15 March to 3 May 3, according to the museum. The exhibition comes against the backdrop of the mysterious vandalism of over 300 copies of Frank’s diary and related books in libraries across Tokyo. Makoto Otsuka, the museum’s director, said that staff had planned the exhibit before the incidents were reported.

Last month, after the destruction of the books first came to light, Frank’s cousin, Buddy Elias, 88, sent Otsuka an e-mail from Switzerland, saying that he was shocked by the news.

When Otsuka phoned him to “apologize on behalf of the Japanese people,” Elias said that he wanted to create an opportunity for people to learn more about Frank.—Kyodo News

Village leader kidnapped by PKK militants in southeastern Turkey

ANKARA, 3 March — A village leader was kidnapped by suspected members of the outlawed Kurdish Workers’ Party (PKK) in southeastern Turkey on Sunday, the military said.

The three suspects were believed to have kidnapped the leader of the Cigli village in the southeastern Province of Hakkari, prompting authorities to launch an operation for his release, the General Staff of the Turkish Armed Forces said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of sympathizers of the PKK clashed with riot police early on Sunday after throwing Molotov cocktails at a bank and smashing the windows of several stores in the Fatih district of Turkey’s largest city, Istanbul, Turkey’s Daily News reported.

A group of PKK supporters torched a bank, setting several other stores on fire, said the report, adding that the group blocked roads with barricades.

Riot police then fired water cannons and tear gas to disperse them.

The Turkish authorities started peace negotiations with the PKK in October 2012, which led to a cease-fire in March 2013, and in May 2013 PKK fighters started to return to their strongholds in northern Iraq.

Venezuela opposition musters thousands for march despite Carnival holiday

CARACAS, 3 March — While many Venezuelans went to the beach to enjoy the Carnival holiday, thousands of anti-government demonstrators marched in the capital on Sunday, trying to keep up the momentum from weeks of protests demanding President Nicolas Maduro resign.

There are no signs that Maduro, who says the protests are part of a US-backed coup plot, could be ousted in a Ukraine-style overthrow despite widespread discontent with soaring inflation and chronic product shortages.

Government leaders have urged Venezuelans to skip the protests and make their traditional trips to the beach during the Carnival holiday. State television was filled with images of packed beaches and smiling holidaymakers.

Opposition marchers that ranged from students to middle-aged professionals and senior citizens filled a square in the east of Caracas to protest problems including 56 percent annual inflation and one of the world's highest murder rates.

"We have nothing to celebrate at the beach," said Carlos Torres, 34, an engineer. "Going on vacation would give credence to the government's version that there's nothing going on." The unrest evolved from sporadic regional protests into nationwide movement after three people were shot dead following a February 12 march. At least 17 people have been killed in the South American nation's most violent unrest in a decade.

G-7 condemns Russia's actions in Ukraine

WASHINGTON, 3 March — The Group of Seven nations on Sunday condemned Russia's intervention in Ukraine and decided to call off preparations for the Group of Eight summit slated to be held in Sochi later this year.

In a statement the G-7 leaders condemned "the Russian Federation's clear violation of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine," adding "Russia's actions in Ukraine also contravene the principles and values on which the G-7 and the G-8 operate."

"As such, we have decided for the time being to suspend our participation in activities associated with the preparation of the scheduled G-8 Summit in Sochi in June, until the environment comes back where the G-8 is able to have meaningful discussions."

The statement was released as a US senior government official said Russia, a G-8 member since 1997, has already effectively taken control of Ukraine's Crimea region.

The G-7 finance chiefs also released a statement on Sunday saying, "We are united in our commitment to provide strong financial backing to Ukraine," which is believed to be teetering on the brink of financial collapse in the wake of its political instability.

Suspected Islamists kill 85 in northeast Nigeria

MAIDUGURI, 3 March — Suspected Islamist militants have killed at least 85 people in northeastern Nigeria, witnesses and officials said on Sunday, in a further setback to President Goodluck Jonathan's military campaign.

Twin bomb blasts in the city of Maiduguri killed at least 46 people on Saturday evening while, around 50 km (30 miles) away, dozens of gunmen were razing a farming village, shooting dead another 39.

The attacks will heap pressure on Jonathan, whose intensified military push to end the Islamist sect Boko Haram's four-and-a-half-year-old insurgency has been running for almost a year.

While the bloodshed has not diminished, the army had at least had some success in confining it to remote rural areas in recent months, so that the attack

Jonathan is expected to run for re-election next year in what is expected to be a close contest.

TEPCO walks tightrope over toxic water buildup 3 yrs after crisis

TOKYO, 3 March — Japan will mark the third anniversary of the start of the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear complex crisis on 11 March, struggling to tackle the buildup of highly radioactive water that is proving to be a major challenge in the decommissioning process.

Just weeks before the anniversary, senior officials of plant operator Tokyo Electric Power Co. were again apologizing for a series of troubles, including the leak of 100 tons of highly toxic water from one of the huge tanks set up at the site.

The direct cause of the incident was wrong valve operation, which caused contaminated water to flow into a tank that was nearly full. But what was more disturbing was how workers had overlooked signs that something was wrong. The incident triggered renewed concerns over TEPCO's ability to oversee the ongoing clean-up.

"If we had acted more watchfully after hearing an alarm warning of a rise in the tank's water level, we would have been able to minimize the consequences," TEPCO spokesman Masayuki Ono told a press conference after the company announced the leak on 20 February, referring to the alarm that went off more than nine hours before workers found water spilling from the tank's

Because the water-level readings showed irregular movements following the alarm and because people on patrol were not able to find any trace of a leak near the tank in the two hours or so after the warning sounded, the utility judged that the water-level gauge had malfunctioned.

But Ono admitted that workers could have noticed the leak sooner had they gone up to the 10-meter-high tank to check how much water it contained or if workers in a control room had paid attention to data showing that the water level in tanks designated to receive the water was not rising.—Kyodo News

Iran hopes to mend trade ties with Japan

hopes to use his upcoming visit to Japan to rebuild bilateral trade relations that have been affected by US and European sanctions against Iran over its nuclear programme.

“Japan has been an important trading partner to Iran, but unfortunately because of sanctions, there has been a sharp drop in our trade relations,” Zarif said in an interview with Japanese media in Teheran on Saturday.

“It is important for us to take advantage of the opportunity provided by the result of development in the international scene,” he said, referring to a deal between Iran and six countries struck in November to curb Teheran’s uranium enrichment in exchange for the easing of tough international sanctions.

WASHINGTON, 3 March — A new federal programme aims to standardize inspection procedures for pet food and farm animal feed produced in the United States, making them safer, the US Food and Drug Administration said on Friday. The Animal Feed Regulatory Programme Standards comprise a series of new voluntary standards for inspections by state and other regulatory programs that oversee the production of pet food and feed for farm animals such as cattle, chickens and pigs.

Concern over the safety of pet food and farm animal feed has mounted in recent years, as discoveries of salmonella-contaminated dog food and livestock feed contaminated with a corn-based toxin led to waves of product recalls and worries about the safety of the US food production system. Pet food is a more than a billion-dollar grain-based business in the United States, while livestock feed accounts for the primary use of the two biggest row crops in the country.

But routine inspection and enforcement practices can differ among the various state agencies responsible for conducting inspections of the companies that make these products, and problems can often fall through the gaps, critics say. The new standards aim to help unify this process, with guidelines that range from on-site inspection protocols at feed plants to how to respond to feed-related illnesses or deaths.

While the program is not mandatory, “the FDA is encouraging state programmes to implement the feed standards because this will build uniformity and consistency among state feed regulatory programmes,” the agency said in an email. Bates, the former Skype CEO in charge of Microsoft’s business development, will leave immediately, technology news site Re/code reported on Sunday citing unnamed sources.

Bates, who has also worked at Cisco Systems Inc, was considered one of the potential CEO candidates to succeed Steve Ballmer, who announced in August that he would retire. ## Japan Oct-Dec business investment up for 3rd straight qtr

TOKYO, 3 March — Capital spending by Japanese companies rose for the third straight quarter during the October-December period, as growth in corporate profits on the back of the yen’s slide prompted the corporate sector to bolster investment, the government said on Monday. Business investment by all nonfinancial sectors for purposes such as building plants and introducing new equipment gained 4.0 percent from a year earlier to 9.44 trillion yen ($93.19 billion) in the three months through December, following a 1.5 percent climb in the previous quarter, the Finance Ministry said.

“Capital spending has been picking up” with the nation’s economy moderately recovering, a ministry official said, but he added some firms are skeptical whether the world’s third-biggest economy will continue to recuperate given a planned sales tax hike in April. On a quarter-on-quarter basis, capital spending, excluding investment in software, fell a seasonally adjusted 0.3 percent from the July-September period, down for the second consecutive quarter, the ministry said. The data will affect revisions to Japan’s economic growth figures, with the Cabinet Office set to release revised gross domestic product data for the same period on 10 March.

Real GDP is expected to be downgraded to an annualized real 0.8 percent growth from a 1.0 percent expansion, with capital spending downwardly revised to a 0.7 percent rise from a 1.3 percent increase, said Takeshi Minami, chief economist at the Norinchukin Research Institute. Prime Minister Shinzo Abe’s government decided to implement a 5.5 trillion yen stimulus package to cushion the negative impact of the 3-percentage-point tax hike to 8 percent. The tax measure, however, could still hurt consumer spending and stifle the nascent economic recovery, making the corporate sector reluctant to beef up business investment, which Abe views as a pillar of growth, analysts said.

“Concerns are likely to intensify that Japan’s economy may not be able to gain momentum and completely overcome deflation,” a major focus of the premier’s policies dubbed “Abenomics,” Minami said. A preliminary GDP report was released on 17 February. Capital spending accounts for around 15 percent of Japan’s GDP. Monday’s reading showed business investment by manufacturers increased for the first time in five quarters, up 0.7 percent from a year earlier to 3.08 trillion yen, and nonmanufacturers logged a 5.7 percent rise to 6.36 trillion yen, up for the third straight quarter.

Interview with Mr. Sihasak Phuanketkeow

Q: Which ways do you find to enhance connectivity, transport, trade, tourism with Myanmar?

A: Thailand and Myanmar are immediate neighbours, so trade, tourism, transport and connectivity development between the two countries are of great importance. Thailand attached much importance to the relations with Myanmar because Myanmar is our immediate neighbour and we share a long border and we support to the process of the political reforms in Myanmar.

Connectivity is a key to more trade, more investment and more integration. So we have been trying utmost for strengthening economic connectivity in terms of physical connectivity and in terms of harmonizing rules and regulations so that we have cross border flow of good, people and goods. For example, we are opening more border check points along the border between the two countries.

Thailand is helping with construction of roads along the border such as the road from Maesok to Myawaddy, later on to-Mawlamyine.

Development of border trade, Thai will open more check border checkpoints for the border trade development can create job opportunities. Moreover, seaport is important to Thai and Myanmar as well as the region.

We are constructing the Maesok-Myawaddy-Kawkareik almost road. This also creates job opportunities and prosperity along the border.

The important project is Dawei deep sea port project and this is special potential southern economic corridor. This project is great importance to Myanmar, to Thailand and also to the region. Even countries likes Japan are very interested in it and in becoming a partner. They need some more time. There would be industrial estate, petrol chemical and manufacturing industries projects. All these projects are related to enhancing connectivity.

Q: To which extent, this summit can contribute to public health of Myanmar?

A: For this summit, we believe that BIMSTEC should be more than just economic cooperation. Economic cooperation is very important but how do we bring the benefits in the BIMSTEC cooperation to the people about the region.

There are many issues including poverty eradication, education and health. Health is the very important issue. When we open up the border, we have both opportunities and problem crossing the border. One challenge is pandemic. So we need to cooperate more closely on health. In the case of Thailand, universal health coverage system and everyone has health access to affordable medical care and treatment. So, we want to share our experiences with other BIMSTEC countries especially with Myanmar. We also want to see more cooperation in all areas concerned helpful for people. This is the priority issue of Thailand. Because we'd like to make BIMSTEC more people

Q: Can this meeting pave the way for fighting transnational crimes by bilateral cooperation?

A: We open up the border and we become more connective and we benefit and promote trade and investment. We also have to deal with the negative sides of being more connective. One of the negative sides is transnational organized crime. We have to cooperate more and transnational organized crime is the one of the important issue in this upcoming summit. We have a convention on counter terrorism and convention against the transnational organized crime and all of us have already signed the convention. Thailand have signed and every one want to proceed the ratification We can have to work more closely within BIMSTEC on counter terrorism and transnational organized crime. At the bilateral cooperation, we have to work closely with Myanmar to dealt with transnational organized crime is related to drug, human trafficking. Because this is very important issue for Thailand and bilaterally and regionally important issue for BIMSTEC and we need to work more closely.—Thadin Lulin

Three R's

Every day, we throw away packaging materials, food and drink cans, glass bottles, and plastic metal. The three R's - reduce, reuse and recycle - all help to cut down on the amount of waste we throw away. Reducing the amount of waste you produce is the best way to help the environment. We should buy products that don't have a lot of packaging. We can reduce waste by using a computer, save energy by turning off lights that you are not using, save water by turning off the faucet. Some ways to reduce the environmental damage caused by cars include walking, taking the bus, or riding your bike instead of driving. Instead of throwing things away, we need try to find ways to use them again. It makes economic and environmental sense to reuse products. Many of the things we use every day, like paper bags, soda cans, and milk cartons, are made out of materials that can be recycled. Recycled items are put through a process that makes it possible to create new products out of the materials from the old ones. Plastic containers and reusable lunch bags are great ways to take your lunch to school and office without creating waste. The schools need to create recycling awareness clubs in order to give young students an insight on recycling and encourage students to not only recycle at school, but at home as well. Everyone can help save natural resources, energy, and money by following the three R's.

After vacating Bangkok's streets, Thai protesters look to courts

BANGKOK, 3 March — Anti-government protesters in Thailand have retreated to a central Bangkok park, freeing up traffic after blocking big intersections for more than a month, but Thailand's four-month political crisis looks no closer to a solution.

The protesters, who moved to Lumpini Park over the weekend after orders from protest leader Suthep Thaugsuban, are now banking on judicial intervention from courts hostile to Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra to bring down her government.

"Bangkokians are able to go to work more easily but the state of play in Thailand has not changed since protesters scaled back," said Siripan Nogsuan Sawasdee, a political analyst at Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok.

"He (Suthep) realizes that the fate of the government won't be determined by his group but lies in the hands of independent organizations — the anti-corruption body and the courts."

Demonstrators seeking to overthrow Yingluck took to the streets in November and have since blocked government offices and, in January, set up camp at major traffic intersections in Bangkok.

They want Yingluck to resign to make way for an appointed "people's council" to overhaul a political system they say has been taken hostage by her billionaire brother and former premier, Thaksin Shinawatra. Yingluck faces several legal challenges, the most significant being negligence charges for mishandling a disastrous rice subsidy scheme.

The scheme paid farmers above the market price and has run out of funds, prompting farmers — normally the prime minister's biggest supporters — to

Abe aims to push N Korea on abduction issue at bilateral talks

TOKYO, 3 March — Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Monday Japan will press North Korea to work toward a possible solution to the issue of abductions and other bilateral concerns, as diplomats from the two countries are expected to hold talks in China.

"We will make thorough efforts to elicit a positive response from North Korea," Abe told a meeting of the government and ruling parties, referring to North Korea's abductions of Japanese nationals in the 1970s and 1980s.

The comment came as the Red Cross societies of Japan and North Korea held a meeting in Shenyang, northeastern China, with government officials from the two countries participating.

Japanese Foreign Ministry officials plan to hold informal talks with their North Korean counterparts on the sidelines in the hope that the contact will lead to a resumption of bilateral negotiations suspended since November 2012, a month before Abe returned to power.

Cambodia's Prince Ranariddh to return to politics

PHNOM PENH, 3 March — Cambodian Prince Norodom Ranariddh, a son of the late King Norodom Sihanouk, has decided to return to politics and plans to form his new party within the next two weeks, his aide said on Monday.

Norarith Anandayat told Kyodo News that the prince, who hopes to mobilize royalists and Sihanoukists to "save" the country, will announce his intentions in a meeting with old supporters on 16 March, at which they will also formulate plans for the new party. Since last July's general election, the two parties that won seats in the National Assembly — the ruling Cambodian People's Party of Prime Minister Hun Sen and the opposition Cambodia National Rescue Party of Sam Rainsy and Kem Sokha — have remained at loggerheads, with the opposition party boycotting all sessions of the assembly and continuing to protest the official election results.

Anandayat said that the new party will be named "The Community of Royalist People's Party" and that he is now preparing to submit paperwork to the Interior ministry around middle of this month to register it as a political party. Ranariddh, who once headed the royalist FUNCINPEC party, announced his resignation from politics in August 2012.

The 70-year-old prince has since been acting as supreme privy councilor to King Norodom Sihamoni, his half-brother.

Iditarod mushers begin dog-sled trip across Alaskan tundra

NEW YORK, 3 March — Nearly 70 competitors from around the world set off from a frozen lake on Sunday to challenge reigning Iditarod champion Mitch Seavey at the true start of Alaska's famed and grueling sled-dog race.

The nearly 1,000-mile (1,600-km) Iditarod Trail

Sled Dog Race kicked off a day earlier when 69 mushers and their canine teams made a ceremonial jaunt through Anchorage.

The business end of the race began in Willow, a small community about 50 miles north of Anchorage, where the teams embarked in a journey across the Alaskan tundra that the fastest will compete in a little over nine days.

After Willow, the next checkpoint was 42 miles away at the tiny settlement of Yentna Station, with Danny Kaduce reaching it the quickest time and then setting off for the next checkpoint.—Reuters

Taleban inmates freed on forged letter from jail in S Afghanistan

KABUL, 3 March — A dozen of Taliban detainees have been released from Kandahar prison on faked letter, a local newspaper reported on Monday. "Twelve high profile Taleban inmates have mistakenly been freed from the central jail in Kandahar with falsified documents," citing police, the English paper Daily Outlook writes in its Monday edition.

Quoting deputy police chief of Kandahar, Rahmatullah Atrafi, the newspaper added that a letter from the Attorney's office had ordered the release of 16 prisoners who had their jail terms served but later it appeared that the letter bore fake signature of the Attorney. A local official in Kandahar on the condition of anonymity confirmed the release of the inmates and told Xinhua that the wardens of the jail, after receiving a fake letter claiming to be from the national intelligence agency, set free 12 detainees on Saturday.

It is not the first time that Taleban detainees made their escape from Kandahar prison. Previously in 2008 and 2011 more than 1,500 Taleban detainees had made their good escapes from Kandahar central jail respectively.—Xinhua

Magic moments help City sink Sunderland in League Cup final

LONDON, 3 March — Two moments of magic inside two second-half minutes helped Manchester City avoid a second successive Wembley meltdown on Sunday as they landed the season’s first silverware with a 3-1 victory over Sunderland in the English League Cup final. Memories of last season’s FA Cup final defeat by relegation-bound Wigan Athletic were re-surfacing as Manuel Pellegrini’s side trailed to Fabio Borini’s clinical 10th-minute strike.

This time, however, City’s slickers showed their pedigree with Yaya Toure’s spectacular curling shot and Samir Nasri’s piledriver turning the final on its head. Relegation-threatened Sunderland continued to dream of a first piece of silverware since their epic 1973 FA Cup final defeat of Leeds

United with an impressive response before Jesus Navas finished them off in the 90th minute. It was City’s first League Cup title since 1976 and keeps alive their hopes of an unprecedented domestic treble in Pellegrini’s first season — but it was never straightforward.

“Maybe what happened last year at Wembley was in their minds in the first half,” Chilean

Pellegrini, who picked up his first major trophy as a European coach after a lengthy but fruitless spell in Spain, told reporters. “But the important thing was to calm the players and let them trust in what they can do.”

With City in the last eight of the FA Cup and six points off the top of the Premier league with two games in hand, Pellegrini said capturing the League Cup could prove pivotal.

“This gives us a lot of confidence to go forward,” he said. “If you have a chance to win a title and don’t, it affects you. We are the only club to have the chance to win all the trophies and for a big club, one trophy is never enough.” Sunderland manager Gus Poyet shrugged off the defeat, saying there was little his team could have done.

Hokkaido residents make new sport out of shoveling snow

SAPPORO, 3 March — The president of a consulting firm in Otaru, Hokkaido, has established a nationwide association to promote snow shoveling, with the aim of turning the work of shoveling snow into a seasonal sport. The first international competition took place in the city in January and attracted 80 participants from 10 countries, including exchange students at local universities.

“Aging communities in snow-heavy regions lack the human resources to shovel snow, and face the risk of sliding accidents and of transportation being cut off,” said Hiroyuki Matsushiro, 51. “But I expect snow shoveling to become a tourist attraction some day.” He got the idea from a Tokyo-based organization that stages a regular competition for collecting trash rather than considering it volunteer work.

Henley wins Honda Classic in four-way playoff

CARY, (NC), 3 March — American Russell Henley emerged as the last man standing to win his second PGA Tour title in a four-way playoff for the Honda Classic at Palm Beach Gardens in Florida on Sunday. Henley, 24, birdied the first extra hole, the par-five 18th, from two feet in fading light to edge out Northern Irishman Rory McIlroy, American Ryan Palmer and Scotland’s Russell Knox on a dramatic afternoon at PGA National.

McIlroy surrendered a big lead with an error-strewn 74 in the final round, though he made a birdie at the 72nd hole to qualify for the playoff after hitting a superb second shot to 11 feet, only to miss the eagle putt. Henley (72), Palmer (69) and Knox (71) also made mistakes over the closing stretch to finish level with McIlroy at eight-under-par 272. Henley sounded as if was still in shock as he spoke of his victory. “I hope I can have a bunch more Sundays just like that in my career,” he told Golf Channel. “It was a rush to be out there playing with Rory and the crowd.”

“I’ve never been part of a crowd so big cheering for me. It was an amazing feeling. It was so much fun.” Henley appeared to have thrown away a chance of winning when he dunked his six-iron into the water at the par-three 15th for a double-bogey. But he steadied his apparently sinking ship with pars on the final three holes, which was enough to make the playoff.

Nadal to team-up with Sampras for Mumbai in new league

MUMBAI, 3 March — World number one Rafa Nadal will team up with 14-times major champion Pete Sampras for Mumbai in the inaugural International Premier Tennis League (IPTL) later this year, tournament organizers said on Sunday. Serena Williams, the top-ranked women’s player, will headline the Singapore team alongside Tomas Berdych and Andre Agassi in the off-season tournament from November 28 to December 14, which is styled on cricket’s franchise-based Indian Premier League.

Four teams — Bangkok and Dubai being the others — will compete in men’s and women’s singles, men’s and mixed doubles and a men’s legends singles with one set per match, and no advantage scoring. Serb Novak Djokovic and former women’s number one Caroline Wozniacki will lead Dubai while Britain’s Andy Murray, Frenchman Jo Wilfried Tsonga and Victoria Azarenka of Belarus were picked by Bangkok when the teams were drafted on Sunday in Dubai. The 2014 season will feature 24 matches across the four host cities with all four teams competing in a round-robin format in each of the four cities, organizers said.

Karzai says Afghan war not fought in his country's interest

WASHINGTON, 3 March — Expressing “extreme anger” toward the US government, Afghan President Hamid Karzai said in an interview with the Washington Post that the war in Afghanistan was not fought with his country's interests in mind.

“Afghans died in a war that's not ours,” Karzai said in the interview published on Sunday, just a month before an election to pick his successor.

He was quoted as saying he was certain the 12-year-old war, America's longest and launched after the attacks of 11 September, 2001, was “for the US security and for the Western interest.”

Karzai's refusal to sign a security deal with Washington that would permit foreign troops to stay in Afghanistan beyond this year has frustrated the White House, and President Barack Obama has told the Pentagon to prepare for the possibility that no US troops will be left in Afghanistan after 2014.

Obama told Karzai in a phone call on Tuesday he had given the order to the Pentagon. The phone call was the first substantive discussion between the two leaders since June.

But staking out a new position, the White House said in a statement it would leave open the possibility of concluding the bilateral security agreement later this year.

“It's good for them to sign it with my successor,” Karzai told the Post. He has insisted the United States must jump-start peace talks with Taliban insurgents and end raids and strikes on Afghan homes before he signs the deal.

The NATO-led force in Afghanistan has a current strength of more than 52,000 soldiers, including 33,600 US troops. More than 3,400 coalition forces have been killed in the fight against the Taliban, including more than 2,300 US troops.

While Afghanistan's police and army are seen as having made big strides in their ability to fight militants, doubts remain about whether they can keep a still-potent Taliban at bay, especially in remote areas.

Draw in Madrid derby allows Barca to close gap at top of La Liga

MADRID, 3 March — Atletico and Real Madrid produced 90 minutes of high-adrenaline tension in their vital BBVA Primera Liga clash which was the standout game of the weekend in Spain. In a game littered with foul, dives and bad-tempered moments which saw Atletico assistant coach Mono Burgos sent off and then need to be physically restrained by other members of the Atletico bench, Real Madrid took the lead after 2 minutes.

Recent history indicted that they would then probably go on to a comfortable win, but Atletico reacted magnificently and by halftime they were ahead thanks to goals from Koke and Gabi Fernandez, whose shot from virtually his own backyard fizzed past Diego Lopez in the Real Madrid goal. Both sides had penalty appeals turned down in a difficult match for referee Delgado Ferreiro, and Atletico paid for Diego Costa's failure to convert a chance when clean through on goal when Cristiano Ronaldo equalized with eight minutes remaining.

The result means Real Madrid remain three points clear of Atletico, but gave Barcelona the chance to close the gap on the top of the table to just one point with a win at home to Almeria. Barca started brightly and quickly took a 2-0 lead thanks to a Messi free kick and a goal from Alexis Sanchez, but Almeria pulled a goal back as Angel Trujillo took advantage of Barca's habitual inability to defend corner kicks.

The second half saw Barca once again look far from convincing, but Carles Puyol made the points safe from close range after Messi had headed against the crossbar following a corner eight minutes from time and a fine curling shot from Xavi Hernandez assured a 4-1 win that was not as convincing as the score suggests.

Athletic Club Bilbao strengthened their grip of fourth place with a 4-0 victory over Granada on Friday night thanks partly to a magnificent hat-trick from striker, Aritz Aduriz and a late strike from Carlos Gurpegui. Athletic were then able to enjoy as their two closest rivals, Villarreal and Real Sociedad dropped points.

Pakistan suspends airstrikes after Taliban ceasefire

ISLAMABAD, 3 March — Pakistani government announced Sunday it is suspending airstrikes against the Taliban militants a day after they announced a unilateral one-month ceasefire. Airstrikes on the Taliban positions were launched last month in Waziristan and Khyber tribal regions following Taliban attacks and a deadlock in the peace process. Military officials had said the airstrikes had killed dozens of militants.

“The government has decided to suspend airstrikes after the Taliban's unconditional ceasefire,” Interior Minister Chaudhry Nisar Ali Khan said.

The Taliban spokesman, Shahidullah Shahid, while announcing the ceasefire on Saturday had also called upon the government to give a positive response. “We consider the Taliban decision to stop violent actions as a positive progress,” the Interior Minister said in a statement.

He however said the government and the army will have the right to respond to any incident of violence. “The security forces had launched targeted strikes only in response to attacks,” Khan said, adding the government has not conducted any military operation after it has taken over in June last year.

Official sources said the decision was taken after Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif discussed the issues with all stakeholders and party leaders.

The prime minister had started consultations about a response to the Taliban's ceasefire late Saturday and the process continued on Sunday. He also presided over a high level meeting in Lahore on Sunday to evolve consensus on the issue. The prime minister was happy at the Taliban decision and was thinking of declaring a ceasefire on part of the government too, the sources said.—Xinhua
