

Myanmar Railways promises to complete new Insein flyover construction in 2014-2015 FY

By Ye Myint

To avoid a traffic bottleneck at the busiest junction in Insein Township which is part of Yangon's suburban area, Myanmar Railways will construct a new flyover that will run parallel to the old one, Insein railroad crossing bridge, with the construction scheduled to finish in April 2015, according to MR's bridge depot.

As preliminary engineering works have now started with an initial budget allocation of K 0.5 billion, the new flyover construction will be completed before the end of the 2014-2015 fiscal year, U Myo Zaw Too, senior engineer of MR's bridge depot told The New Light of Myanmar on Friday.

He continued to say that the flyover with the 1,557-foot main bridge and 598-foot side bridge is estimated to have a total cost of K 6 billion. There will be two lanes on the main bridge with 34 feet in width, while the side bridge with 22 feet in width and the old bridge that has a two-lane motorway will serve as one-way roads, he added.

According to the Senior Engineer who is in charge of the bridge depot, Myanmar Railways will be responsible for preliminary engineering and pre-stressed concrete girder construction while the remaining construction works will be under supervision by the Yangon Region government that will invite tender in August or September before Parliament approves K 5.5 billion in additional budget for the flyover in November.

Regarding the advantages of this flyover construction compared to other bridge constructions, he explained that the railroad crossing flyover can withstand 72 tons of loads as first advantage while other bridges have capacity to withstand only a 60-tonne load. It is because the PC girder is designed to withstand a locomotive weighing 72 tons. As second advantage, there will be bridge construction-caused traffic congestion for about one and half month only at the junction of Lanthit and Mingyi streets and Baho road during the six-month construction period as 75 per cent of the whole construction site is included in the MR's property, he voiced.

Upon completion of the new railroad crossing flyover on the roads leading to the downtown area on one side and Hlinethaya Township on the other side, traffic delays at one of the busiest junctions of Insein Township will be reduced to a certain extent and there will be smooth and speedy flow of traffic on the old bridge on which vehicles are often left stranded during rush-hour traffic, the official said.

The old bridge crossing the railroad is 1,245 feet and nine inches long and 34 feet wide. The bridge built in 1989 by Myanmar Railways with a total cost of K 19.65 million is serving as an entry-exit for local people in the populous area of the township.

Dangers of bird flu and prevention of outbreak in Myanmar discussed at workshop in Yangon

By Khaing Thanda Lwin

YANGON, 20 June— Myanmar people should continue to take measures to prevent an outbreak of the influenza A virus subtypes H7N9 the H5N1, said Dr Wah Wah Han, Country Coordinator of the Prevent Project on Friday at a workshop for media orientation in Yangon, stressing that there have never been any known cases of H7N9 in Myanmar and no outbreak of H5N1 in 2013.

The project was arranged by the Myanmar Livestock Federation, US-AID and Australian AID and aimed at ensuring prevention and control of H5N1 and H7N9 and giving a key message to communicate to the media, she added.

The Vice President of the Myanmar Livestock Federation-MLF Dr Hla Hla Thein said the H7N9 virus can be controlled if it occurs in the country as Myanmar does not have "a larger amount of poultry than other countries".

Dr Wah Wah Han said plans are underway to conduct 3-day courses for farmers in five townships including Amarapura, Myingyan and PyinOoLwin of Mandalay Region.

The Course for media persons in Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw will also be conducted soon.

The project also focuses on providing knowledge to rural health assistants and consumers.

During the workshop, the participants also discussed how to protect public health through all forms of media such as broadcast, print and social media.

One of the participants gave advice on how to provide education on prevention against the disease at waiting areas such as bus-stops.

Dr Mya Han, President of MLF, said the country needs advanced technology for the development of the livestock breeding sector in addition to promotion of health care services.

Avian Influenza (AI), commonly called bird flu, is an infectious viral disease of birds. Most avian influenza viruses do not infect humans, however some including H5N1 and H7N9, have caused fatalities in other countries. The new type of virus H7N9 was found in Myanmar's neighbouring country China in 2013, with the outbreak leading to the death of 44 patients. Up to now, no evidence has been found that avian influenza can be spread from person to person.—NLM

Western tourist narrowly escapes attack in Ngwehsaung

NGWEHSAUNG, 20 June—A female tourist from the Netherlands was nearly attacked in her bungalow in the beach resort of Ngwehsaung, after a local man broke into her room at night, with the traveller escaping a possible assault by screaming for help.

The Ngwehsaung tourist police said that during rainy season many hotels are closed and those remaining open often run with only half-staff capacity, leading to a decline in security.

Police said that last year, a Polish tourist was robbed my two men while out taking a stroll along the beach in the evening. Tourists are advised to leave valuables with the hotel manager and female solo travellers are advised to seek the company of other tourists, especially during off-season.

Ngwehsaung is a popular beach destination, about a 6-hour bus drive from Yangon, and has seen a huge increase in foreign tourists over the past three years.

High prices of farming cattle creates problems for farmers: Lower House debate

NAY PYI TAW, 20 June — Peasant farmers in Myanmar are having trouble due to the doubling prices of farming cattle, according to Representative U Ko Gyi of the Lower House.

The lower house representative raised the question concerning measures taken by ministries concerned to tackle the problem at the ninth session of the Lower House on Friday.

Peasant farmers in Myanmar depend heavily on farming cattle for plowing their land and thrashing rice paddy.

In his response to the question, Union Deputy Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation U Ohn Than said his ministry, in cooperating with other departments, has been taking legal actions against transporting farming cattle to other regions without permission.

Other measures taken to solve the problem include registration of cattle and cattle farms, crackdown on smuggling of farming cattle, training farmers to breed farming cattle and offering loans for farming cattle and agricultural machinery, the union deputy minister said.

Other questions raised at the Friday session of the Lower House included agricultural loans for farmers and conservation of the Bilin River in Mon State.

The Lower House session also approved the bill amending the Anti-corruption Law.

At the Upper House session on Friday, questions raised were concerned with protection of Myanmar migrant workers abroad, electrical workshop training for students of Myanmar Maritime University and manufacturing phosphate and potash chemical fertilizers in Myanmar.

Heavy rains, floods hit Bulgaria; 10 people killed

SOFIA, 20 June — Torrential rains and floods hit Bulgaria on Thursday, killing at least 10 people, cutting off electricity, blocking roads and sparking evacuations, officials said.

Heavy rainfall in the Black Sea resort city of Varna triggered a flood wave late on Thursday in one of its low-lying suburbs that killed at least 10 people, the mayor of Varna told the national radio.

TV footage showed smashed cars on top of each other on the streets of the suburb, where a state of emergency was declared.

Russia plan to boost Syria aid 'not good enough' yet

UNITED NATIONS, 20 June — A Russian proposal to open four border crossings into Syria for aid deliveries from Turkey, Iraq and Jordan “is not good enough” and needs more work to be included in a draft UN Security Council resolution, Australia’s UN envoy said on Thursday.

Veto-wielding council members - the United States, Britain, France, China and Russia — have been negotiating a humanitarian resolution drafted by Australia, Luxembourg and Jordan to boost aid assistance in war-torn Syria to millions of people in need.

Russia said on Tuesday it has gained Syrian approval to open the border crossings named in the draft text by Australia, Luxembourg and Jordan under a “far-reaching formula.” UN diplomats said this involved using monitors to inspect convoys.

But western UN diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, have expressed concern about proposed Syrian government conditions placed on the plan and how that could affect its potential operation on the ground.

“What we’ve been given by the Russians, which is a big improvement over what they gave us a week ago, is not good enough,” Australian UN Ambassador Gary Quinlan told reporters. “It’s not ready.”

“We’re still looking at it to see how it would work,” he said. “We’re going to make sure it works on the ground and guarantees greater access - the way it’s constructed, we’re not convinced that’s the case.”

Russian UN Ambassador Vitaly Churkin said on Tuesday he hoped the draft resolution could be adopted within days.

However, Quinlan said negotiations among the eight council members were continuing and action by the full 15-member council was not imminent. The draft resolution also still needs to be circulated to the remaining seven council members before a vote. Syrian UN Ambassador Bashar Ja’afari said on Wednesday that Syria was working with the Security Council members on the possibility of opening the four border crossings.

“The tragedy is enormous. I am here on a street in the suburb of Aspruhovo. The street is not here, the houses are not here, there are cars on top of each other,” Varna mayor Ivan Portnii said.

Electricity in the suburb was cut off, the mayor said.

In central Bulgaria, firefighters evacuated 11 people from the top of their houses in the town of Kilifarevo, police said. Thunderstorms and heavy rains flooded roads and damaged houses in several villages near the capital.

Weather forecasters said the rains that fell in the eastern regions of Varna and Burgas in the past 24 hours equalled the usual amount per month and warned new rainfall and thunderstorms were expected in northern and eastern Bulgaria on Friday.

In late May, neighbouring Balkan countries Serbia, Bosnia and Croatia were hit by the heaviest rainfall since records began 120 years ago. At least 40 people were killed.

More than 50 million displaced worldwide, UN says

GENEVA, 20 June — More than 50 million people were forcibly uprooted worldwide at the end of last year, the highest level since after World War Two, as people fled crises from Syria to South Sudan, the UN refugee agency said on Friday. Half are children, many of them caught up in conflicts or persecution that world powers have been unable to prevent or end, UNHCR said in its annual Global Trends report. “We are really facing a quantum leap, an enormous increase of forced displacement in our world,” UN High Commissioner for Refugees Antonio Guterres told a news briefing. The overall figure of 51.2 million displaced people soared by six million from a year earlier. They included 16.7 million refugees and 33.3 million displaced within their homelands, and 1.2 million asylum seekers whose applications were pending. Syrians fleeing the escalating conflict accounted for most of the world’s 2.5 million new refugees last year, UNHCR said.

In all, nearly 3 million Syrians have crossed into neighbouring Lebanon, Turkey, Iraq and Jordan, while another 6.5 million remain displaced within Syria’s borders.

“We are seeing here the immense costs of not ending war, of failing to resolve or prevent conflict,” Guterres said. “We see the Security Council paralysed in many crucial crises around the world.”

Conflicts that erupted this year in Central African Republic, Ukraine and Iraq are driving more families from their homes, he said, raising fears of a mass exodus of Iraqi refugees.

“A multiplication of new crises, and at the same time old crises that seem never to die,” he added.

Afghan, Syrian and Somali nationals accounted for 53 percent of the 11.7 million refugees under UNHCR’s responsibility. Five million Palestinians are looked after by a sister agency UNRWA. Most refugees have found shelter in developing countries, contrary to the myth fuelled by some populist politicians in the West that their states were being flooded, Guterres said.

Syrian refugee children help their family transport small stones for their tents at Al Zaatari refugee camp in the Jordanian city of Mafrq near the border with Syria on 20 Nov, 2013 file photo.—REUTERS

“Usually in the debate in the developed world, there is this idea that refugees are all fleeing north and that the objective is not exactly to find protection but to find a better life. “The truth is that 86 percent of the world’s refugees live in the developing world,” he said. Desperate refugees and migrants from the Middle East and Africa have drowned after taking rickety boats in North Africa to cross the Mediterranean to reach Europe, mainly via Italy. Italy has a mission, known as Mare Nostrum or “Our Sea”, which has rescued about 50,000 migrants already this year. Italy will ask the European Union next week to take over responsibility for rescuing migrants, a task that is costing its navy 9 million euros ($12.25 million) a month.

Obama sends US military advisers to Iraq as battle rages over refinery

US President Barack Obama speaks at the White House about the Iraq situation in Washington on 19 June, 2014.—REUTERS

WASHINGTON/TIKRIT, (Iraq), 20 June — President Barack Obama said on Thursday he was sending up to 300 US military advisers to Iraq but stressed the need for a political solution to the Iraqi crisis as government forces battled Sunni rebels for control of the country's biggest refinery.

Speaking after a meeting with his national security team, Obama said he was prepared to take "targeted" military action later if deemed necessary, thus delaying but still keeping open the prospect of air strikes to fend off a militant insurgency. But he insisted that US troops would not return to combat in Iraq.

Obama also delivered a stern message to Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki on the need to take urgent steps to heal Iraq's sectarian rift, something US officials say the Shi'ite leader has failed to do and which an al-Qaeda splinter group leading the Sunni revolt has exploited.

"We do not have the ability to simply solve this problem by sending in tens of thousands of troops and committing the kinds of blood and treasure that has already been expended in Iraq," Obama told reporters. "Ultimately, this is something that is going to have to be solved by the Iraqis."

Obama, who withdrew US troops from Iraq at the end of 2011, said the United States would increase support for Iraq's beleaguered security forces. But he stopped short of acceding to Baghdad's request for the immediate use of US air power against Islamist insurgents who have overrun northern Iraq.

The contingent of up to 300 military advisers will be made up of special forces and will staff joint operations centres for intelligence sharing and planning, US officials said.

Leading US lawmakers have called for Maliki to step down, and Obama aides have also made clear their frustration with him. Some US officials believe there is a need for new Iraqi leadership but are mindful that Washington may not have enough clout to influence the situation, a former senior administration official said.

While Obama did not join calls for Maliki to go, saying "it's not our job to choose Iraq's leaders," he avoided any expression of confidence in the embattled Iraqi prime minister when asked by a reporter whether he would do so.

Warning that Iraq's fate "hangs in the balance," Obama said: "Only leaders with an inclusive agenda are going to be able to truly bring the Iraqi people together."

The US president also said he was sending Secretary of State John Kerry to Europe and the Middle East starting this weekend for talks he hoped would stabilize the region. A US official said: "Kerry is expected to go Iraq soon," but did not give a date. Obama's decision to deploy military advisers and deepen US re-engagement in Iraq came after days of arduous deliberations by a president who won the White House in 2008 on a pledge to disentangle the United States from the long, unpopular war there. He said that recent days had reminded Americans of the "deep scars" from its Iraq experience, which started with the 2003 US-led invasion that toppled Saddam Hussein and saw US troops occupy the country for nine years.

Ukraine's Poroshenko confirms he'll sign EU agreement on 27 June

KIEV, 20 June — Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko said on Thursday he would sign an association agreement with the European Union on 27 June and would also send his new foreign minister to Luxembourg next week to lay out a peace plan for the east to EU ministers.

Poroshenko made his comments after presenting Pavlo Klimkin, who was earlier endorsed as foreign minister by parliament, to the media.

Klimkin commented: "Our priorities are obvious — they are a peace plan (for eastern Ukraine) and association with the EU."

Referring to plans to sign the association agreement, Poroshenko said: "That for which we have waited for so long will take place next week."

Would-be bomber causing Stockholm lock-down surrenders to police

STOCKHOLM, 20 June — A man who had threatened to set off explosives in the heart of Stockholm on Thursday, prompting an hours-long lockdown in the Swedish capital, finally gave himself up to police, a spokesman said.

Police sealed off large parts of the city and evacuated buildings as they negotiated with the man holed up inside a building near the headquarters of the main ruling political party, the Moderates, saying he was carrying explosives.

"The negotiation went well in that he understood that it was an untenable situation," police spokesman Kjell Lindgren said.

"He came out, he showed he wasn't dangerous and he could be detained undramatically and he has now been taken away from there ... What remains for us is to search the premises to make sure there are no dangerous objects."

IAEA report likely to show Iran living up to nuclear deal terms

VIENNA, 20 June — The UN nuclear watchdog is expected to report in a monthly update on Friday that Iran is living up to its commitments to curb its atomic activities under an interim pact with six world powers last year, diplomats said. In exchange for a limited easing of sanctions, Iran agreed last 24 November to take action to eliminate its most proliferation-prone enriched uranium gas stockpile and halt the production of the material.

The six-month agreement, which took effect on 20 January, was designed to buy time for negotiations on a final settlement of the decade-old dispute over a nuclear programme which Iran says is peaceful but the West fears may be aimed at developing bombs.

Those talks began in February and are continuing this week in Vienna. One diplomat from one of the six powers — the United States, Russia, France, Germany, Britain and China — said some progress had been made but that big gaps remained.

The aim is to reach a comprehensive solution by a self-imposed on 20 July deadline on scaling back Iran's nuclear programme in return for an end to sanctions that have severely hurt the major oil producer's economy.

"Progress has been made but we have not concluded a big element of the negotiation," the diplomat said.

There are "still a lot of differences between the two sides and they are important differences of substance".

"It has been another really tough round," the diplomat said, talking after the fourth day of the 16-20 June meeting.

The UN International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which has inspectors on the ground in Iran around the clock, has a pivotal role in ensuring that the Islamic Republic is abiding by the terms of the preliminary, half-year accord.

Diplomats said the IAEA was expected to issue the monthly report on Friday, the fifth since the accord entered into force, confirming that Teheran was continuing to honour the terms.—Reuters

World stocks at record high, gold holds gains as dollar dips

Traders work on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange on 19 June, 2014.—REUTERS

SYDNEY, 20 June — An index of global stocks was near record highs on Friday while gold celebrated its biggest one-day rise in nine months as markets

wagered monetary policy would stay super loose in the United States, Europe and Japan for a long time to come.

Investors had piled into bullion while selling US government debt on the premise the Fed might be comfortable with higher inflation if it meant faster economic growth.

Spot gold was enjoying the view at $1,312.24 an ounce having been as far as $1,321.70 at one stage on Thursday when it climbed 3.3 percent.

Traders also said a major hedge fund had cut back a large short position in the precious metal which pushed prices above $1,300 an ounce and tripped a host of stop-loss buy orders.

Equities were in ebullient mood with MSCI's all-country world index, which includes about 85 percent of global investable equities, passing its previous all-time high set in November 2007.

Japan's Nikkei firmed 0.3 percent to a fresh five-month peak, while the broader TOPIX brought its gains to more than 10 percent in just the past four weeks.

MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan eased 0.2 percent after rising 0.7 percent on Thursday. In Europe, the FTSEurofirst 300 index of regional shares had risen 0.6 percent to a six-year top.

Wall Street was more circumspect, though data on jobless claims and regional US manufacturing continued to show improvement. The Dow had ended up 0.09 percent, while the S&P 500 gained 0.13 percent and the Nasdaq lost 0.08 percent.

The revival in risk appetite follows Wednesday's decision by the US Federal Reserve to recommit to keeping rates near zero for some time to come.

Crucially, Chair Janet Yellen sounded unconcerned by inflation despite a recent pick-up in price pressure, surprising many who had thought the central bank would take a more hawkish turn.

US scientists develop new monkey model for AIDS research

WASHINGTON, 20 June — US researchers said on Thursday they have finally infected a species of monkey called pigtailed macaques with an AIDS-like disease after years of trying, a major step toward an animal model with which to study HIV-1, the virus responsible for most cases of AIDS. HIV-1, a very selective virus, does not readily infect species other than its usual hosts — humans and chimpanzees, which has made the search for effective treatments and vaccines for AIDS much more difficult, researchers at the Rockefeller University and the Aaron Diamond AIDS Research Centre said.

The reason is simple as without an accurate animal model of the disease, researchers have had few options for clinical studies of the virus.

"HIV-1 only causes AIDS in humans and chimpanzees, but the latter are not a practical model and are no longer used for HIV/AIDS research. Our goal has been to figure out how HIV-1 could cause disease in a new host," Paul Bieniasz of the Rockefeller University said. "By accomplishing this with macaques, we have taken a step toward establishing a new model for AIDS that can be used universally in prevention and treatment research."

According to the researchers, although pigtailed macaques have fewer defences against HIV-1 than most other primates, they lack an antiviral protein that fights off the virus. As a result, the researchers altered both the virus and the macaque immune system in order to induce AIDS.

They bolstered the virus with a defence-disabling protein made by Simian Immunodeficiency Virus (SIV), a relative of HIV-1, and then encouraged the modified HIV strain to adapt to its new host by passing it from one monkey to another, resulting in six generations of infected monkeys and an adapted virus.

Even so, the monkeys' immune systems were still able to control the HIV-1 infection. So, the researchers temporarily weakened their immune systems by depleting a type of white blood cell, known as a CD8 T-cell, that destroys virus-infected cells.

"When we depleted their CD8 cells, the infected monkeys developed disease closely mirroring that of human patients. For example they contracted AIDS-defining conditions including pneumocystis pneumonia, a textbook example of an opportunistic infection in AIDS," said Theodora Hatzioannou of Aaron Diamond. "Because it replicates what happens when HIV-1 compromises a human patient's immune system, our approach could potentially be used in the development of therapies and preventative measures for human patients."

Brent trading around $115, near nine-month high

SINGAPORE, 20 June — Brent crude held near $115 a barrel on Friday, close to a nine-month high and headed for its second weekly gain on increased risks of supply disruptions from Iraq.

Iraqi government forces battled Sunni militants for control of the country's biggest refinery on Thursday. If the 300,000 barrels per day refinery stays closed, Baghdad will need to import more oil products to meet its own domestic consumption, further tightening oil markets.

Fields south of Baghdad, where most of Iraq's 3.3 million barrels per day (bpd) of oil is produced, as well as exports remain unaffected. But heavy fighting north of the capital and foreign oil firms beginning to pull out staff pose a risk to supplies from OPEC's number two producer.

"This raises the risk of production halts in the near future, so although there are no disruptions at the moment, we do see further upside to prices," said Ken Hasegawa, a Tokyo-based commodity sales manager at Newedge Japan.

Brent crude LCOc1 slipped 8 cents to $114.98 a barrel at 0333 GMT, after ending 80 cents higher at $115.06 a barrel, the highest settlement since Sept. 6, 2013. The contract was up 1.3 percent for the week, after rising 4.4 percent last week.

The US crude oil contract CLc1, which expires on Friday, increased 27 cents to $106.70 a barrel. The contract settled 46 cents higher in the previous session, but was on course for a third weekly decline in four.

Softbank chief pledges to improve US communications industry

Softbank Corp Chief Executive Officer Masayoshi Son

TOKYO, 20 June — Softbank Corp Chief Executive Officer Masayoshi Son said on Friday that he wants to contribute to lowering communications fees and improving network speed in the United States by Softbank's entry into the market.

Speaking at a shareholders' meeting in Tokyo, Son said, "Competition is the best solution to not only (lowering) prices but also (improving) communications speed."

"Japan's population is declining. But we want to make a challenge in the world's No 1 country where the population and gross domestic product are expected to grow," he said.

Last year, the Japanese communications giant acquired Sprint Nextel Corp, the US market's No 3 player, and recent media reports said Sprint and the fourth largest mobile communications service provider T-Mobile US Inc. have reached a preliminary agreement for a merger.

Son has said on different occasions that the US mobile market is controlled by the "two big duopolies" of AT&T Inc and Verizon Communications Inc and that Softbank can help improve US mobile networks that are relatively expensive and slow. At the shareholders' meeting, Son also expressed his readiness to further expand Softbank's business in the field of green energy and robotics, saying, "Eventually, we are hoping to offer a set of services combining mobile communications and clean energy."

Softbank's group net profit for fiscal 2013 ended in March soared 41.5 percent from a year earlier to a record 527.04 billion yen on a rise in subscriptions and the purchase of Sprint.

Its operating profit grew 35.8 percent to a record 1.09 trillion yen on record sales of 6.67 trillion yen, up 108.2 percent.

Don't get trapped in a 'more haste, less speed' situation

By Kyaw Thura

It is in a crisis that people yearn for strong leadership. Nobody in their right minds would prefer to live in fear. A few years back, people witnessed unwanted consequences of disputes between two communities in some parts of the country. Any disputes should be addressed as soon as they arise. Though not serious, public discontent tends to smoulder with time.

History has it that different times have produced different leaders. In this twenty-first century, political leadership has come to the fore. With this end in mind, it is time for political parties and ordinary people to take stock of political leadership in the build-up to 2015, when Myanmar will see general elections.

With 2015 drawing nearer and nearer, voices to fix the State Constitution have echoed. As is known to all, it has become undeniable that any amendments to the Constitution do require fundamental change. In a sense, enormous heed to an English idiomatic expression should be paid: "More haste, less speed".

It is believed that the Myanmar people have known for some time that political institutions are not well structured yet, far from acting as representative bodies. To be frank, most political party leaders are still not in a close relationship with everyday people.

There is a general notion that political leadership needs a particular combination of skills. Leaders are different in appearances but have some characteristics in common. All leaders are good communicators, but not all good communicators are leaders. Great leaders are determined to commit themselves to their mission and approach challenges with great care by seeking advice and suggestions from people with great ideas. On top of that, patience, tolerance, sympathy and evenhandedness are common qualities that belong to all leaders.

All in all, what is important is a form of politics capable of uniting typically divided groups in a battle for rights and freedoms. Simply put, a truly democratic form of political leadership should be a system by, of and for ordinary people. Politically, that is where the similarities start.

- (b) fill the vacancy in accordance with sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 in the event that no suitable nominee is available in the list of prospective members of the Commission.

20. Where the vacancy is the office of the Chairperson or the Vice-Chairperson, the President shall temporarily designate any remaining member to such position before filling the vacancy.

21. Notwithstanding any provision in respect of the term contained in section 13, the term of the member appointed under section 19 shall be the remaining term of the replaced member.

Chapter V*Duties and Powers of the Commission

22. Duties and Powers of the Commission are as follows:

- (a) promoting public awareness of human rights and efforts to combat all forms of discrimination through the provision of information and education;
- (b) carrying out the following to monitor and promote compliance with international and domestic human rights laws:
  - (i) recommending to the Government the international human rights instruments to which Myanmar should become a party;
  - (ii) reviewing existing laws and proposed bills for consistency with the international human rights instruments to which the State is a party and recommending the legislation and additional measures to be adopted for the promotion and protection of human rights to the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw through the Government;
  - (iii) assisting the Government in respect of its preparation of reports to be submitted under obligation in accordance with the international human rights instruments to which the State is a party and on the contents of those reports.
- (c) verifying and conducting inquiries in respect of complaints and allegations of human rights violations;
- (d) visiting the scene of human rights violations and conducting inquiries, on receipt of a complaint or allegation or information;

- (e) inspecting the scene of human rights violations and, after notification, prisons, jails, detention centres and public or private places of confinement;
- (f) consulting and engaging the relevant civil society organizations, business organizations, labour organizations, national races organizations, minorities and academic institutions, as appropriate;
- (g) consulting, engaging and cooperating with other national, regional and international human rights mechanisms, including the Universal Periodic Review, as appropriate;
- (h) responding to any matter referred to the Commission by the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw or the Lower House or the Upper House or the Government;
- (i) responding to the specific matters referred by the President in connection with the promotion and protection of human rights;
- (j) preparing reports in respect of the functions of the Commission and publishing them as appropriate;
- (k) carrying out anything incidental or conducive to the implementation of any function of the Commission;
- (l) submitting to the President and the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw an annual report on the situation of human rights in Myanmar, the activities and functions of the Commission, with such recommendations as are appropriate;
- (m) submitting special reports on human rights issues to the President as and when necessary.

23. If the Chairperson is, for any reason, not able to perform his/her responsibilities, the Vice-Chairperson shall assume the responsibilities of the Chairperson.

24. The Commission shall:

- (a) have the right to act independently on matters that fall within its powers;
- (b) have the right to act independently in respect of financial management and administrative matters in conformity with the provisions of this Law.

25. Where a member of the Commission becomes aware of his/her action in conflict with the interest of the Commission, the member shall promptly inform the Chairperson and members of the Commission, and take corrective action immediately.

26. The Commission has the power to engage thematic experts to be effective in undertaking its functions after informing the President.

27. The Commission shall, in respect of holding of the regular and special meetings, the fulfillment of quorum of the meetings, the presiding of meetings and making of decisions, act in accordance with the rules and procedures issued under this Law.

Chapter VI*Inquiry*Inquiry into Human Rights Violations, Handling of Complaints

28. Where the Commission becomes aware of widespread, systemic or entrenched situations or practices that violate human rights, the Commission may initiate an inquiry.

29. In conducting an inquiry, the Commission shall abide by the principles of natural justice. In addition, the Commission may invoke the relevant provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Evidence Act as appropriate.

30. An individual may lodge a complaint with the Commission on his/her own behalf, or on behalf of another person or on behalf of a group of persons with a similar cause of complaint concerning any alleged violation of human rights.

31. The complainant shall submit to the Commission in writing in carrying out the following:

- (a) withdrawing the complaint;
- (b) obtaining the permission of the Commission to amend the complaint.

32. The Commission shall conduct an inquiry into a complaint unless it decides not to do so for the following reasons:

- (a) the complaint is not made in good faith;
- (b) the complaint is not within the competence of the Commission;
- (c) a more appropriate remedy or reasonable channel of complaint is available to the complainant.

33. No decision by the Commission to decline to conduct or to defer or to discontinue an inquiry into any subject of a complaint shall affect the power of the Commission to inquire generally into a matter on its own initiative.

34. In addressing a complaint, if the Commission is of the view that the subject of the complaint is amenable to conciliation, the Commission shall address the complaint through conciliation. In doing so, this shall be done in accordance with the existing laws.

35. The Commission may summon in writing to testify, to take oath, for questioning and to sign affidavits any person who in its opinion is able to give any information relating to any matter being investigated by the Commission, to appear before the Commission at a time and place specified.

36. The Commission may summon in writing any person or office to produce any documents or evidence in their possession or control that, in the opinion of the Commission, relate to any matter being investigated by it except the following:

- (a) documents or evidence, the release of which would affect the security and defence of the State;
- (b) documents which are classified by the departments and organizations of the Government.

37. The Commission shall not inquire into the complaint which violates any of the following:

- (a) cases under trial before any court, cases under appeal or revision on the decision of any court;
- (b) cases that have been finally determined by any court.

38. The Commission shall, for further action on the complaint which involves the government departments, organizations or its related entity, refer its findings to the relevant government department or organization with recommendations. That department or organization shall respond to the Commission on its action regarding the Commission's recommendations within thirty days. In doing so, the action that ensures that complainants are not subjected to reprisals shall be mentioned.

39. At the conclusion of an inquiry, the Commission may report its findings and recommendations to the President and the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw and may publish them for public information as may be necessary.

40. If the Commission finds out the credible evidence, in its inquiry of a complaint, of the violations of the rights of an individual or individuals, the report submitted under sections 38 and 39 shall mention the recommendations on the following:

- (a) a determination that a violation of human rights has occurred and a recommendation that such human rights violation and similar violations should not be repeated or continued;
- (b) appropriate measures by a person or any agency to redress the violation of human rights;
- (c) obtaining due compensation for the victim of violation of human rights for any loss or damage suffered;
- (d) recommending for action to any department, organization, service, person or the relevant authority and to require them to inform the Commission within a reasonable period of the steps that have been taken to give effect to that recommendation.

Protection

41. Anyone who threatens, hinders, obstructs, molests or interferes with a member of the Commission or a staff member of the Commission or a person acting on behalf of the Commission while that person is undertaking its functions under this Law shall be punished by the existing law.

- has otherwise done anything under or by reference to this Law.

The Inspection of Prisons, Jails, Detention Centres and Places of Confinement

43. The Commission has the power to inspect prisons, jails, detention centres, and places of confinement in order to ensure that persons imprisoned, detained or confined are treated humanely and in accordance with international and national human rights laws. The inspection shall be carried out in accordance with relevant laws.

44. In carrying out the functions under section 43, the Commission shall have the following powers:

- right of inspecting prisons, jails, detention centres and places of confinement after notifying the relevant authorities of the time of its intended visit;
- right of inspecting all areas and facilities for those detained or confined in prisons, jails, detention centres and places of confinement;
- right of interviewing prisoners, detainees and those confined freely and privately;
- right of recommending for action to the relevant departments and organizations and requiring them to inform the Commission of the steps that they have taken to give effect to those recommendations.

45. The Commission may inform the relevant organizations at the Union level of its findings and recommendations and make them public as appropriate.

Chapter VII Financial Management

46. The State shall provide the Commission with adequate funding to enable it to effectively discharge the functions assigned to it by this Law.

47. The Commission may receive unconditional contributions from any individual or organization that do not prejudice the independence of the Commission concerning the promotion and protection of human rights.

48. The Commission shall cause proper accounts to be kept of its income, expenditure, assets and liabilities in accordance with financial regulations.

49. The accounts of the Commission shall be audited by the Office of the Auditor-General of the Union.

50. The Commission shall apply in accordance with the relevant existing Revenue Laws for exemption from assessment of taxes on its funds and monetary transactions.

Chapter VIII Staff Organization Structure

51. The Commission shall:

- establish a staff organization structure to assist the Commission to fulfill its functions and appoint the staff as required;
  - prescribe regulations, bye-laws and benefits in respect of the personnel matters of the Commission.
52. The Commission may appoint the necessary staff including the Head of the Office of the Commission in order to effectively discharge its functions.
53. (a) The Head of the Office of the Commission shall act as Secretary of the Commission and also perform the other functions determined by the Commission.
- (b) The Head and staff of the Office of the Commission are accountable to the Commission.

54. The Commission shall determine the rank of staff of the Office of the Commission, subject to the laws and regulations for civil service personnel.

55. The Chairperson of the Commission may, by signed document, specifically delegate to any officer of the Office of the Commission, any of the functions of the Commission. The entrusted delegate shall perform only the function specified in the instrument of delegation.

56. The Chairperson of the Commission may revoke the function so delegated to the officer concerned at any time by written instrument.

Chapter IX Miscellaneous

57. The Commission shall establish its headquarters and may establish its branches as required to implement its mandate.

58. The Commission shall hold its meetings as prescribed.

59. The Commission may establish the necessary separate groups and working groups, based on locations or themes and may entrust specific duties to them in order to effectively discharge the functions contained in this Law.

60. The Commission shall have the right to own name, logo and perpetual succession, and have the right to sue and to be sued.

61. In performing the functions under this Law, a member of the Commission and the person assigned by the Commission shall be deemed as a public servant under section 21 of the Penal Code.

62. No criminal or civil action shall be prosecuted against the Commission or a member of the Commission or the person assigned by the Commission for any act or omission, or observation made or opinion issued in good faith in the exercise of the functions and powers vested under this Law.

63. Documents, materials and information communicated and delivered to the Commission or the Office of the Commission, or collected by the Commission shall be exempted from censorship or interference.

64. The premises, archives, files, documents, communications, properties, funds and assets of the Commission, wherever located and by whomever held, shall be inviolable and exempted from trespassing, searching, confiscation, seizure, requisition or any other means of interference.

65. The Commission has the right to disclose, in order to conduct its investigation smoothly, such information which in its opinion ought to be disclosed.

66. The Commission shall ensure that the name and identifying information concerning any person appearing before it for examination, testimonies, documentary evidence, things furnished to it, are not published or disclosed by any person without the Commission's authorization. The Commission may also take other measures for the protection of witnesses.

67. The Commission shall refrain from using the information it has obtained in ways other than realizing its objectives.

68. Except in the case of trial of any person for perjury in respect of his statements, testimonies and answers, no person shall be prosecuted before any court on the basis of those statements, testimonies and answers. The statements, testimonies and answers produced before the Commission shall not be used in prosecuting any other person.

69. The Myanmar National Human Rights Commission established under Notification No. 34/2011 dated 5 September 2011 of the Government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar shall continue to perform its responsibilities until the establishment of a Commission under this Law.

70. The Commission may issue notifications, orders, directives and procedures to implement the provisions of this Law.

I hereby sign in accordance with the Constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar.

NASA identifies third valid candidate for asteroid capture

WASHINGTON, 20 June — US space agency NASA said on Thursday it has identified an “odd, tiny asteroid” as a third valid candidate for its ambitious asteroid-capture mission.

Astronomers using NASA’s Spitzer Space Telescope measured the size of the asteroid, called 2011 MD, for the Asteroid Redirect Mission (ARM), which seeks to drag a space rock into orbit around the moon for future visitation by astronauts, NASA said.

“The near-Earth asteroid ... was found to be roughly 20 feet (6 meters) in size, and its structure appears to contain a lot of empty space, perhaps resembling a pile of rubble,” it said in a statement. “The Spitzer results confirm that asteroid 2011 MD has characteristics suitable for the ARM proposal, elevating it to the ‘valid candidate’ level.”

According to the space agency, valid candidates are those asteroids with the right size, mass and rotation rate to be feasibly captured by the robotic spacecraft.

Prior to the Spitzer study, the size of 2011 MD was only very roughly calculated with visible light observations. Spitzer, however, can use its heat-sensitive infrared vision to spy asteroids and get better estimates of their sizes.

Previously, two other valid candidates, 2009 BD and 2013 EC20, have been identified. NASA said it continues to search for and find new potential candidates.

The Asteroid Redirect Mission aims to identify, capture and redirect a near-Earth asteroid to a stable orbit around the moon with a robotic spacecraft. US astronauts will then visit and explore the asteroid using NASA’s Orion spacecraft and Space Launch System rocket in the 2020s, returning to Earth with samples.

NASA said this bold mission will help it test new systems and capabilities needed to support future human missions to Mars.

Japan plans ample support for fuel cell car technology

TOKYO, 20 June — The Japanese government is planning to offer ample support to popularize fuel cell vehicle technology as Toyota Motor Corp and Honda Motor Co prepare to launch hydrogen-powered cars in 2015.

The government on Thursday drafted a timeline that spelled out targets and actions over the next 25 years to commercialize fuel cell vehicles and boost use of hydrogen energy in general.

The move comes as Japan’s ruling Liberal Democratic Party considers supporting the technology through subsidies and tax breaks, so that by 2025 fuel cell vehicles can sell for around $20,000 or a little more, the same price as popular gas-electric hybrids. A fuel cell vehicle, which runs on electricity generated from cells that combine hydrogen with oxygen, emits only water vapor and heat. The vehicles can run five times longer than battery-operated electric cars, and their hydrogen tanks can be filled in just a few minutes.

Intel launches messaging app using cartoons to mimic sender’s face

SAN FRANCISCO, 20 June — Intel Corp is getting into voice instant messaging with a smartphone app that uses facial tracking technology to caricature a sender’s expressions. Pocket Avatars was launched on Thursday by Mike Bell, an Intel senior executive whose job is to make sure the world’s largest semiconductor maker is at the front of future technology trends after arriving disastrously late to smartphones and tablets. The app uses a smartphone’s camera and

Power of Microsoft’s Bing an open question in search industry

A employee stands in the Microsoft booth during the 2014 Computex exhibition at the TWTC Nangang exhibition hall in Taipei on 3 June, 2014.—REUTERS

SEATTLE, 20 June — Microsoft Corp’s (MSFT.O) new chief executive, Satya Nadella, likes to boast that Bing is growing and powers 30 percent of the Internet search market, making it a worthy competitor to Google Inc (GOOGL.O).

But within the advertising and research industries that measure and manage search as a business, Microsoft’s strength is an open question. The figures quoted by Microsoft, which include searches by partner Yahoo Inc (YHOO.O), are much higher than the rate at which people actually click on the links that a search returns, according to new studies by industry researchers. The new search data calls into question Bing’s effectiveness for advertisers. It also lends support to the argument from some investors that Microsoft should sell Bing.

Microsoft has been in the Internet search business since 1998, and Bing — five years old this month — is its latest and most intense effort to unseat market leader Google. The company initially assumed that its world-class engineers and the sheer scale of its Windows user base would sweep away competitors, but Google has not relinquished any share. To measure its progress in the search business, Microsoft prefers to cite market share numbers from comScore, which established itself as the prime source for Internet data a decade ago, when reliable numbers were hard to come by, and has long been considered the gold standard.

ComScore said Google sites had 67.6 percent of US searches in May, compared with Microsoft’s 18.8 percent and Yahoo’s 10 percent, which are both powered by Bing.

ComScore bases its calculations on desktop computer Internet searches by about a million anonymous people in the United States. It does not measure searches on mobile phones or tablets, which are dominated by Google, but it does count searches within the big MSN and Yahoo portals, factors which help explain why Bing has such a significant share.—Reuters

BlackBerry results top forecasts, fueling recovery hopes

WATERLOO, (Ontario) / Toronto, 20 June — BlackBerry Ltd posted a narrower-than-expected quarterly loss on Thursday as the troubled smartphone maker’s turnaround efforts started to pay off, raising hope that its chief executive can deliver on a pledge to return the company to steady profits.

John Chen, who took the reins at BlackBerry seven months ago, has worked rapidly to trim costs, giving the Waterloo, Ontario-based company more time to stabilize its struggling handset business and earn more money from services and software.

BlackBerry shares surged more than 10 percent after the company said it spent less cash than many expected in its fiscal first quarter, ended on 31 May, and its gross profit margin rose.

“The short trade is over in this name, for now,” said BGC analyst Colin Gillis. “They’ve got enough liquidity, and they’ve given us clear profitability targets.”

BlackBerry said its low-cost Z3 smartphone was selling well in Indonesia and that its services business, which manages its own and rival mobile devices on the internal networks of large organizations, had won back some customers from rivals.

BlackBerry has more than halved its workforce over the last two years as part of a do-or-die push to turn its business around after losing ground to Apple Inc’s iPhone and Samsung Electronics Co devices that run on Google Inc’s Android system.

Chen wants BlackBerry to remain a competitor in the smartphone segment, but he is focused on its services business, which made up 54 percent of revenue in the quarter, up from 26 percent only a year earlier. The company works with hundreds of large companies and government agencies to securely manage their networks. As the company rolls out new phones later this year, its revenue growth is likely to be driven more by its smartphones, but the services business is likely to drive higher margins, Chen told reporters.—Reuters

Strike wanes as France pushes on with railway reform

PARIS, 20 June — Growing numbers of French railway employees returned to work on Thursday after lawmakers voted to approve the broad outline of a railway reform that has triggered a nine-day strike.

Deputies in the National Assembly approved late on Wednesday the new structure of France's ageing railway system, which will bring state-owned railways company SNCF and track owner RFF into the same holding company while maintaining separate operations.

The reform, designed to prepare the system ahead of European Union moves to liberalise Europe's transport routes, has worried unions for railway workers who fear their generous benefits will be eroded as more competition comes to the sector.

To allay those concerns, deputies voted for amendments that maintain the "inseparable and integral character" of the new entities, and the establishment of a works council.

Support for the strike

among rail workers waned on Thursday with SNCF reporting that only 10.5 per cent of its 150,000 workers were participating.

A small core of workers voted to pursue a strike which has forced hundreds of cancellations and huge delays across France.

"The strike is extended because there are still rail workers protesting today," said Gilbert Garrel, an official at the CGT union's branch for rail workers.

Earlier the CGT's head, Thierry Lepaon, ac-knowledgeed the strike had reached a "turning point" after the vote in parliament, although he refused to declare it completely over.

A final parliamentary vote on the reform is due on 24 June.

On Thursday, seven out of ten trains were expected to run, in what SNCF called "ongoing improvement" of service.

"It's time to get back to work," the head of SNCF, Guillaume Pepy, told Le Parisien daily. "We've lost 153 million euros ... a third of our last year's results. That's huge."

The Socialist government of President Francois Hollande has said the reform — which has been in the works since 2011 — is necessary and overdue.

Prime Minister Manuel Valls, under pressure to stand firm, has insisted the government will not back down on the reform, and while he has said he will not force unions to stop the strike, he has called for it to end.

Valls called on Wednesday for a parliamentary report to study solutions to the 44 billion euros ($60 billion) in debt carried by SNCF, which unions want the government to absorb.—Reuters

Albania cracks down on marijuana production in key southern village

LAZARAT, (Albania), 20 June — The smoke from burning marijuana plants billowed from a dozen houses on Day Five of Albania's most serious move yet against a southern village, armed to the teeth, that has churned out weed on an industrial scale for more than 15 years.

Lazarat has long blighted Albania's efforts to shed the image of a Balkan badlands since it threw off communism in 1991.

With the fruits of its labor turning up in Italy, Greece and, last year, Germany, Albania has come under increasing pressure from the European Union to crack down on drug producers long considered untouchable, out of reach of the law thanks to a web of corrupt connections to the police and politicians.

Albania hopes to get approval later this month from each of the EU's 28 member states to become an official candidate for inclusion in the group. Crime and corruption are sure to be top of the list of issues that must be resolved before it can join.

Under the command of a new government sworn in September, police moved into Lazarat on Sunday after coming under fire while spying on the crops planted all along the hill-sides the day before. They approached from the south side of the sprawling community, drawing fire from heavy machinegun rounds and anti-tank grenades.

The village of some 5,000 people lives off the proceeds from the marijuana business. Aerial pictures suggest some 60 hectares were cultivated in Lazarat last November with 300,000 plants capable of yielding 500 tonnes of cannabis, or half the total production in Albania.

"This time we'll put an end to this; law and God are on our side," a commander of a police special forces unit told his men as a Reuters reporter looked on. The commander declined to be named.

Afghan candidate Abdullah blames Karzai for election standoff

KABUL, 20 June — Afghan presidential candidate Abdullah Abdullah accused Hamid Karzai on Thursday of orchestrating a stalemate after last weekend's runoff election and said the incumbent would be responsible for any ensuing political crisis.

The vote is a decisive test of Afghanistan's ambitions to transfer power democratically for the first time in its history.

Preliminary results are not due until 2 July but Abdullah's refusal to accept the outcome has raised the risks of the war-torn country plunging into a protracted political crisis as most foreign troops prepare to leave Afghanistan this year.

Afghans braved Taliban threats to vote in a second-round run-off on Saturday but accusations of cheating have since created a deadlock between Abdullah and his rival, former World Bank economist Ashraf Ghani.

Abdullah has demanded a suspension to vote counting and declared he had no trust in electoral bodies.

On Thursday, he directly accused Karzai, who was constitutionally barred from running for office again after 12 years in power, of playing a role in the standoff.

"Any undertakings will be regarded as illegal and whatever results are announced, are not acceptable to us," Abdullah told reporters. "This unfortunately has created a political stalemate and the president of this country and the electoral commissions are responsible for this stalemate and any consequences."

Karzai, expected to retain a hand in politics even after standing down, has repeatedly denied claims of interference.

"The government have been neutral in this process and we are on neither side," government spokesman Sifatullah Safai said in response to Abdullah's comments.—Reuters

“Inclusive” PIDF summit concludes with commitment on partnership, green/blue growth

NADI, (Fiji), 20 June — Fijian Prime Minister Voreqe Bainimarama concluded the 2nd summit of the Pacific Islands Development

Forum (PIDF) on Friday afternoon, calling it a success. “I have to admit that after the success of the inaugural Forum last year — and the wonderful spirit that marked our first gathering — I wondered whether we could keep that spirit alive. But I realize now that I needn't have worried, judging from the feedback I've received from so many of you,” said the prime minister in his closing speech.

The inclusiveness of the meeting is a great strength, said Bainimarama. “Part of the attraction of the PIDF is still its novelty value, the fact that for the first time, we all have a genuinely Pacific gathering that is also genuinely inclusive — Governments, civil society organizations and business working together to forge a sustainable development path for us all,” he said.

The summit, themed “Green Growth in the Pacific: Building Resilient Sustainable Futures and Genuine Partnership Partnerships,” gathers about 400 high-level participants from more than 10 Pacific island governments, civil society and business circles as well as observers from nations such as Morocco, Venezuela, Israel, Singapore, Kazakhstan, Kuwait and Georgia.

Man accused of stalking Sandra Bullock charged with stockpiling guns

LOS ANGELES, 20 June — A man accused of breaking into Oscar-winning actress Sandra Bullock's Los Angeles home pleaded not guilty on Wednesday to charges that he possessed a stockpile of weapons, the Los Angeles County District Attorney said.

Police found the weapons cache, which included several machine guns, at the Montrose, California, home of 39-year-old Joshua Corbett following his 8 June arrest at Bullock's residence in an upscale neighbourhood near Beverly Hills, prosecutors said. Corbett, who has already pleaded not guilty in Los Angeles Superior Court to felony charges of burglary, stalking and possession of a machine gun, now faces 19 additional felony weapons charges.

Corbett's bail was set at $2 million on the new charges in addition to the $185,000 bond from the original charges. He is being held in Los Angeles County Jail. Bullock, the star of such films as "The Blind Side" and this year's Academy Award-winner "Gravity," was at home during the alleged break-in but prosecutors said Corbett was not in possession of the machine gun at the time of the break-in.—Reuters

Harrison Ford has surgery after breaking leg on 'Star Wars' set

LOS ANGELES, 20 June — Actor Harrison Ford has undergone surgery on his broken left leg that was injured in an accident on the set of "Star Wars: Episode VII," the publicist for the 71-year-old actor said in a statement on Thursday.

Disney, the studio behind the new "Star Wars" films, had said last week that Ford had hurt his ankle while filming at Pinewood Studios on the outskirts of London.

Ford's publicist, Ina Treciokas, said in the statement that Ford will begin rehabilitation shortly.

"He's doing well and looks forward to returning to work," Treciokas said.

Filming on the reboot of George Lucas' blockbuster "Star Wars" franchise will continue on schedule while Ford recovers.—Reuters

Emma Stone, Andrew Garfield are making the most of fame, in the nicest way

NEW DELHI, 20 June — Hollywood couple and co-stars Emma Stone and Andrew Garfield have chanced upon the best way to deal with paparazzi cameras thrust in their faces. They're giving those cameras something to look at.

They were at a New York eatery having lunch recently and spotted the group of photographers outside, waiting to pounce. So Emma and Andrew wrote out two notes addressed to the paps. When they left the restaurant after their meal, they were holding the notes up to their faces.

Emma's note read: Good morning! We were eating and saw a group of guys with cameras outside. And so we thought, let's try this again. We don't need the attention but these wonderful organizations do.

It ended with an arrow pointing to Andrew's note which listed the couple's favourite charities — youthmentoring.org, autismspeaks.org, wwv.org and gildasclubnyc.org — and ended with: Here's to stuff that matters. Have a great day! —PTI

Shraddha Kapoor: Have to conquer a lot in Bollywood

MUMBAI, 20 June — Post the success of Aashiqui 2, actress Shraddha Kapoor, who is three films old in Bollywood, wants to "conquer" a lot more and is willing to work hard.

Shraddha, daughter of popular actor Shakti Kapoor, made her acting debut with Teen Patti alongside megastar Amitabh Bachchan, R Madhavan and others. Her next release was Luv Ka The End with Y-Films, which is a subsidiary of Yash Raj Films. However, both the films failed to garner much attention. It was her third release, Aashiqui 2 which turned out to be a huge success.

"After the success of Aashiqui 2, I believe that I need to conquer a lot more. I am constantly working towards it and I will work harder. Nobody expected Aashiqui 2 could do so well as it had two new faces.

"It changed so many lives that Friday; of mine, Mohit Suri's (director) and also that of Aditya Roy Kapur's (actor), besides singers and composers," Shraddha said in an interview here. Shraddha says that the success Aashiqui 2 has received is like a "crazy phenomenon". For Shraddha, the kind of appreciation that came from all quarters post the release of Aashiqui 2 was overwhelming. "For me, actually be remembered as 'Arohi' (the name of character) was the biggest compliment.—PTI

Kanebo to pay compensation to victims of skin-whitening products

TOKYO, 20 June — Kanebo Cosmetics Inc. plans to pay up to several billion yen to some 4,000 users of its skin-whitening cosmetics who developed white blotches on their skin, sources familiar with the matter said on Friday.

Kanebo Cosmetics plans to make payments to those who were worst affected, the sources said.

The company, which is wholly owned by major cosmetics and household goods maker Kao Corp, recalled from last July products containing “Rhododenol,” a chemical brightening ingredient. Users of the products developed white blotches on their face and hands. Kanebo Cosmetics will pay several hundred thousand yen per victim in damages and to compensate for loss of income due to taking time off work to receive treatment at hospitals, the sources said.

The company has started to send letters to the victims, saying it is ready to pay compensation, they added.

A Tokyo-based group of lawyers who represent the victims said it has been consulted by around 100 people who have received the letters. In the letters, Kanebo Cosmetics has offered to pay 400,000-500,000 yen, the sources said.

Lawyer Tadashi Nakamura, who serves as head of the group’s secretariat, said Kanebo Cosmetics has failed to explain how it came up with the figure, which is smaller than the amount calculated by the group.

The number of people who developed white blotches on their skin as a result of using the Kanebo products reached some 19,000 as of late May. The company recalled some 700,000 products as of the end of that month.

The cosmetics maker is already covering the victims’ medical and transportation costs.

Kagawa’s benching dictated by tactics rather than form

Shinji Kagawa

NATAL, (Brazil), 20 June — Japan manager Alberto Zaccheroni said Shinji Kagawa’s benching in Thursday’s Greece game was a tactical decision and not because the Manchester United midfielder had been out of form.

“It was a tactical choice,” Zaccheroni said. “We wanted to make them work on the wings, which is where they usually begin their buildup. When Kagawa plays wide, he usually likes to cut in which would’ve made what we wanted to do difficult.”

Kagawa, who had a poor game by his standards in Saturday’s 2-1 defeat to Ivory Coast, was dropped with Yoshito Okubo taking his place in a four-man attack.

Kagawa came on for

Yuya Osako in the 57th minute but failed to spark the Asian champions, who could not unlock the Greek defence which grew even more defensive after they went down to 10 men late in the opening half.

Through the first two games, Kagawa’s World Cup debut has been anything but great and he was as quiet in his short dealing with the press after the match.

In order to qualify for the second round, Japan on Tuesday must beat Group C leaders Colombia and pray Ivory Coast do not beat Greece.

“I just made sure I was ready if and when I got the call,” Kagawa said. “That’s it. Obviously, we’re not happy about the result.”

Australia secures landmark deals with Chinese powerhouses

SYDNEY, 20 June — After almost 12 months of confidential discussions, the University of New South Wales (UNSW), one of Australia’s leading universities, this month has secured two historic partnerships that experts here hope will unlock valuable insights into China’s world-leading technology transfer and research commercialization.

Speaking exclusively to Xinhua, the University of New South Wales’ pro-vice-chancellor (Research), Professor Mark Hoffman, said on Friday the first deal — to be signed in Beijing next week — between UNSW and the China Iron and Steel Association’s (CISA’s) subsidiary will provide a platform to commercialize UNSW’s metals research with CISA’s network of more than 100 steel mills.

“CISA’s membership covers more than 90 percent of China’s steel industry and this alliance delivers an exciting mechanism to take our technology directly to the world’s largest steel industry,” the pro-vice-chancellor said.

The second deal, between UNSW’s commercialization arm and the Fujian Provincial Government, sees the university become a founding member of the China Cross-Straits Technology Transfer Centre.—Xinhua

Take Italy to the moon please Mario, says coach

RECIFE, (Brazil), 20 June — Mario Balotelli is a one-man weapon who earth, his coach Cesare Prandelli said on Thursday. The mercurial striker teams jostling for top spot in Group D after opening their World Cup campaigns can take Italy all the way "to the moon" but if he does not keep his mind on the job he will be brought straight back down to is once again set to spearhead Italy's attack as they face Costa Rica in the north-eastern city of Recife on Friday, with both with victory.

The AC Milan forward's frequently lethargic displays ensure he continues to divide opinion on his place in the pecking order of the game's current top talents.

Yet he showed his undeniable value in the 2-1 victory over England last week by capping a largely anonymous performance with the match-winning goal.

"If we look at the last four years, there are times where he was our weapon, the man who would take us to the moon, then two months later, he was not the same player," Prandelli told a news conference with Balotelli sat beside him.

"What is important is that he concentrates. If he can do that for 90 minutes, then good, if not we will have someone else come in and replace him.

"He can be decisive and important but as in the last match he must give 100 percent."

The irony of the final point was that as Prandelli delivered his verdict, Balotelli's attention seemed to have wandered and his gaze was distractedly looking elsewhere.

The striker had earlier described how the hubbub of the World Cup was not taking its toll on his nerves and how the man with a hot-headed reputation was remaining ice cool.

"I am experiencing this moment with great peace of mind," he said. "I don't feel any pressure, nothing of the sort."

While the heat is not getting to the striker, the Brazilian climate and Friday's 1300 local time kick-off was clearly not to his coach's liking.

He had previously complained about his players not being allowed drinks breaks in their win over England, played in the stifling jungle climate of Manaus. Recife is unlikely to offer any shelter from Brazil's soaring temperatures.

"It would seem that everything remains the same," he said when asked if FIFA would relent and allow stoppages.

"The climate is not normal. Today we simulated the climate and at 1:25pm, it was 29 degrees and 57 percent humidity. After 20 minutes, the clouds cleared and we almost had 40 degrees and 70 percent humidity.

"As far as I am concerned the South American teams have an advantage, not least because they live and work in these conditions and their explosiveness is different to Europeans. Europeans are more resilient, but less explosive."

On the injury front, Prandelli said goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon could return to the starting line-up after missing the first match with a twisted ankle, although the final decision would be left until on Friday.—Reuters

25 tentatively selected players chosen for Myanmar national team

Myanmar national football team is making preparations to take part in the Suzuki Cup in the region. Before the cup, Myanmar will play tune-up matches with Cerezo Osaka Club of Japan on 28 June and with Vietnamese national team on 2 July.

The match to be played between Myanmar and Cerezo Osaka will be held at Youth Training Centre in Thuwunna of Yangon. The Myanmar vs. Vietnam will take place in Vietnam.

The Myanmar national team has been formed with 25 tentatively selected players. Of them, 14 players have experiences in the recent AFC Challenge Cup. Kyaw Zeyar Win, Kyi Lin and Soe Min Oo were selected by coach Radojko Avramovic in addition to
